PRISONERS BLAST WALL, FLEE JAIL; ONE SLAIN

Another Wounded, While Five More Make Their Escape From St. Francois County Prison at Farmington, Mo.

POSSE SETS OUT IN PURSUIT

Plotters Use Nitroglycerin to Tear Hole Through Which They Dash—Three Awaiting Trial for Robbery.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., Feb. 6.—One prisoner was shot and killed, another was wounded, and five prisoners escaped here tonight after blowing out a window and a section of the wall of the St. Francois County jail with nitroglycerin.

Twenty-one other prisoners remained in the jail while Sheriff Presnell and deputies ran to the smoke-filled breach after Deputy Sheriff Dewey May had fired at the fugitives, three of whom were awaiting trial for a robbery at Flat River.

Woodrow Downs, 19 years old, formerly of Maplewood, St. Louis County, was fatally wounded. A bullet fired by May penetrated his lung and another his hip, and he died 30 minutes later. John Vranic, 43, arrested with Downs at Kirkwood, St. Louis County, Dec. 17, last, suffered bullet wounds in the lung and shoulder and was put to bed at the jail. Joseph Downs, 49, father of Woodrow, who was arrested with his son, escaped together with Dewey Underwood, 24, Robert Burk, Richard Hardy, and "Red" Frazier. The last two, from Bonne Terre, were awaiting trial on various robbery charges.

Fires at Fugitives.

May, who said he emptied his revolver at the prisoners when they failed to heed his shouts to stop, was playing cards in the front room of the jail with three trusties when he heard the explosion. The 28 prisoners were in the rear of the two-story jail. Sheriff Presnell was on the second floor.

"I heard a terrific explosion that pretty nearly knocked our card table over," May told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I ran out the front door just in time to see five men running across the yard. I yelled at them to stop, but they kept on. Then I let them have it. Two of them dropped. The other three ran out of range.

"Sheriff Presnell ran downstairs and got around to the side of the jail by the hole. He drew his revolver but none of the prisoners inside tried to get out."

The explosion blew out the window and tore a hole about four by seven feet in the wall. Other prisoners informed the Sheriff that the five men who rushed through the breach set off the explosive at 7:30 o'clock. The explosion was heard for blocks.

Posse in Pursuit.

Telephone wires near the jail were torn down by its force and communication with nearby towns was temporarily crippled. A posse of Deputy Sheriffs, reinforced by volunteers, was organized immediately to search for the three who escaped.

The authorities are trying to learn how the prisoners got possession of the explosive.

The prisoners in the jail were placed in their cells. It is customary to lock them in cells at night but to allow them to mingle in a large room during the day and early evening.

Farmington is 70 miles south of St. Louis.

2 YEARS IN FATAL SERUM CASE

Author of Scientific Error Which Killed 76 Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.

LUEBECK, Germany, Feb. 6.—The so-called "serum trial" arising from the deaths of 76 infants last summer after the administration of an anti-tuberculosis serum, ended today, when Prof. George Deycke, who assumed sole responsibility for the "scientific error," was sentenced to two years in prison.

A sentence of 15 months was imposed upon Dr. Altstaedt, one of several co-defendants. Another physician and a hospital nurse were acquitted.

15-YEAR-OLD CHINESE CORPORAL GIVES HIS VIEWS ON SITUATION

After Going to Town for Meal, He Is Convinced Japanese Will Be Driven Out.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—(Sunday)—Corporal Zee, 15 years old, of the Nineteenth Cantonese Route Army, enjoys the sound of shot and shell and, although he has had little sleep during the last week, he is having an interesting and amusing time at the front. He told about it today.

Feeling the need of a good meal, the Corporal left the battle line and walked three miles to Chenju village, on the western outskirts of Shanghai, where he had four bowls of rice, a dish of boiled vegetables and a few cups of tea. Thus fortified, he started on the return journey to the battlefront. He signaled a car and asked for a lift. The car was being driven by an American-educated Chinese officer in civilian clothes. Newspaper correspondents were in the back seat.

Zee had on a khaki uniform and carried complete equipment from haversack to canteen, but instead of heavy military hobnails he wore green tennis shoes.

Then he told his story in Chinese to the officer beside him. "I have had no sleep the last two nights, but we are having a fine time out there," he said. "I have just gone to Chenju for something hot to eat. It's cold on the battle front. When the real fighting starts we will drive out the Japanese and occupy the Chapei."

As the automobile neared the battle zone, Zee said he would walk across the fields. Smiling pleasantly he spoke his profuse thanks and started toward the front.

SMITH TO SETTLE QUESTION OF HIS CANDIDACY TOMORROW

Issues 144-Word Statement to Newspapers, but Marks it "Hold for Release."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today gave out a 144-word statement settling the question of whether he will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. "Here you are, boys," he said, "but remember, it's not to be published until Monday morning." Forty-six newspaper men, representing press associations and papers in all parts of the country, read the statement.

Smith was asked what he thought would be the dominant issue of the coming campaign. "I don't know," he said.

DEFINES 'G. O. P. DEPRESSION'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A Senate committee was told today by William Lemke of Fargo, N. D., that the definition of "a Republican depression" is "Herbert Clark Hoover solemnly astride a dead horse trying to win a race."

A half hundred farmers appearing before the Senate Finance Committee to seek remonetization of silver laughed and cheered as the definition was given.

GENEVA, Feb. 6.—Unofficial peace delegates today addressed the disarmament conference and presented petitions signed by more than 8,300,000 persons. Women of 50 nations, all wearing arm bands inscribed "pax" (peace) and sashes bearing the names of their countries, deposited on the President's table volume after volume and package after package of individual signatures to petitions for peace and disarmament.

Miss Mary Dingman, American representative of the world committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, spoke for 14 international women's organizations with 40,000,000 members in 56 countries.

After Miss Dingman, Mme. Steenberghe Engering, of the Netherlands, spoke briefly and in behalf of Catholic pacifists.

Then Dr. Joachim Mueller of Germany, presented Protestantism's entreaties for reductions of armaments.

American Makes Plea.

Jean Dupuy, of France, and James Green, Yale graduate and president of the intercollegiate council of the United States spoke in behalf of college students.

"It is my generation which will be called upon to surrender all they consider worthwhile in life in order to become targets for machine gun bullets and victims of the latest poison gas," Green said. "It is young men and women of my age who will be commanded to commit suicide. We desire to live and to live at peace. We desire to construct a world society providing freedom, equal opportunity and a sense of security."

After him came Paul Dupuis, of France, representing the League for the Rights of Man.

Plans 25 Per Cent Arms Cut.

Viscount Robert Cecil, president of the International Federation of League of Nations Societies, presented a proposal for a 25 per cent reduction of world armament expenses.

"We lay down," he said, "that equality in disarmament between the victors and vanquished in the World War should be recognized in principle and that steps in that direction should be taken by the present conference.

He outlined his plan as follows: "First, acceptance by all signatories of the disarmament treaty of the principle of budgetary limitation; that is limitation of the amount spent every year on armaments by each nation.

"Second, we propose prohibition for all nations of those kinds of armaments which now are forbidden to the vanquished Powers.

"Third, we recommend the establishment of the same system for international supervision of the armaments of all countries.

"We urge, on the naval side, that there shall be built no more ships of more than 10,000-ton size. Next, we desire the abolition of submarines. As to land armaments, we wish the abolition of tanks and large land guns.

"If the conference would agree to the abolition of military aircraft it would not only render offensive military operations more difficult, but it would abolish what is surely a most barbarous form of warfare, and would, in one important respect, equalize the armament conditions of the vanquished and victorious Powers in the late war."

French Proposal Criticised.

The delegates engaged in arguments over the merits of the plan presented yesterday by the head of the French delegation, Andre Tardieu, Minister of War, to make the League a world policeman, equipped to use force to prevent nations from fighting.

The Italian delegation, through an unofficial spokesman, denounced the French plan as a proposal for another armed state—"indeed a super-armed state." The Germans and British could find in it no word about disarmament, they said.

The Russian delegation scorned the plan and called it a means of increasing international insecurity. The American delegation made no comment.

Many observers expressed the conviction that the hostile reaction was exactly what Premier Laval of France wanted. Attacks upon the French plan, they said, would be likely to drive the French Left parties to support of the Government and strengthen the French Nationalist demand for an increase in means of defense.

Tardieu proposed to internationalize civil aviation, restrict to the League of Nations the right to dispose of heavy bombing planes of wide action, and to place at the

ALDERMEN LIKELY TO VOTE $100,000 AID FOR JOBLESS

Whether Relief Work Can Go on Depends on Matching City's Gift by Private Contributions.

CIVIC COMMITTEE MEETS TOMORROW

Meantime, Citizens' Body Carries On, Though Out of Funds, Hoping to Get Money Later.

Whether relief work for 60,000 of the destitute unemployed can be continued, and whether the handling of new cases can be resumed, will depend on this week's developments.

The Board of Aldermen is expected to pass tomorrow an emergency appropriation of $100,000, and two of the special tax bills which are to supply this and additional money. But no city money will be paid to the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment until an equal amount has been raised from private sources. This is the condition on which the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, at its meeting Friday, approved the appropriation and tax bills.

The committee of nine, named at Thursday afternoon's conference of business and civic leaders, will report at the meeting to be held in the Mayor's office at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Its task is to find a means of raising the money which will be required from private sources, to match the city's contribution. Frank C. Rand, board chairman of the International Shoe Co., heads the committee.

One proposal submitted to the committee of nine is Mayor Miller's plan of "assessing" wealthy persons and firms for amounts based on their recorded resources, and requesting payment, with the purpose of giving publicity to all compliances and all refusals.

Relief Committee Out of Money.

Morton J. May, vice chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, in a statement issued yesterday, repeated that the Citizens' Committee had exhausted its funds. He said:

"We are deeply conscious of our duty to our needy citizens, and to the public of St. Louis. The Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment is keeping its entire relief organization ready, so that, as soon as funds are available, we shall be in a position to meet relief needs as promptly and as efficiently as in the past.

"The public must realize that our immediate funds are exhausted and we have no money on hand today to pay our January bills. An additional $1,200,000 is needed to see us through the year, and even if $100,000 is voted now, it will not last for more than two weeks.

"In any case, we are not in a position to go ahead with our work until the money is placed at our disposal."

The $100,000 appropriation mentioned by May will not be released for the committee's use, Comptroller Nolte has said, until $100,000 is raised from private sources. The city will continue thereafter to require that appropriations be matched, $100,000 at a time, or in other large sums, by private gifts.

While the Citizens' Committee funds on hand have been exhausted, the committee is due to receive about $300,000 during the year 1932, on subscriptions made in the Community Fund campaign. Most of these subscriptions are paid in quarterly installments.

Seeking Private Gifts.

Comptroller Nolte has estimated that the four special tax measures proposed by him would yield $650,000 or more a year. The present objective of the committee of nine, to report tomorrow, is the raising of $600,000 by private gifts. As shown in May's statement, the Citizens' Committee deems at least $1,200,000 necessary.

The two special tax measures which were approved by the Board of Aldermen's committee on legislation yesterday, and which are expected to pass tomorrow, are the bill increasing the city gasoline tax from one-half cent to 1 cent a gallon, and the bill requiring parking lots to pay a license tax of 1 cent a square foot.

At the request of the Team and Truck Owners' Association, the gasoline tax bill was amended to make it definitely a temporary measure, with the tax reverting to the former rate Jan. 31, 1933. The bill was also changed to require dealers to report gasoline sales to the city monthly, instead of quarterly. The parking lot bill was changed to provide that permits

SOCIETY MAN WHO KILLED SUITOR OF SISTER ACQUITTED

Edward H. B. Allen Freed in Slaying of Francis A. Donaldson III—Jury Out 10 Hours.

DEFENDANT, GIRL, FATHER RECONCILED

Reporter Held Temporarily for Contempt When Cheering Breaks Out in the Courtroom.

By the Associated Press.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 6.—Edward H. B. Allen, 23-year-old society man, tonight was freed of the charge of murder in the killing of Francis A. Donaldson, III, son of a socially prominent family. The jury of 10 men and two women were out exactly 10 hours before they arrived at their verdict.

The tall, thin young defendant shook like a leaf as he stood up to hear the jury's verdict. When he heard the words "not guilty" he almost collapsed.

Several persons started to cheer the verdict and a dozen bailiffs cried "order" quelling the incipient disturbance.

"Who started that?" asked Judge Harold G. Knight. "That man did it, Your Honor," shouted a bailiff, pointing at a reporter for a Norristown newspaper near the door.

The Judge ordered him placed in custody for a hearing in contempt of court. Judge Knight had warned the crowd against a demonstration under pain of a citation for contempt.

Meets Friends, Relatives.

The jury brought in its verdict a few minutes before 11 o'clock. Allen immediately was surrounded by friends. He was congratulated and patted on the back and many hands were outstretched for him to grasp.

As quickly as he could be taken through the crowd he was escorted from the place into a nearby room where he met friends and relatives.

Newspaper men were restrained from leaving the room while the contempt proceedings were being conducted by the court. After testimony of a number of newspaper men, the offending reporter was discharged.

A half an hour before the jury gave its verdict it came into court for instructions on the law on justifiable homicide in the case of self defense.

The court told the jurors if the defendant "believed himself in danger of great bodily harm, then he was justified in shooting Donaldson."

This was taken to mean by the crowd that the jury would soon return with an acquittal.

Family Is Reconciled.

Shortly after young Allen was taken to the side room, Rose was brought in. She ran to the outstretched arms of her nervous but smiling brother, buried her head on his shoulders and gave way to tears.

"Oh, Eddie," she cried. "Oh, sister," said Eddie.

Edward's father, Horace Allen, was in court and threw his arms around his son. The father, who has been quite ill since the shooting and in danger of collapse, showed his first broad smile since the trial started.

Henry G. Pearce, close friend of the Allen family, said that a permanent reconciliation had been effected. Prior to the trial Rose had visited her brother only once or twice in jail and had barely spoken to her father. She was said to have been embittered because the father was the first to make public her alleged relationship with Donaldson.

Story of the Shooting.

Allen killed Donaldson with a shotgun in the Allen apartment in the fashionable Green Hill Farms Hotel near Philadelphia on the night of Nov. 9. The shooting followed a quarrel over Donaldson's attentions to Rose, 18 years old. He had been forbidden to come to the apartment to see Rose and she left her home and met Donaldson and his friend, A. G. H. Lucas at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. She told them she had been ordered out of the house and Donaldson and Lucas, according to the latter's testimony, went to the Allen apartment to bring about peace.

Donaldson and Lucas were ordered out of the place, but refused to go. A fight followed in which young Allen testified he was badly beaten. He left the apartment and went six miles to the home of a friend, obtained his

Correspondent Describes Visit to Woosung Forts

Finds All Buildings in Compound Demolished by Japanese Fire, but Chinese Continue Their Resistance.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS.
Associatd Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

SHANGHAI (Sunday) Feb. 7.—Three days of bombing and shelling have caused terrible havoc in the Woosung forts, but the red, blue and white flag of China still waves over their torn walls. This I discovered today when I penetrated to the forts in an effort to settle rumors that the strategic position at the mouth of the Whangpoo River had fallen into the hands of the Japanese.

Not only do the Chinese remain, but the elaborate defense works they are constructing indicate they have no intention of evacuating. Although at least four of the forts' six-inch guns have been silenced and many of the remainder are so antiquated that they are useless, the Chinese garrison is prepared with rifles and machine guns to resist any attempt by the besieging Japanese warships to land troops. Already one landing attempt has been beaten off.

Nearly All Buildings Wrecked.

Entering the gates of the fortress after a two-mile walk through a shell-scarred area, I saw a scene of complete devastation. Nearly every building in the fort compound had been reduced to shattered tile and splintered timber. A few structures held a semblance of their original form, but all of them had been shelled or bombed. The terrain was so badly torn up it was impossible to walk in a straight line for more than a few yards at a time. The size of the holes indicated the Japanese were using bombs of tremendous power. I measured the largest of the bomb pits and found them to be 30 feet across and 12 feet deep.

Looking out to sea, I counted seven Japanese ships of war, two miles off shore.

The characteristic Chinese attitude was expressed by the forts' commander in these words: "We are fighting a defensive war. We do not fire unless we are fired at. We are determined not to yield to the Japanese invaders. We are prepared to sacrifice our lives to hold the forts."

Still Time for Mah Jong.

There was no lack of morale among the troops. The men were cheerful and seemed to enjoy telling through an interpreter about the horror they had experienced.

Because of the protection offered by underground shelters, the casualties had been comparatively slight, despite the fact that several hundred air bombs and nearly as many shells from Japanese naval guns had exploded within the enclosure. The Chinese losses in the Woosung area were estimated at 30 dead and 30 wounded.

On my way out to the fortifications my automobile was stopped by a trench across the road two miles away. I walked a few hundred yards, passed a succession of barricades and was stopped at a block house by soldiers who quickly let me go my way so that they might resume their game of mah jong.

$12,500,000 DAMAGE DONE SHANGHAI BUSINESS PROPERTY

U. S. Commercial Attache Reports Loss Caused During Fighting Thus Far.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Julean Arnold, commercial attache at Shanghai, today reported to the Commerce Department that the damage to the Shanghai business community arising from hostilities thus far is estimated at about $12,500,000.

The losses to the Commercial Press, the largest printing house in China, were estimated at about $3,250,000. It was destroyed along with a valuable Oriental library. The Commercial Press supplied about 75 per cent of the equipment for schools thoughout China. It had operated for 35 years and had about 3500 employes. Arnold said reconstruction of the plant was contemplated.

The department was also informed today that Chinese-Japanese difficulties had resulted in the closing of the sugar mills at Osaka, one of the leading Japanese industrial centers. Commercial Attache Butts at Tokio cabled the department that lack of demand from Chinese sources was the cause Trade with China proper showed no improvement, Butts reported. Increased shipments to Dairen of machinery and general construction material, he said, would seem to indicate that additional capital was being invested in Japanese industry in Manchuria.

FIGURES ON POSSIBLE SAVING BY REDUCING U. S. SALARIES

If Cuts Reached Down to $2000 Class $55,383,465 Would Be Conserved.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Bureau of Efficiency has reported that a 10 per cent reduction in salaries of Government employes and those in the military service receiving $2000 and more annually would result in a saving of $55,383,465.

The report was submitted to Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, who has been conducting a study of the question of cutting Government salaries as a result of congressional efforts to save through that means.

It showed that two-thirds of the 1,023,373 employes receive salaries of $2000 and less a year, amounting to $559,756,453. Rainey had favored a reduction of 10 per cent on salaries above $5000, but the report showed that only $3,000,000 could be saved annually by such a cut. He indicated that the saving was so small it would not be worth attempting. There was general opposition to a reduction in the salaries up to $3500 a year, he said, in expressing an opinion that it would not be made.

The report of the Efficiency Bureau showed that 31 Government employes, including Cabinet, Vice-President, the Speaker, receive $15,000 annually, with one (Gen. John J Pershing), receiving $21,500 for a total of $552,000.

TROOPS LAND, AND JAPANESE ATTACK FORTS AT WOOSUNG

FOREIGNERS ADVISED TO GET OUT OF AREA

Heaviest Bombardment of Nine Days' Battle Under Way — Defenders of Shanghai Put Fresh Men in Front Line.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7. (Sunday)—Japanese troops, rushed to aid Bluejackets fighting in Shanghai, landed today at Woosung and immediately attacked that city of Chinese forts.

Start Fighting at Once.

Two boatloads of men came ashore first, fighting as soon as they stepped on Chinese soil. There were several hundred men, supported by seven Japanese armored cars.

The first force landed west of Woosung, on the north bank of the Whangpoo River, and at once endeavored to push through the city of Woosung.

Pevious to the landing Japanese airplanes again went up over Shanghai.

Seven armored cars were seen approaching the forts and it was apparent the Japanese planned to dig out the Chinese there and in the surrounding town.

Admiral Shiosawa, was reported to have notified Foreign Consular officials that it would be advisable to have any of their respective nationals at Woosung leave that section.

Heavy Fighting in Chapei.

The Chinese strongholds in the shambles of Chapei, defended by fresh troops, were battered early this morning by the heaviest Japanese bombardment they have undergone during the nine days of the Shanghai battle.

Five hundred Japanese bluejackets were landed today from the destroyers Yakaze and Okikaze, which arrived from Japan.

Six-Inch Guns in Use.

The heavy rumble from the region of the Japanese headquarters on the northern edge of the International Settlement indicated that six-inch guns had been set up there to blast the Chinese from their positions about the North Station in Chapei, only half a mile away.

Echoes of the bombardment reverberated throughout Shanghai. Buildings rattled. The International Settlement was in darkness but the sky north was lighted at frequent intervals by the bursts of the guns.

Chinese troops that have been in the lines during the last few days, standing up under heavy bombardment, were relieved during the night. This correspondent, in a tour behind the Chinese front, witnessed the relief movement.

The Japanese are opposing the Nineteenth Route Army, supposedly the best fighting outfit in the country, but by Western standards they appeared deficient in training and short of equipment.

The most impressive thing about these troops is their extreme youth. Many of them seem to be no more than 14 years old, but they took their hazardous position with stoicism.

Some of them carried antiquated long-barreled pistols, and some had obsolete rifles. Only a few of them were equipped with steel helmets, and these obviously had been salvaged from the Japanese.

Catholic Hospital Searched.

Japanese Bluejackets searched the Catholic general hospital on the banks of Soochow creek in the heart of the International Settlement at daybreak today, charging that snipers had been active there.

French Franciscan sisters, who operate the hospital, protested that the charges were absurd, but the Bluejackets ignored their protests and entered the building, searching at least part of it. No snipers were found by the Japanese, who went to the roof.

The whole countryside to the rear of the Chinese line has been covered with an intricate system of trenches. In exposed spots, sandbag shelters had been put up.

Although roads leading away from the front were jammed with Chinese refugees, a considerable

BILLS APPROVED FOR $110,000,000 AID TO FARMERS

LARGEST TO HELP DRAINAGE DISTRICTS

Another Provides Funds for Credit Corporations, a Third Extends Drouth Loans a Year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Three bills carrying more than $110,000,000 for aid to the farmers were approved today by the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

The committee ordered favorable reports on bills to create a revolving fund of $100,000,000 for loans to drainage, levee and irrigation districts; to set up a $10,000,000 fund for loans to agricultural credit corporations, and to extend the 1931 drouth loans for a year.

The $100,000,000 fund bill was introduced by Senator Glenn, (Rep.), Ill., for loans to allow drainage, levee and irrigation districts to meet their obligations on public works improvements. The loans would be made for not more than 40 years, with an interest rate of three per cent.

The $10,000,000 fund bill was introduced by Senator George, (Dem.), Georgia, for loans to aid in the formation of agricultural credit corporations and livestock loan companies qualified to do business with Federal intermediate credit banks.

The drouth loan bill was introduced by Senator Barkley, (Dem.), Kentucky.

The Senate was in week-end recess. It will resume debate Monday on the La Follette-Costigan bill to appropriate $375,000,000 for Federal unemployment relief.

Silas H. Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today threw his influence strongly against any direct Federal aid to the unemoplyed in a letter to members of that organization.

Strawn said proposals for Federal relief to the unemployed should be "ended promptly and decisively" in order that "no person or institution, private or public, may have opportunity to shirk his responsibility on the ground that any part of it has been shifted elsewhere."

The American Federation of Labor is preparing to support the relief legislation.

Wisconsin to Distribute First of $8,000,000 Fund Soon.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 6. — The $8,000,000 unemployment relief bill passed at the special session of the State Legislature was signed by Gov. Philip F. LaFollette today. The first $3,000,000 of the relief fund, to be apportioned to local governments on the basis of $1 for each inhabitant listed in the 1930 census, will be distributed in seven or eight days, an announcement from the Governor's office says. The $3,-00,000 is to be taken out of the State's general fund.

The relief fund will be rasied by surtaxes on 1931 cash incomes ranging from 1 to 7 per cent, the rates being identical with the regular income tax rates. The income subject to the surtax must, however, include the dividends of Wisconsin corporations, heretofore, exempt, and must not allow any deduction for investment losses.

'NIGHTMARE OF ARMAMENT' IS ASSAILED BY GRANDI

No Security So Long as Race for Dominance Lasts, Says Italian Minister.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Asserting arms never brought any nation peace and security, Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister, urged in a radio broadcast from Geneva today that the world disarmament conference attack its problem from a "common sense viewpoint."

Grandi, the chief Italian delegate, declared his own country was ready to accept "any minimum level" of armaments that is accepted by other nations, and even the abolition of certain arms.

Citing an increase of from $3,000,000,000 to more than $4,000,000,000 for world military expenditures between 1925 and 1930, Grandi said: "All this is absurd, and I think our countries cannot look with calm indifference at this race in armaments."

Grandi asserted the "nightmare" of armament competition was "one of the chief causes of the lack of confidence and of the unrest so largely responsible for the present depression."

His address, broadcast over the NBC network, was accepted by international observers as Italy's official answer to the French proposal for a world court and the promise of security before disarmament.

"We can debate forever on the theory of security," Grandi said, "but the fact is this, that with these armaments there can be no security, and we must face the problem boldly and cut down armaments."

OGDEN L. MILLS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Outside of Washington and New York the fear has been expressed that President Hoover's Cabinet will be weakened by the loss of Andrew W. Mellon, Pittsburg financier, who resigned as Secretary of the Treasury to become Ambassador to Great Britain. Among those who know his successor, Ogden L. Mills, the contrary opinion prevails. Politicians, newspaper men and other close observers will be surprised if Mills does not shortly emerge as the strong man of this administration.

An unusual character, with an unusual history is this hard-riding, hard-hitting, hard-working aristocrat, who steps into the important Treasury post at the age of 47 after most of his friends considered his political career ended and the others wondered why he ever began it. Loud, cocksure, impatient of opposition, he may never be popular, but he will be tremendously influential. He knows exactly what he wants, and he is not afraid of anything that breathes.

Compared with his venerable predecessor, whose fortune has been variously estimated at from $200,000,000 to $700,000,000, Mills might be called a poor man. Nevertheless, he is not precisely in want. He is popularly supposed to be worth $20,000,000—which means that the millionaires still are in a comfortable majority in the Hoover Cabinet.

Took Post in 1927.

Mills became Undersecretary of the Treasury in 1927. Because of the depression and the foreign debt situation, the financial problems of the Government have been singularly difficult during the last two years, and the burden of handling them has fallen mainly on Mills. Almost the instant that Hoover succeeded Coolidge in the White House, Mellon's influence began to wane, and for more than a year his retirement has seemed imminent.

The situation is illustrated by an incident. At one of his regular press conferences, Secretary Mellon expounded what he considered the advantages of a sales tax. Mills opposes such a tax, believing it would be impossible to administer. A reporter met him in the corridor and told him of the Mellon interview.

"Did the old man say that?" smiled Mills. "I'll have to keep an eye on him." When speaking of Mellon he always employed the term, "the old man," but with a touch of affection.

The new Secretary was born to the purple, and in nearly every word and gesture he shows that he is aware of the fact. The blue blood—and some say the brains—are derived from the maternal side of the family. His great-great-great-great grandfather was Robert Livingston, famous Chancellor of New York, who was one of the committee of five originally designated to draft the declaration of independence, and who later administered the presidential oath to George Washington.

Rise of the Mills Fortune.

The fortune is of later origin. Darius O. Mills, the Secretary's grandfather, was a small New England merchant who joined the California gold rush. But instead of prospecting, he pursued the surer course of opening a store, where he dealt openly and evenly with the miners, exchanging a pinch of salt for a pinch of gold dust, and a pound of flour for a pound of nuggets. Eventually he returned to New York, investing the proceeds of his California venture in Manhattan real estate and railroad stocks, and left a fortune of $40,000,000.

An interesting and useful philanthrophy resulted from old Darius' contact with homeless and destitute men in the gold fields. He established and endowed the string of Mills hotels, where a man can get a bed for 10 or 15 cents.

Ogden Mills was born in an aristocratic atmosphere. The event occurred at the summer home of his parents, at the fashionable Newport resort. He was graduated from Harvard at the age of 19 and then took a law course at Cambridge. He entered practice in New York. He was divorced from his first wife and later married Mrs. Dorothy Randolph Fell.

Either as a result of his contact with the courts, or as a heritage from the Livingstons, he soon became interested in a public career. Turning his back on many of the pleasures offered by wealth, leisure and social position, he plunged into ward politics, and became treasurer of the Republican County Committee at the age of 27. Then he ran for Congress and was soundly licked.

Deciding to start over again, and a little lower, he ran for and was elected to the New York State Senate, where, despite his youth, he soon was recognized as an authority on finance. His enemies—and he managed to make plenty of them—called him a snob, a "lily-fingered aristocrat," and other names, but few questioned his courage, and fewer challenged his facts.

In the World War he was commissioned a Captain, and served as a staff officer overseas.

The Harding landslide of 1920 enabled him at last to win the seat in Congress from New York's "silk stocking" district. In the House his strident voice, supercilious manner, and obvious contempt for those who opposed him, involved him in many acrimonious clashes and one occasion three members had difficulty in preventing the Mississippi bantam, Representative Rankin, from proceeding with his declared intention to "knock his haughty block off."

Goes in Little for Society.

Mills has a florid face, with broad, distended nostrils. The combination of his voice with a pronounced Harvard accent, produces rather curious speech effects. His rugged figure is becoming a trifle stout, but his energy seems inexhaustible. Notwithstanding his high connections and his aristocratic turn of mind, he goes in little for formal Washington society, and often works in his office until after midnight.

He has unusually strong likes and dislikes. He likes President Hoover, race horses, Jack Garner, a big cigar, highly flavored foods and beverages, his private yacht, and a rough-and-tumble argument with anyone who disagrees with him. He dislikes high surtaxes on the wealthy, most Southern Congressmen, veterans' compensation and French politicians. He drives his subordinates hard, but not as hard as he drives himself.

Newspaper men have observed an improvement in his manner in recent years, and explain it partly on the ground that his experience in the hurly-burly of the House "softened him up," and partly on the ground of his admitted ambition to rise higher in politics. Members of the House whose blood used to boil over his sneers and sarcasms now treat him with respect and a certain admiration when he appears before their committees.

Jolted in Race With Smith.

His experience in running for Governor of New York against Al Smith in 1926 undoubtedly had a chastening effect. Mills is shrewd, brave and resourceful, and was making a rather effective campaign until he alluded to Smith's public and private life in what seemed a disparaging tone. In all likelihood he used the phrase carelessly, to round out a sentence. It is difficult to believe he intended to reflect on Smith's private life, generally conceded to be above reproach.

But Mills was dealing with one of the most adroit and formidable politicians this country has known. The blunder was capitalized and dramatized instantly. With "Katie" and all the children ranged upon the stage before a vast audience, Smith, in a shaking voice, challenged Mills or any man to find a blemish on the purity of his private life. I am told by an eye-witness that Mills, listening to the Smith speech on the radio, turned white when he realized what was happening. Smith beat him by 250,000 votes. Many of his friends thought he would abandon public life. But a year after his unsuccessful campaign Coolidge made him Undersecretary of the Treasury, and he plunged back into a life of work and strife.

The new Secretary probably would resent being called a Progressive. He believes frankly that those fit to govern are limited to a small and select class, and that he is a member of it. He openly supports the Coolidge-Mellon theory that the way to produce prosperity is to give big business virtually everything it wants and allow the fruits to trickle down to "the lower classes." Instead of drastically increasing the taxes of the wealthy, he urges "broadening the base" of taxation, in order to catch people who are not taxed now.

In the Matter of Cigars.

One of the most conspicuous changes resulting from the shifting of Mellon and Mills will be in the size of the secretarial cigar. Both men have their private brands made especially for them. The Mellon cigar is as thin as a pencil, and of moderate length, while the Mills smoke is a huge Corona-Corona-Corona affair, carried at a cocky angle. Jack Garner can always make him mad by calling him "Oggie."

In such a Cabinet as Hoover's an aggressive, dominating, self-confident character like Mills will make a powerful impression. He reaches decisions quickly, and supports them fearlessly. He has a fine command of words, and uses them forcefully and fluently. He probably knows more at this moment about the condition of national and international finance than any other man in public life in this country.

The temper of the times is not propitious for the theory that Government should be of the people and chiefly by and for the benefit of a favored few but that will not change the opinion of Ogden L. Mills, the hard-boiled aristocrat of the Treasury.

Besides these proposals, the French plan envisaged the prohibition of bombardments from aircraft or by artillery at more than (no figure given) kilometers from the front line in land warfare and the prohibition of the use by aircraft of artillery of projectiles containing poison gases, bacteria or materials that are specifically incendiary.

JAPAN FORMALLY DENIES WAGING OF AGGRESSIVE WAR

Acting Only 'to Put End to Menace of Chinese Armies and Restore Safety' to Shanghai.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

TOKIO, Feb. 6.—The Japanese Government issued a formal declaration tonight that it has no intention whatever of entering upon an aggressive campaign in Shanghai and that its purpose in sending army units there, is "to put an end to the menace of the Chinese armies and to relieve inhabitants of all nationalities from the strain of fear." An early announcement said the government had decided to send a military force to China.

Japan has no political ambition in the Shanghai region "nor any thought of encroaching on the rights and interests of other powers," the government declared.

The statement did not set forth the size of the army expedition that is being sent to relieve the bluejackets now in Shanghai, but said that its strength would be limited to what is "absolutely required."

The official announcement covered six typewritten pages, most of which were devoted to denouncing the anti-Japanese movement in China and reiterating the Japanese position that this movement was the real cause of the Shanghai trouble.

Result of Pressure.

The English version of the statement was issued much sooner than had been expected. It was understood this speed was the result of pressure at home and abroad for dispelling the mystery which had veiled plans for the Shanghai expedition.

The government's explanation, an authoritative source said, would be published in London, Paris, Geneva and Shanghai. It was understood the government decided to issue the statement after Great Britain and the United States conveyed "expressions of disappointment" to Tokio on learning of the plans to dispatch fresh troops to Shanghai.

The government declared the new expeditionary force "will be guided solely by the policy of protecting the common interests of all the Powers."

"No Other Motive."

"The Japanese Government," the statement continued, "is prompted by no other motive than that of discharging its international duty and of safeguarding the large number of Japanese nationals and property worth hundreds of millions. * * * Unless the Chinese, by continuing hostilities or by obstructing our army in attaining these ends, compel it to take necessary action, there is no intention whatever that it should enter upon an aggressive campaign."

Foreswearing any political ambition or any thought of encroachments on other Powers, the statement went on:

"What they (the Japanese) do desire is to promote the safety and prosperity of that region by co-operation with the other Powers and by mutual assistance, so contributing to peace and well-being in the Far East."

China "Uncontrollable."

The statement said the sending of a new force to Shanghai was "no more significant than the sending of bluejackets in accordance with the practice on several previous occasions," and pointed out that "there are obvious limitations to the naval units which can be landed."

"In the existing state of affairs," the Government explanation continued, "China is uncontrolled and uncontrollable, and in view of historical precedents in such cases we can have no assurance as to the possible behavior of the vast Chinese armies concentrated in the Shanghai area, should unscrupulous civilian population remained not far from the lines.

The Nanking road was so crowded that it was difficult to get an automobile through the plodding refugees. Other safety seekers, bending low under heavy loads of household goods, marched along the tracks of the railway leading to Nanking.

These refugees had learned the technique of self-preservation against airplane bombing. Now and again a Japanese plane could be heard in the darkness overhead, and each time the Chinese flung themselves to the ground, face down.

While air raiders were showering bombs on Chapei Saturday afternoon, it was reported that two American mission houses within the International Settlement had been attacked.

One report was that Japanese bluejackets forcibly entered and ransacked the American Presbyterian Mission and Press on North Szchuen road, well within the area occupied by the Japanese, despite the fact that an official notice of the American Consul was nailed up on the entrance to the property.

(Officials of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in New York said they had no reason to think their mission in Shanghai had been ransacked. They said the board's mission might have been confused with a mission press, formerly owned by the board but sold Jan. 1. Whether the mission press was occupied by Americans these officials did not know).

The mission of the American Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Hongkew, which was ransacked by Japanese bluejackets last week, was shelled by light artillery and officials who were in the building trying to find out how much damage had been done by the bluejackets, retired under shell fire. Whether the projectiles came from Japanese or Chinese guns was not known.

Two Japanese Air Raids.

Two air raids were put on Saturday by the Japanese. Shortly before noon 14 planes appeared over the Italian settlement and Chapei and soon bombs were raining down. The attack was brief but at 3 o'clock the planes swept out of the mists over the lower Yangtze and dropped more bombs.

Then the artillery and machine guns got going. Chinese anti-aircraft gunners opened up on the planes at 4:30 p. m., but the ships continued their maneuvers, dropping their charges as they picked out their objectives on the ground.

The airmen withdrew just as darkness fell. Then a heavy gun opened up, flinging shells into Chapei at frequent intervals. The belief was expressed that perhaps the gun was on one of the Japanese warships on the Whagoo.

The expected Chinese air activity materialized only in the appearance of two Chinese airmen, who sailed over the metropolitan area but soon disappeared to the west.

Just outside the eastern border of the International Settlement along the Shanghai-Woosung highway, the Japanese naval forces started work on an airplane landing field.

In addition to Japanese, a group of "white" Russians labored on the field. Japanese airmen tested it by taking off and landing as the work progressed. Observers expressed the belief that this activity indicated plans by the Japanese for air operations on a larger scale.

Japanese naval officials declared they had surrounded the headquarters of a group of Chinese gunmen who were "pledged to kill all Japanese."

Continued sniping, it was said, was seriously undermining the morale of the Japanese bluejackets. One report was that the snipers were well organized and that among them were 86 women.

Chinese banks announced that in view of the disrupted state of business here all loans in the future will be charged interest at the rate of 2 per cent daily, or 730 per cent a year.

Five American missionaries stationed at the town of Liuho on the Yangtze north of Shanghai sent word that they were heading for the International Settlement over a precarious route which would take them through both the Chinese and Japanese lines north of here. They have learned they said, that a Japanese advance on Shanghai is to be made from many directions and that additional troops are to be landed at Liuho. The missionaries are Grace Crandall of North Loup, Neb., Rose Palmbor, George Thorngate and H. E. Davis, all of Milton, Wis., and Myriam Shaw, Salem, W. Va.

Municipal Council's Note.

The Municipal Council of Shanghai's international settlement told Chinese officials that the Japanese Government, not the council, was "solely responsible for acts of Japanese forces within the settlement."

Its statement was made in a note in reply to repeated protests from the Chinese Government and Mayor Wu Teh-chen that settlement authorities were allowing Japanese forces to use the foreign section as a base for their anti-Chinese activities.

The settlement's neutrality exists only as a result of agreements among the powers having political or other interests within the settlement, the note handed to Mayor Wu said, and such neutrality could only be maintained by the same powers.

"Japan is one of these powers and the Japanese Government, not the Municipal Council, is solely responsible for the acts of Japanese forces within the settlement," the note added.

Hostility Toward Americans.

Americans in the foreign settlement are feeling much of a hostile Chinese sentiment directed against all foreigners here, because Hongkew, which the Japanese are occupying, was an American concession 65 years ago and in many Chinese minds still is known as an area administered by Americans.

The Chinese Government reiterated its protest yesterday against Japanese use of the settlement as the base for their military operations, it was learned from Nanking today. Identical notes were handed to the American and British Ministers, requesting them to bring about an end to what the notes called unjustifiable action on the part of settlement authorities in permitting the situation to prevail. The question was regarded today as having become more serious.

ILLINOIS' $20,000,000 RELIEF BILLS SIGNED

Money for Unemployed Will Be Available Probably Tomorrow or Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 6.—Gov. Emmerson today signed relief bills for the distribution of $20,000,000 among the unemployed and destitute of the State. The measures were passed by the Senate last night. The money will be available probably by Monday or Tuesday.

While most of the money is likely to be spent in Chicago, an administrative commission will have the right to aid any downstate community in caring for the unemployed.

Enactment of the relief legislation was one of the most rapid in the history of the Illinois Assembly. The bills were presented in the House Monday.

Downstate members opposed the program on the ground that it might result in a sharp tax increase, as the plan called for advancing the State tax rate 25 or 30 cents, and issuing tax anticipation against this increase.

The increase will not be collected, however, if voters approve a $25,000,000 bond issue in the fall. The bond issue would be retired by gasoline tax receipts.

BOTH SIDES REST IN MURDER TRIAL OF RUTH JUDD

Arguments Are Postponed Until Tomorrow When Court Is Informed They Will Take Several Hours.

GUARD DEMANDED BY STATE ALIENIST

He Also Asks That Defendant's Husband Be Searched—Plea to Carry Pistol Is Refused.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 6.—Evidence in the murder trial of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd was completed late today after 13 days of testimony and wrangling.

The State, closing on the declaration of its star rebuttal witness, Dr. Joseph Catton—"she is sane"—prepared to demand the death penalty for the killing of Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi.

Closing with an attempt to discredit the San Francisco psychiatrist's testimony, the defense passed by its right to call witnesses in surrebuttal. It stands on the contention Mrs. Judd was "insane—unable to distinguish right from wrong" when and if "she slew two women friends last Oct. 16."

Mrs. Judd is being tried for the killing of Mrs. Le Roi. She has still another charge hanging over, the murder of Miss Hedvig Samuelson.

Night Session Abandoned.

Judge Howard C. Speakman, in recessing court against his will until Monday, served notice on counsel for both sides he intends to prepare his jury instructions tomorrow, "and I do not intend to spend all Monday forenoon arguing about them."

Judge Speakman had hoped, he informed counsel, to be able to retire the jury for its verdict after a night session tonight.

The sarcastic tongue of Paul Schenck, veteran defense counsel leader, lashing all day long at Dr. Catton, prevented the Court from carrying its speeding-up program into effect.

When Schenck ceased his attack on the psychiatrist at 4:35 p. m., and both sides rested, Judge Speakman informed the jury it was unlikely arguments could be completed before midnight.

During the forenoon Dr. Catton, who took the stand in an apparent nervous state over what he said were threats against his life, flared resentfully when Schenck questioned his qualifications and ability to pass on the sanity of Mrs. Judd.

Doctor Asks for Guard.

Dr. Catton, citing a purported threat received during the night, demanded today that a guard of Sheriff's deputies be placed over him and expressed desire to be allowed to carry a pistol. Neither was granted, authorities informing him they were convinced the supposed threat was a hoax and his fears imaginary.

Dr. William C. Judd, husband of the defendant, was searched at Dr. Catton's insistence. No weapons were found.

Dr. Catton was questioned closely by Schenck regarding his testimony. He had quoted Mrs. Judd as informing him of a prolonged love affair with J. J. Halloran, Phoenix lumber dealer; that she loved Halloran "with all my heart and soul;" that there would not have been "any Ruth Judd case without Jack Halloran," and "nobody but Halloran took a drink," at the apartment of Mrs. Le Roi and Miss Samuelson the night they were killed.

Spoofing About Halloran.

"Do you believe her at all—anything she says?" demanded Schenck, when Dr. Catton asserted he thought Mrs. Judd had been "spoofing" him on several statements.

"I believe this girl was in love with Jack Halloran," the witness said.

"What was your interest," Schenck pressed, "to find out whether somebody else was involved?" "Purely psychiatric."

"Did you believe she loved Jack Halloran so much she would protect him by keeping silent?" "No—I believe she was spoofing me."

"Well, now, isn't it a fact, lying carried out to a certain extent becomes a psychopathic symptom?" "Only in a small percentage of cases."

Schenck dropped his questioning of the quick-witted alienist when the latter refused to be drawn into admission he had taken materials for his opinion from any reference books the attorney cited to him.

As he entered the place he met Donaldson and Lucas and the shooting followed.

Confusion in Courtroom.

Young Allen contended that he fired to scare and not to kill. On the other hand, Lucas, the only witness to the tragedy, testified that Allen deliberately aimed the gun and shot.

Allen on the witness stand told the jury that his family was opposed to Donaldson's attentions to Rose because he had betrayed her. Rose took the witness stand and testified that her brother had threatened to blow Donaldson's head off if he came near the place.

When the court finally adjourned tonight after the verdict was rendered and Allen was discharged, the court room was in confusion. Spectators leaped over the seats and walked across tables to members of the Allen family, attorneys, and others identified with the trial to offer congratulations.

Shouts of "We Want Lucas."

Unable to reach Allen in the prisoner's room to which he was taken, his friends milled about and cheered him.

The courthouse tonight was surrounded by a crowd of several thousand persons, clamoring to get into the court room or waiting to hear the verdict. Added to those who came to hear what the jury had to say was the usual Saturday night throng from the surrounding countryside.

The crowd became so great that an extra force of police was called to maintain control. The courthouse corridors were cleared and after that the crowd in the streets was kept moving in order that traffic should not be congested.

There were shouts, "We want Lucas." The shouts were more in the ways of jeers than they were in threats and the police paid little attention to them.

The case moved rapidly today when court opened. Former State Senator Fletcher W. Stites, of counsel for the defense, pleaded for freedom of the young man, asserting he was justified in defending himself when he felt his life was in peril.

Stites declared that Lucas was morally responsible for the killing. Lucas, he said, went to the apartment in the guise of a peacemaker, but refused to leave the place when so ordered and urged Donaldson on to beat young Allen. "God deliver us from the meddler," exclaimed the attorney.

District Attorney Stewart Nase in his final address to the jury demanded a verdict of guilty but did not specify the degree.

RELEASED FROM PRISON WHEN GUILTY MAN CONFESSES CRIME

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 6.—Alvernon L. "Doc" Lytle was freed from State penitentiary here today after serving nearly two years of a 12 to 15 year sentence for a bank robbery he did not commit. He said he held "no hard feelings" toward anyone over his imprisonment.

Lytle gained liberty on a temporary order by Gov. Charles W. Bryan after Nebraska officers verified a confession made by John Webster in Peoria, Ill., that he—and not Lytle—had robbed the Exchange National Bank of Minden, Neb., Dec. 20, 1929, of $500. Fred Kingsley, the bank president, in a formal affidavit said he was convinced of Lytle's innocence.

Lytle, cook for the prison Warden since his incarceration, left for Wymore, Neb., to meet his wife and their 18-months-old son.

Bank and State officials are considering plans for compensating Lytle for his $1000 debt piled up in defending himself.

Lytle was formerly a Deputy Sheriff and Chief of Police at Wymore.

NOTED U. S. DETECTIVE WEDS FORMER TYPIST

Edward E. Conroy Who Caught De Autremont Brothers, Marries St. Louis Girl.

A romance which began three years ago in the St. Louis office of the United States Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, culminated yesterday in the marriage of Edward E. Conroy, formerly special agent in charge here, and Miss Rose Mary Kipping, then a stenographer in the office.

Conroy, who is now in charge of the Omaha office of the bureau, and Miss Kipping were married at St. Luke's Catholic Church, Bellevue and Dale avenues, by the Rev. Joseph M. O'Toole, assistant pastor. The best man was Howard Williams, Assistant United States Attorney, and the bridesmaid Miss Betty Kipping, sister of the bride. The Conroys left after the ceremony for a honeymoon in the South.

Mrs. Conroy, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter P. Kipping, 7125 South avenue, Maplewood, was a temporary employe in the Bureau office when Conroy was placed in charge in December, 1928. Shortly afterward her assignment was made permanent. She is 26 years old and a graduate of the Rosati-Kain High School.

Conroy was transferred to Oklahoma City in December, 1930, and later to Omaha, but he made frequent trips to St. Louis during the last year. He is 36 years old and has had a varied career since his appointment as a Department of Justice agent 10 years ago. A native of Utah, he attended Cornell University, left school to serve overseas in the Marine Corps as a Second Lieutenant and returned to Cornell after the war to receive his bachelor's degree in 1920. He won the intercollegiate lightweight wrestling championship while at Cornell.

Chief among Conroy's experiences as a Federal agent was his capture in 1927 of Ray and Roy de Autremont, twins, who, with their brother, Hugh, had held up a Southern Pacific train in Oregon four years before and escaped after killing four of the train crew. Conroy followed a clew to Steubenville, O., where he learned the twins were working in a factory under assumed names. He captured them by a ruse, and without a struggle. Hugh had already been arrested in the Philippines. The three brothers are now serving life terms in Oregon.

Conroy was chosen to head several Congressional investigations of Federal Judges including those of George W. English of East St. Louis and Francis A. Winslow of the Southern District of New York, both of whom resigned their offices.

STEADY INCREASE IN SALES OF MILK BY WOMEN REPORTED

40 Routes Established and 30 of Them Have More Than 100 Patrons Each.

A steady increase in milk sales by women under the direction of the Emergency Employment Committee of the Child Conservation Conference was reported yesterday by Mrs. Norman Florsheim, chairman, who said that 40 women are at work at present on established routes and that 30 of the routes have more than 100 daily patrons.

Efforts will be made to interest employers in the project in an effort to stimulate the sales. Mrs. Florsheim said that if public interest in the sales continued to develop as rapidly as in the past that a majority of the 280 applicants would be working within a few weeks. Orders for the milk service are taken at the committee headquarters, 917 Locust street.

MITCHELL UNABLE TO FIGURE COST OF DRY ENFORCEMENT

Wickersham Commission's Estimate of $34,000,000 a Year Contains 'Disparities,' He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Attorney-General Mitchell said today the Government was without reliable figures on the cost of prohibition enforcement.

He described the Wickersham Commission report which made an estimate of more than $34,000,000 a year as containing "disparities" where it attempts to apportion costs between prohibition and other law enforcement activities, but added: "I have no doubt the commission did the best it could in an attempt to approximate these costs."

Further, Mitchell said: "It is also to be noted that the elimination of prohibition cases from the Department of Justice and the courts would not reduce the expenses of all these agencies in direct proportion to the reduction in the volume of business, as most of these agencies would have to be continued for the transaction of other kinds of business."

Mitchell's statement was contained in a letter to Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee and former chairman. Wood had requested a statement showing total cost of Federal prohibition enforcement.

The Wickersham Commission estimated that in the fiscal year 1930 it cost $34,828,550 to enforce the dry law—or two-thirds of Government expenditures to administer criminal justice. Its report said the figure was based on estimates of Justice Department officials.

"I did not know that any such material had ever been obtained from this department," Mitchell wrote. "I have made inquiry from the Solicitor-General as to the basis for the estimate from his office and he was not aware that such an estimate had been made.

"It appears that some member of his staff did attempt a rough guess at the proportion of their time spent on prohibition cases, but the Solicitor-General advises me that he has no data which would enable him to apportion the expense of his division between criminal and civil litigation or to make a further apportionment between various classes of criminal cases. The same situation must be true with respect to other offices."

Explaining why reliable figures were not available, Mitchell said: "The only way to apportion the expense between the various classes of business would be to have a system inaugurated which would keep an exact account from day to day of the number of hours devoted by each of these officials and agencies to cases arising directly or indirectly out of the national prohibition act."

TWO INDICTMENTS FOR $1,000,000 GRAND BANK THEFT

Henry Farrar, Who Was Trapped Into Confession, and Wyncil Urban, Cuckoo Gangster, Accused.

Henry Farrar, admitted lookout for the robbers in the $1,000,000 raid on the Grand National Bank in May, 1930, and Wyncil J. Urban, Cuckoo gangster, are facing a possible death penalty under indictments charging them with robbery with a deadly weapon. Persons so accused cannot be released on bail.

Farrar, arrested Friday night at his home, 3641 Aldine place, soon after the indictments were returned by the grand jury, is held for the Circuit Attorney. Urban is held in Des Moines, Ia., in default of $50,000 bond, on a charge of bank robbery there. With him in the Iowa jail is Farrar's nephew, John Lugar, a Cuckoo gangster.

Testimony connecting Lugar with the Grand National robbery was presented to the grand jury but no vote on his case has been taken.

Farrar and Lugar were arrested last November after Farrar had been trapped at Hotel Jefferson, where he told the whole story of the crime to an out-of-town detective who gained his confidence by posing as a thief.

One of the principal points of evidence against Urban is the fact that when arrested some time after the robbery he was wearing a diamond ring that Carmen Smith, a teller at the Grand National Bank, said was stolen from his safe deposit box in the bank. Witnesses yesterday included jewelers and others who identified the stone and the setting.

At the Circuit Attorney's office it was said Lugar and Urban were facing life imprisonment in Iowa and were vainly trying to get the prosecutor to accept their offer to plead guilty and take a 15-year penitentiary sentence.

Robber Flees in Auto After Richmond Heights Theft.

Rocco V. Danna was robbed of $329 in cash and $105 in checks as he was closing his grocery at 7640 Harter avenue, Richmond Heights, last night.

The robber, a well-dressed man who had asked for a package of cigarettes, produced a revolver when Danna turned to get them. He fled a moment later in an automobile.

RUSSIAN RAILWAY WRECKS LAID TO LACK OF WATCHES

Union Makes Effort to Have Trainmen Supplied With Timepieces.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—Lack of watches is said by the transport union party to explain recent railroad disasters in Russia.

No wonder, officials declare, that serious wrecks occur, that trains are often late and the transportation system as a whole suffers from lack of co-ordination when conductors, switchmen, dispatchers and even engineers cannot tell whether they are operating on schedule.

To meet the situation the union, acting in concert with the commissariat of transport, tried for several months the experiment of issuing watches to railroad men as they went on duty and having them turned in at the close of work so they would be available for the next shift. This proved unsatisfactory chiefly because the watches were not properly cared for.

Now the union has called on the commissariat of supply to speed up the output of watches so that at least all railroad men may have them.

Only a few weeks ago the first watches of Soviet manufacture appeared in the stores of Moscow. They were of approximately the same size and precision of the dollar variety in the United States and were priced at between 60 and 75 rubles ($30 and $37.50). They are available only in limited quantities.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE AT FATHER DEMPSEY'S TODAY

Mason Contractors' Benevolent Association Provides Dinner for 3000 Men.

Corned beef and cabbage for 3000 men is to be prepared today at Mgr. Timothy Dempsey's free kitchen in the basement of St. Patrick's parish school at 1209 North Sixth street. Dinner will be served at noon and the kitchen will be open until all are served. Last Sunday 2180 men were fed.

The meal today was donated by the Mason Contractors' Benevolent and Protective Association of which Fred Daues is president. The association has provided 500 pounds of corned beef, five barrels of cabbage, 500 pounds of potatoes, six bushels of apples, bread, coffee and cake.

"Father Tim's" free kitchen has been operated for about three months and about 2000 men are fed there every day. Two meals are served, breakfast and dinner.

The Ben Lyons' Baby Christened.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Five months-old Barbara Bebe Lyon, daughter of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, was christened today in the Hollywood Congregational Church with many motion picture stars present. She yawned at the circle of faces about her, but evinced a wide-eyed interest when motion picture cameras began to click.

BERG KIDNAPING DEPOSITIONS TO BE RESUMED TUESDAY

Trial of Two of the Six Defendants Is Scheduled to Start Tomorrow.

Depositions in the Berg kidnaping case were continued until Tuesday after two witnesses testified yesterday at a hearing in the office of Verne Lacy, attorney for Paul A. Richards, lawyer and agent of the men who kidnaped Alexander Berg, wealthy fur dealer, last Nov. 6.

The trial of two of the six defendants, Charles Heuer and Edward Barcume, both ex-convicts, is scheduled to start tomorrow, but attorney in the case anticipated a day or so will be required for selection of a jury and expect to finish the depositions before taking of testimony starts.

Yesterday's witnesses were Berg and Benjamin H. Reese, city editor of the Post-Dispatch. Berg went briefly over testimony he gave at a preliminary hearing in the case and Reese told of conferences with Chief of Police Gerk and Circuit Attorney Miller at which the officials were given information obtained by the Post-Dispatch leading finally to the release of Berg without payment of ransom and the arrest and indictment of the kidnapers.

Slain in Fight With Robbers.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Harold B. Cochran, 32 years old, died tonight from wounds suffered earlier in the evening when he was shot twice by one of three robbers who attempted to hold up the grocery store of which Cochran was manager. Cochran grappled with one of the robbers. The robbers fled without loot.

DEBUTANTE ELOPES WITH ADVERTISING MAN

Miss Elizabeth Peters Telegraphs Parents of Marriage to A. J. Scheu.

Miss Elizabeth Peters, a debutante and a daughter of Charles H. Peters, president of the Lindell Trust Co., and Albert J. Scheu, manager of the advertising department of the Johnson-Stevens & Shinkle Shoe Co., eloped and were married yesterday according to telegrams received by parents of the pair. The telegrams were sent from St. Louis but did not state where the ceremony took place.

Mr. Scheu is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Scheu, 6112 Kingsbury boulevard. His mother said last night that, although the pair were engaged, the wedding date had not been set and news of the elopement was a complete surprise.

The bride is 21 years old and a graduate of Mary Institute. She made her debut last fall. She resides with her father at 6220 Westminster place. Scheu is 28 and graduated from Cornell University in 1926. He attended Jackson Academy here and graduated from Soldan High School.

GO-BETWEEN IN KIDNAPING HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

George Blockburger, Granite City Professional Bondsman, Says Accusation Is "Frameup."

George Blockburger, professional bondsman and real estate dealer, who acted as go-between in the kidnaping, two years ago, of Charles W. Pearshall, wealthy Granite City grocer, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging criminal assault issued at Edwardsville on the complaint of a 15-year-old girl, a resident of Granite City.

Blockburger, who is 54 years old and lives at 2774 Madison avenue, Granite City, was released on $5000 bond. He described the charge as a "frameup."

In the Pershall kidnaping, Blockburger, a friend of Pershall, admitted he delivered $40,000 to kidnapers to obtain the grocer's release.

Plot to Kill Litvinoff Reported.

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—The Foreign Office said tonight that it had informed the secretary-general of the League of Nations of a plot to assassinate Maxim Litvinoff, the Foreign Minister, who is attending the disarmament conference at Geneva. The League secretary, the communique said, promised that all precautions would be taken to protect the Rusisan Minister.

ALDERMEN LIKELY TO VOTE $100,000 AID FOR JOBLESS

may be obtained for six months, or for longer periods up to one year. This is for the benefit of lot owners near baseball parks and others who may not keep their lots open throughout the year.

Comptroller Nolte estimates the added gasoline tax will come to $360,000, and the parking lot revenue to about $40,000.

Of his two other proposed special tax measures, the proposed tax on soft drink parlors was not acted on by the Aldermen yesterday. Some Aldermen have termed it an attempt to license speakeasies. It would require establishments dispensing soda water only, to pay $25 a year, those selling near-beer and malt beverages $180, and those selling both soda and malt drinks $200.

Chairman Eilers of the Committee on Legislation announced that a hearing would be held on this bill one week from tomorrow, and that a hearing would be held on the proposed amusement tax before it is reported by the committee.

The amusement tax bill, which will be introduced tomorrow, proposes a 2 per cent levy on gross receipts. The St. Louis Association of Theater Managers has issued a statement opposing it, and Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis National League Baseball Club, has asked that no special tax be applied to the baseball teams.

Breadon wrote that a benefit game for the Citizens' Committee would be played by the Cardinals and Browns at the opening of this season, like the game of last September, which netted $30,250 for relief. The game, Breadon said, would yield more than the total season's tax on the clubs, and if it failed to do so, the club managements would make up the difference.

Citizens' Committee Carries On.

P. H. Byrns, directing the work of the Citizens' Committee, reported that the committee and the co-operating agencies have instructed their staffs to continue aid for the next few days to the 60,000 persons already under their care, in the hope that additional funds will be received.

As to new applicants, Byrns said, there is nothing to do but to tell them that money to help them is not available. He said that the workers of the various groups had been able to aid some without giving money. They have persuaded landlords to be lenient, have obtained extensions of credit, and have helped to place needy persons with relatives or friends.

Applicants at the Citizens' Committee and other relief headquarters have taken the situation, as explained to them, in different ways. Some appear to be rendered speechless by despair, some are resentful and violent of speech, and others express the purpose to make new efforts at self-help, or to live through the emergency somehow.

1800 Applications for Help.

More than 1800 applications, estimated to represent 5400 persons have been received by the committee since it was forced to suspend new relief work, Tuesday morning. Many more, it is thought, have remained away because newspaper accounts have shown them that it was useless to ask for help.

There was not an overflow at the Municipal Lodging House last night, as on previous nights of the week, although all space was taken. It was explained that some homeless men manage to find lodging with relatives and friends over the week-end, though these places are not open to them during the week.

St. Vincent de Paul Society, principal beneficiary of the $376,000 charity fund raised last fall at the solicitation of Archbishop Glennon, and the only large family relief agency in the city not affiliated with the Citizens' Committee, spent $48,423 for relief last month. That is more than twice as much as the $21,080 it spent in the corresponding month a year ago.

GIRL AIDS PLANES IN STORM

Her Signals Aid Three Bombers to Land Safely.

By the Associated Press.

SALISBURY, Pa., Feb. 6 — A mountain girl, waving a tablecloth, guided three army bombing planes to a safe landing in a sleet storm today. The planes, flying from the Keystone aircraft factory at Bristol, Pa, to the Pacific Coast, encountered fog and sleet after passing Cumberland, Md. Forced from their course, the pilots sought a landing place in the vicinity of Salisbury.

A girl, noting the plight of the planes, seized a tablecloth, ran to a field and signaled the airmen.

"Our landing force opposing a Chinese army outnumbering them by 10 to 1 is worn to the point of exhaustion and the predicament of Japanese residents in the face of this imminent danger is beyond description."

Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, who was appointed to command the Twenty-third Japanese fleet in Shanghai waters, where he will displace Rear Admiral Koichi Shiosawa, who was in charge when the bluejackets attacked the city, sailed from the Sasebo naval base. The name of the vessel on which he embarked was withheld.

Russian and Japanese authorities alike ridicule reports published abroad that Russian troops have been concentrated at Vladivostok.

Four Powers Abate Peace Efforts; Wait for Japan to Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — The four major Powers concerned in the Shanghai troubles abated their active peace efforts tonight and waited for Japan to act under her latest pronouncement of policy in China.

The five points of the Japanese program caused no particular surprise here and were regarded as a summary of that nation's position as outlined in Tokio from time to time.

Official circles drew two main conclusions. One was that Japan has definitely rejected all efforts to link Manchuria and Shanghai. The other was that Japan is notifying the world that China's stern military opposition at Shanghai has not caused her to back down.

Tokio dispatches indicate there is a difference of opinion among members of the Japanese Cabinet on methods of handling the Shanghai trouble, although the Minister of War and Minister of Navy obtained indorsement of their plan to send an army division and additional warships to the Chinese port.

A "Go Slow" Policy.

The United States and the Powers associated with it in peace proposals have apparently decided to go slowly and await developments in the Far East regardless of the fact that Chapei is still the scene of sharp fighting between the Japanese and Chinese.

Conversations are going on in the London, Paris and Rome Foreign Offices with American diplomatic representatives in those cities, and the four Powers which forwarded the peace plan to the Far East stand ready to lend what further help they can. The Japanese reply to the peace proposals, rejecting them in part, does not necessarily require an answer, but in delivering it to Ambassador Forbes and the representatives of the three co-operating Powers in Tokio, the Japanese Foreign Minister made it plain Japan would welcome further proposals.

Nelson T. Johnson, the American Minister at Nanking, sent the State Department a cablegram today explaining that the French Minister called on him and emphatically denied rumors that Japanese fighting forces have crossed the French concession in Shanghai.

The French diplomat asked that his denial be made known in the United States and said French officers protecting the concession have carefully kept it free from Japanese fighting forces as they realized this was necessary to guard foreign lives in the large residential section.

Shells Inside U. S. Area.

Admiral Taylor, Commander in Chief of the United States Asiatic fleet at Shanghai, advised the Navy Department that seven shells from Chinese anti-aircraft guns fell today in the American marine regimental area of the International Settlement.

Rear Admiral Yancey S. Williams, commanding the Yangtze River patrol at Hankow, reported the situation was quiet there and the Chinese were peacefully celebrating their New Year.

A proposed reorganization of the Asiatic fleet, involving the withdrawal of six destroyers, six submarines and an aircraft carrier, will not be carried out by the navy until the Far Eastern crisis has passed. These vessels were to be replaced by three ships—the ancient cruiser Rochester and the gunboats Asheville and Sacramento.

"We need the ships there now for protection and possible evacuation of American citizens," Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, said today.

Chinese Claims to Spoils.

Despite Japanese denials, the Chinese today reiterated their claim to a share of the spoils of the fighting at Woosung. The The Chinese legation announced receipt of a message from Shanghai, relayed through Nanking, saying it was "confirmed" that a Japanese gunboat had been sunk and two others damaged during the attack on the Woosung forts Wednesday. Communications between Woosung and Shanghai had been cut, it was said. The message added that military commanders at Shanghai had reported they were "still holding" their line in the Chapei sector with heavy casualties.

The navy was advised today by Admiral Taylor that a brigade of Japanese infantry would be landed in the International Settlement at Shanghai Sunday.

Three Policemen Get Two Years.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Policemen John J. Walsh, William Bresnahan and James O'Donnell were sentenced by Federal Judge John P. Barnes today to serve two years each in Leavenworth Penitentiary. They were convicted yesterday of impersonating Federal prohibition agents while attempting to extort $450 from a suburban saloon-keeper for "protection."

PLEDGES OF AID AGAINST HOARDING GIVEN PRESIDENT

Representatives of More Than 40 National Associations Hear Hoover's Appeal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A pledge to aid an anti-hoarding campaign was given to President Hoover today by representatives of more than 40 national associations, who met here at his call. They had heard the Chief Executive and two of his principal financial advisers talk of the serious results of individual currency withdrawals.

Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Corporation, urged an "appeal to the heart" and a return to the drive methods of World War days to stop what he called a mass movement toward currency deflation. Ogden L. Mills, soon to become Secretary of the Treasury, seconded his appeal to "put hoarded dollars to work." Neither speech was made public.

Those who attended departed without attempting to form the national anti-hoarding organization spoken of by the President. Work upon such a machine with branches in every community will be begun next week under the leadership of Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

The only Negro delegate, J. E. Spingarn, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, speaking outside of the meeting, said it was "merely ironical" to invite Negroes to join such a movement "when they have no money to hoard."

The meeting took place in the Cabinet room, stripped of its usual long table and heavy chairs. Sentiment apparently was unanimous.

Official Statement.

A White House statement, issued after the meeting, said:

"The President, Gen. Dawes and Undersecretary Mills reviewed the situation. The meeting was directed to a general discussion of the means and measures of organization to meet the problems of hoarding.

"It was agreed that hoarding had accumulated to the extent of $1,250,000,000 or $1,500,000,000; that its results were to immobilize a large portion of the national gold supply and cause drastic deflation and credit contraction and seriously affect credit prices.

"It was pointed out by many of the leaders of the national associations that a dollar hoarded not only ceases to perform its function as currency, but destroys $5 to $10 potential credit.

"A dollar in the hands of a hoarder is just a dollar, but a hoarded dollar in the hands of a bank or wisely invested will furnish the basis for $10 of credit.

"As some of the representatives expressed it, currency is a high-powered dollar. Hoarded currency means that high-powered dollars are idle, and that in turn means idle business, idle men and depreciated prices.

Way Out of Depression.

"It was agreed that a large portion of the hoarding was due to misunderstanding of the national effect of such acts, that it arose out of unnecessary fears and apprehension, that nothing could contribute more to resumption of employment, to the stability of agriculture and other commodity prices than to restore this money to work. This would turn the tide of depression on the way to prosperity.

"It was unanimously agreed that all the national associations represented, and others to be invited, would place the full strength and force of their membership behind a patriotic campaign to be conducted under the leadership of Col. Frank Knox, to put these hoarded dollars to work; that the organization should be set up state by state in which work all organizations would participate with a view to setting up ultimately a definite working organism in each community.

Unanimity of Sentiment.

"The whole conference expressed its resolution that the time had now arrived for the people themselves to enter into the fight against depression and give full support to the measures taken by Government so as to make them completely effective.

"The conference expressed its great appreciation of the leadership taken by the Federal Government in the creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other measures, and that the time had arrived to rally the people themselves not only against hoarding but for the general expansion of employment and to turn the economic tide.

"The leaders gave assurance that the whole 20,000,000 members of the organizations represented at the meeting would take it as their special mission to organize and carry forward this campaign of appeal to reason and patriotism and to action."

The meeting today lasted less than an hour and a half. After the President, Dawes and Mills had spoken, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Harry J. Haas, president of the American Bankers' Association, and Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, made short addresses.

Hoover Praises Legion.

The shortest of all was that of John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion. He said: "More than 1,250,000 legionnaires are behind you, Mr. President."

Later in the afternoon the chief executive repaid the legion's compliment, issuing a formal statement of appreciation of its plans for an intensive campaign beginning Feb. 15, intended to put 1,000,000 men to work in a month.

The President said: "I appreciate the efforts being made by the American Legion and associated organizations in organizing an intensive drive to begin Feb. 15 to extend employment. Mr. Henry L. Stevens, National Commander of the Legion, and his associates have placed the entire organization also at the disposal of the organization that held its first meeting at the White House today. I am confident that the Legion and the organizations co-operating with it will perform a real service in the work undertaken."

ADMIRAL PRATT AGAINST MERGING ARMY AND NAVY

"This Is No Time to Discard Old-Fashioned and Time-Tried System."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Admiral William V. Pratt, who as chief of naval operations has kept closely in touch with the troubles in the Far East, today told a House committee this was no time to abandon "time-tried" systems of Army and Navy organization.

Testifying on a bill which would put the Army and Navy into one department, Pratt said: "With war clouds springing up all over the horizon, this does not seem the proper time to discard our old-fashioned and time-tried system."

He added that the proposed merger would cost $500,000 annually because of necessary "super staffs," and turned from discussion of the measure to praise the Japanese organization for war. He said their system, since it was more direct than the United States, is better and "probably is the most efficient war machine in the world."

Admiral Pratt was before the committee last Thursday, but was called away for a hurried conference with Secretary of State Stimson about the Chinese-Japanese situation. He followed Rear Admiral William A. Moffett today, who also opposed the suggested reorganization.

TWO CHANGES OF VENUE IN JUSTICE'S DIVORCE SUIT

F. W. Lampert Case to Be Tried by Judge Nortoni After Each Refuses One Court.

The divorce suit of Frederick W. Lampert, Justice of the Peace in the Seventh District, reached Circuit Judge Nortoni's court yesterday after two changes of venue.

It was originally assigned to Judge Landwehr but removed from his division on a plea of Mrs. Lampert that he was prejudiced in favor of her husband and transferred to Judge Ryan's court. Then Lampert objected to Judge Ryan, alleging he was prejudiced, and asked to have the venue changed. As the applications involved both of the Courts of Domestic Relations where divorce suits are heard the case was sent to Judge Nortoni by agreement.

In his petition for divorce Justice Lampert alleges general indignities as grounds for a decree. Mrs. Lampert has filed an answer denying her husband's allegations. She asks that his petition be dismissed. They were married Dec. 31, 1912, and separated three years ago. There has been previous divorce and other litigation between them.

RECEIVER FOR LEVEE DISTRICT

St. Louis Banks Brought Action in Arkansas.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 6.—One of the largest levee districts in Arkansas, the Southeast Arkansas District, was placed in receivership by Federal Judge Martineau today. H. Gray Miller, secretary of the Southwest Joint Stock Land Bank, was named receiver, and J. W. House and O. C. Burnside, attorneys for the receivers.

The district has issued $2,850,000 in bonds since its creation by legislative act in 1918. The Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co. and the Mercantile-National Bank and Trust Co. of St. Louis were the petitioners for a receivership. They allege the district owed $138,922.75 delinquent taxes. Miller made bond of $100,000 and took over the affairs of the district.

MADISON BANKER FOUND GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Jury Deliberates Three and Half Hours in Case of Roger B. Studebaker, Former Cashier.

Roger B. Studebaker, former cashier of the closed Tri-City State Bank of Madison, was found guilty of embezzlement last night by a jury in Circuit Judge Brown's Court at Edwardsville. The jury deliberated three and one-half hours.

The penalty is an indeterminate term of from one to 10 years in prison. Sentence was deferred until later when the court will pass on a defense motion based on the contention that the State had adduced no evidence connecting Studebaker with the shortage. Studebaker received the verdict without comment.

Studebaker, who also was Village Treasurer of Madison, testified yesterday in his own behalf that the money he was accused of taking represented a loan by the bank to the village of Madison.

The loan, he alleged, was made in 1923. The date is one of the principal points in the defense, inasmuch as the Illinois statute of limitations provides that persons cannot be tried for embezzlement when more than three years have elapsed between the date of the offense and the date of indictment.

Another indictment pending against Studebaker charges him with embezzlement of $31,771 from the village treasury.

Most of the State's case was documentary, involving the introduction of reports and audits and bank records. W. A. Rodenberger of East St. Louis, State Bank Examiner, who was originally called for the State, testified for the defense that he found no shortage in Studebaker's accounts.

Canceled city salary and supply vouchers, which the State alleges Studebaker substituted for cash, were held by the bank in proof of the loan, Studebaker said. He asserted these vouchers were replaced by similar, newer paper in 1928.

MORE ATTACKS ON WOMEN REPORTED IN HONOLULU

Chinese and Hawaiian Complainants Cause the Arrest of Two Men.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 6.—Two attacks upon women in the last 24 hours were reported today.

Herman Apio, 29 years old, is accused by a 17-year-old Chinese girl of attempted assault. Robert Ah Sam was arrested on complaint of a 21-year-old Hawaiian woman.

The trial of four persons for the murder of one of five men accused of attacking Mrs. Thomas H. Massie will begin next month. Those accused are Mrs. Granville Fortescue of New York, mother of Mrs. Massie; Lieut. Massie, U. S. N., her husband, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, enlisted men of the navy.

CHINA CUTS OFFICIALS' PAY

Cabinet Members to Get $25 a Month.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sunday, Feb. 7. — More rigid policies of financial retrenchment emanated today from the Chinese Government's temporary capital at Honanfu, or Loyang, as it is henceforth to be called.

Salaries of Cabinet ministers and other officials of similar rank were fixed at $25 (gold) a month, while lesser officials will receive salaries as low as $10 a month. Although thousands of petty civil employes will be affected by the measure, intended to curtail all possible expenditures, the salary list means little to the Ministers and higher officials, for all of them are independently wealthy.

Seven-Day Week in Steel Mill.

By the Associated Press.

PUEBLO, Colo., Feb. 6.—Operation of the Munnequa plant of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. will be speeded up next week. Nine departments will go on six or seven days a week production, and in two other departments operations will be on three and four day runs. This resumption constitutes the biggest schedule since the major departments were opened three weeks ago.

Murder Jury Discharged.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 6.—After deliberating since 7 p. m. Thursday, the jury in the trial of Al Mueller, charged with the murder of Lewis F. Brown, Maysville, Mo., was discharged today without having reached a verdict. The jurors told Judge W. H. Utz they were hopelessly deadlocked, 9 to 3, for acquittal.

Coney Island Museum Burns.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Wax figures of men and women famous in history and notorious in crime melted away today as fire destroyed Coney Island's Eden Musee. The wax works museum was in a two-story frame building and the flames fed on the hundreds of effigies in the Chamber of Horrors, the Forum of Fame and the Hall of History.

RAY COUNTY SHERIFF ASKS CAULFIELD FOR MARTIAL LAW

Governor in St. Louis Talks by Phone to Officer; Doubts Advisability of Request.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6. — Sheriff Fred C. Wollard and Prosecuting Attorney Eugene A. Farris of Ray County came here today to ask Gov. Caulfield to declare martial law in the coal fields of that county, but upon their arrival here they learned the Governor was in St. Louis. They communicated with Gov. Caulfield by telephone, and arranged to confer with him here Tuesday.

Sheriff Wollard told J. Don Purteet, Assistant Attorney-General, who has been in Ray County investigating the situation, that he was unable to cope with the disturbances.

The Ray County authorities have attributed picketing demonstrations to the United Mine Workers of America. They said that Fred Hicks, pit boss at Mine No. 21 of the Ray County Coal Co., and a commissioned Deputy Sheriff, was disarmed by pickets this morning and beaten when they attempted to enter mine properties.

Gov. Caulfield, at Hotel Jefferson, said last night he had advised Purteet by telephone that the nature of the Ray County disturbance did not in his opinion warrant intervention of outside authorities at this time. He said he told Purteet it was the first duty of the Sheriff to maintain order and to call upon citizens for aid if necessary. The Governor will return to Jefferson City tomorrow.

WASHINGTON GIVES HUEY LONG PAIN

"That's the Farthest Spot From the United States I've Seen," Senator Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—After four days in the United States Senate, Senator Huey P. Long (Dem.), Louisiana, returned to New Orleans today to express what might be called disgust.

Asked what he thought of Washington, he pondered a moment and then said: "In order to think in terms of America you almost have to get away from Washington. That's the farthest spot from the United States I've seen.

"The sorrowful thing I found in Washington is the political paralysis that is affecting the Democrats in Congress. Over in the Senate the Democrats seemed like a whipped rooster with the victor pecking us on the head and all standing there bleeding, taking it, except that some seem to have taken it upon themselves to act as the outer guard to veil the Republican disciples.

"You get the impression there is a great sign in front of you which reads, 'Touch not anointed and do my prophets no harm.'

"The world is disgusted with Hoover and Hooverism, Mellon and Mellonism, past, present and future. We've had 12 years of it and it has brought us bankruptcy, disaster and distress.

"The country is anxiously waiting for the Democrats to step out and deliver the blow, but there seem plenty of them ready to step out in front of the Republican hill and support everything that Hoover, Mellon or Daugherty want."

Drops Breach of Promise Suit.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 6.—A $250,000 breach of promise suit filed by Edith Morgan of New York against Robert T. Wilson of Sewickley was dropped in Federal Court today. The suit was filed last April. The plaintiff did not file a bill of particulars as ordered by the Court.

ARRESTED IN HOLDUP

MRS. ELIZABETH VINSON.

GIRL CONFESSES HOLDUP OF STORE; HELD WITH YOUTH

Tells of Taking Dress While He Got Cash at 1403 Biddle—He Says She's "Talking Through Hat."

Police who recognized 18-year-old John Berne as a youth whom they had questioned before, arrested him and a young woman on a downtown street corner yesterday noon, and later announced they had obtained a confession from the young woman that she and Berne had held up a dry goods store proprietor two days before.

The woman said she was Mrs. Elizabeth Vinson, 18 years old, of 2907 Cass avenue. She and Berne, Mrs. Vinson said, held up Mrs. Anna House in Mrs. House's store at 1403 Biddle street Thursday afternoon, taking a dress and 56 cents from the cash register.

Mrs. House, who identified both, said Berne, who had a revolver, took $10 from the cash register while Mrs. Vinson took a dress from the window.

Mrs. Vinson told police Berne said, "Do you want that dress?" when they passed the store and she admired the frock. Upon receiving her affirmative answer, she said he continued: "Well, are you willing to take a chance to get it?" The holdup followed, she said.

Berne, who said he lived at 2502 Hebert street, denied knowing anything about the holdup. When told of Mrs. Vinson's statement, he asserted, "Aw, she's talking through her hat."

Three Picked Up Off Cape May, Two Identified As Members of Crew.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 6.—Three bodies, two of them identified as members of the crew of the wrecked tug Lonnie B. Shaw, which sank in a gale off the Delaware Capes Thursday night, were picked up by Coast Guard patrol boats tonight.

They were found floating about four and one-half miles southeast of the Cape May jetty. A Coast Guard seaplane located four bodies belonging to the tug, a short distance away. A few minutes later, the wreckage of the tug itself was located on the ocean bottom, the Coast Guard said.

Druggists Guarantee the New Vick "Colds-Control" Plan

Backed by Makers of Vicks VapoRub in the Confidence That Plan Will Reduce the Number, Severity and Duration of Colds.

TO CUT COSTS OF COLDS

Here is good news to those who catch cold easily. The makers of Vicks VapoRub—family standby in millions of homes—have developed a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." It is a practical Plan—workable in every home. And so confident are Vick Chemists that this plan will reduce the number, severity and duration of colds, that they have authorized every druggist in the United States to make the following guaranteed trial offer:

Your Druggist's Proposition

Get a bottle of the new Vick discovery—Vicks Nose and Throat Drops—based on a new idea for "preventing" colds. Use it with Vicks VapoRub—the modern way of "treating" colds—as directed below in the Vick Plan. Unless you are delighted with results—(a reduction of your "Colds-Tax in money, loss of time and health)—your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts

Watch yourself whenever you have been exposed to anything that you know is apt to give you a cold—such as—

Contact with others having fresh colds—crowds, stuffy, ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on a Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature—inhaling smoke, dust, gases—excesses in living, such as over-eating, smoking or drinking, which reduce body resistance—after a hard day when you are over-tired.

Then—if you feel that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages, Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once—just a few drops up each nostril. Repeat every hour or so if needed. This will prevent many colds by stopping them before they get beyond the nose and throat—where most colds start.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long.

If the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus, melt some VapoRub in a bowl of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drop—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub).

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment, and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets digestion—especially of children

DEAL BY P. S. CO. TO TAKE OVER BUS LINE ADVANCED

State Board Conditionally Approves Sale of Its Generating Plants to Union Electric.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—The proposal by which the St. Louis Public Service Co. expects, in effect, to exchange its two power generating plants in St. Louis for complete ownership of the People's Motor Bus Co. received the conditional approval of the State Public Service Commission in an order handed down today.

If the plan is carried out the Public Service Co. will sell the two generating plants, valued in the rate base at $3,542,000, to Union Electric Light & Power Co. for approximately $2,100,000, and it is expected that in payment Union Electric will turn over to the Public Service Co. all the stock of the People's Motor Bus Co. This would be accomplished by the assignment by the Public Service Co. to Union Electric the option it now holds to purchase the bus company for about $2,100,000, which it has been unable to exercise for lack of funds.

The deal is conditioned upon negotiation of a new power contract between the Public Service Co. and Union Electric, satisfactory to the Public Service Commission. The street railway company now purchases about 90 per cent of its power from Union Electric, and if it sells its plants, will have to buy all its power from Union Electric. At hearings before the Commission, Union Electric representatives said they were willing to buy the railway plants only if a new contract were negotiated to cover all power requirements of the street car company.

The arrangement is, to a considerable extent, a family affair. The bus company is owned by the City Utilities Co., the holding corporation which owns practical stock control of the Public Service Co. The North American Co., holding company for Union Electric, owns a large interest in City Utilities.

It is expected that if the deal is completed, the Public Service Co. will co-ordinate bus and street car transportation in such a way as to eliminate duplication of service and unprofitable competition. This would also include extension of the transfer privilege to all city busses continuing in operation.

The People's Motor Bus Co. operates about 200 busses (green) and in 1930 had total operating revenue of $2,191,678.

If the Public Service Co. and the Union Electric are able to agree on a power contract, they must return to the commission for approval of the contract before they may proceed with the transfer of the properties.

NORMAN THOMAS SAYS U. S. BUNGLED SHANGHAI SITUATION

Dawes Turned Down Chance to Join Other Nations in Boycott, Speaker Avers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Norman Thomas, the Socialist, asserted today the United States lost "its great chance" to prevent the Shanghai crisis when it failed to ally itself with other governments in letting Japan know that an economic boycott would follow any acts of aggression against the Chinese.

He addressed a crowd gathered at the base of the Eternal Light in Madison Square Park. Many carried anti-war placards.

"The administration apparently realizes that the opportunity was lost, because now it has kicked Dawes (Charles G. Dawes) upstairs and given him $2,000,000,000 to play with, instead of sending him to Geneva," Thomas said.

He asserted that when Dawes was in Paris, he gave the Chinese representatives only a few minutes of his time and "had let it be understood that the United States would not be a party to any world wide economic boycott of Japan, to which plan other nations had been receptive."

This country has not forces enough to win a war in China, Thomas said, urging the trouble be ended by economic and moral pressure.

CONVICTED OF MAILING POISON

Woman Found Guilty of Sending Capsules to Relatives of Husband.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Olive B. Lemmons, Moffat County ranch woman, was convicted in Federal Court today of sending poison through the mails to her husband's relatives.

Mrs. Lemmons faces a maximum sentence in a Federal penitentiary of 20 years' imprisonment. The Government charged Mrs. Lemmons mailed capsules filled with poison to John Lemmons and Mrs. Kate Whitting, relatives of her husband, Matt Lemmons. In his closing argument, the defense attorney charged the case against Mrs. Lemmons was a scheme concocted by persons interested in getting her out of the way.

WICKERSHAM STUDY OF COURTS TO BE CONTINUED BY OTHERS

Hoover's Chairman, However, Will Guide Project as Head of Law Institute.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6.—A study of the operation of Federal courts begun by the Wickersham Commission will be continued by the American Law Institute and Yale University, it was announced today.

After data is tabulated at the Yale Institute of Human Relations, reports will be made on all criminal and civil cases studied.

George W. Wickersham, who was chairman of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, will continue to guide the project as president of the American Law Institute.

Completion of the reports, Dean Charles E. Clark of the law school said, is contingent on obtaining additional funds. A $25,000 gift from an educational foundation last spring calls for a similar donation from other sources during 1932.

Ten thousand dollars for the first contribution, however, has been made available for tabulating facts already obtained.

An analysis of case records in Federal courts of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio and West Virginia comprises the project.

Operation of rules, procedure and the time element in the trial of lawsuits will be surveyed.

KILLS YOUTH AFTER WINNING SUIT OVER FARM OWNERSHIP

Missourian, 62, Says He Fired When Victim Reached for His Hip Pocket.

By the Associated Press.

PIEDMONT, Mo., Feb. 6.—John T. Bearden, 62-year-old farmer, shot and killed Sylvan Lundry, 22, a neighbor, on the Bearden farm three miles east of here today.

A lawsuit concerning the ownership and possession of the farm was disposed of in Circuit Court yesterday in favor of Bearden and against the mother of the dead man. The Lundrys moved from the farm yesterday. Bearden said he went to the farm today and young Lundry appeared from the barn and ordered him to leave. Bearden said he refused and that Lundry reached for his hip pocket. Bearden said he shot Lundry at close range with a rifle. Bearden came to Piedmont and surrendered.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Feb. 6.—A marble group commemorating the sixtieth year of Canada's federation and made possible by the contributions of Canadians living in the United States, was unveiled by the Governor-General, Lord Bessborough, in the Hall of Fame in the Parliament Building today.

MOTHER OF TWO CHILDREN FACES PRISON FOR HOLDUP

Mrs. Agnes Gilmore of East St. Louis Will Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

Mrs. Agnes Gilmore, former proprietor of an East St. Louis poultry store and mother of two children, will be sentenced tomorrow for assault with intent to rob in connection with the attempted holdup of Louis L. Muentefering, East St. Louis druggist, last Dec. 18. The offense is punishable in Illinois by imprisonment ranging from one to 14 years.

The family with whom her two sons, Herman, 12 years old, and Clyde, 9, have been living since the attempted holdup, said the boys would be turned over to juvenile authorities. The family resides at 1023 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis. The boys have not seen their father for eight years.

COURT IS ASKED TO VACATE MAYFAIR HOTEL RECEIVERSHIP

Investment Company and Trustees Contend Intervenors Had No Ground for Action.

Motions were filed yesterday by the Mayfair Investment Co. and Melvin L. Straus and William R. Orthwein, trustees, asking Circuit Judge Nortoni to vacate his order placing the Mayfair Hotel property under receivership. The Court named Alfred L. Shapleigh, hardware merchant, and Oliver T. Remmers, attorney, as receivers, after intervening bondholders, who objected to a plan of reorganization, requested such action.

The reorganization plan, in which a majority of the bondholders were said to have concurred, provided for the sale of the property at foreclosure, with stipulated protection for the bondholders.

In the motions for rehearing it is alleged that the Court exceeded its jurisdiction in ordering the receivership; also that the intervenors had no valid or legal ground for asking for such result. Other reasons why the order should be vacated also are set forth. In naming the receivers the Court appointed Claude W. McElwee and J. W. McAfee as their counsel. They had represented the intervenors.

CITATION IN BRIDGE DISPUTE

State Road Board Ordered to Reply to Tuscumbia Suit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—The Missouri State Highway Commission was ordered today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc to show cause in 30 days why it should not construct a bridge to carry State Highway No. 17 over the Osage River at Tuscumbia, Mo. The order was in a mandamus suit instituted by State Representative Fred Spearman of Miller County to test the question of whether the commission is authorized to construct a highway bridge over a navigable stream. A privately owned suspension bridge, on which tolls are charged, now carries the highway over the river at Tuscumbia.

After the Highway Commission's return to the alternative writ of mandamus is filed, the case will be argued.

STOP - ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGN TAKING DEFINITE SHAPE

Movement Not So Much Against Him as Against Stampede to Any Candidate So Early.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The long-expected stop-Roosevelt campaign is taking form among the Democrats, pushing Alfred E. Smith forward and lifting John N. Garner with prominence among presidential possibilities.

Regardless of what he may say in the statement to be published Monday, Smith's partisans are hoping to obtain for him the support of a large number of Eastern delegates.

Despite the fact that he has refused to co-operate in any stop-Roosevelt movement, Speaker Garner's friends are planning to bring him prominently to the fore in the South, and in some states of the West.

The efforts on behalf of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and other favorite sons, are to be redoubled. Newton D. Baker still is discussed as a possible candidate in some states. There is talk of entering former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia, for whom headquarters were opened today at Richmond, in some of the dry districts of Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

In various Western states where only Roosevelt activity has been apparent thus far, efforts will be made to send uninstructed delegations, and let the convention fight it out. That is true in Wyoming and in Kansas.

It is not definitely established that all of this activity is directed against Gov. Roosevelt, so much as against a stampede to him or any other candidate so far ahead of the June convention.

A widely-published story that the Roosevelt managers are claiming 678 votes, or within 90 of enough to nominate, on the first ballot, is declared to be erroneous. No claim has been made except that of James A. Farley, who is predicting the Governor's nomination as soon as the roll is called.

So far as Smith is concerned, the great bulk of his strength, it is conceded, lies in the populous states of the East, some of which Roosevelt must have to win. In the group are New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and possibly New Hampshire.

An organized Smith movement is under way in Minnesota, he may get Louisiana, and scattered efforts to line up small delegate groups for him are in progress in Ohio and elsewhere.

Washington State Democrats Indorse Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 6.—Washington State Democracy instructed its delegation to the party's national convention in June to work as a unit for the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President and urged abrogation of the two-thirds rule in a noisy State convention here today.

OIL MAN IN ILL HEALTH, SHOOTS HIMSELF TO DEATH

Daniel Weller, Former President of Standard of Louisiana, Ends Life in New Rochelle, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Daniel Weller committed suicide by shooting today while his friends and business associates made final plans for a testimonial dinner honoring him.

He resigned as president of the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana last May and the position of chairman of the board was created for him. He relinquished that position Jan. 1.

Mrs. Weller found his body in the basement of the home of his brother, Col. Fred W. Weller, former vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, whom they had been visiting for six weeks.

"Sorry I had to do this," read a note addressed to the widow.

"Mr. Weller had been in poor health," Standard Oil officials said in a statement.

Mr. Weller and his wife had planned to return to their home in Baton Rouge, La., and the testimonial dinner had been planned for Monday night at New Orleans.

TRAIN KILLS R. A. BUCHMANN, VETERINARIAN OF MARISSA, ILL.

Wrecked Car Carried Half Mile Before Illinois Central Engine Comes to Stop.

Robert A. Buchmann, 48 years old, a veterinarian, was instantly killed at 2:50 p. m. yesterday when his automobile was struck by a St. Louis-bound Illinois Central passenger train at a crossing on Illinois State Highway No. 15, three miles north of his home in Marissa, St. Clair County.

He was returning home after a call at a nearby farm. His body was thrown from the wreckage of his car, which was carried a half mile before the train was brought to a stop, according to Deputy Coroner Campbell of Marissa. He suffered fractures of the skull, right arm and right leg.

His widow and a daughter, Catherine, survive.

STOCK TRADE PACE IS DOWN TO LEVEL OF 8 YEARS AGO

Prices Drift Irresolutely Lower in Week's Market Which Gets a Few Notches Nearer the Early January Low.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Trading in stocks dwindled to the levels of eight years ago, and prices drifted irresolutely lower this week.

It was, on the whole, a rather gloomy week in Wall street, although the absence of an important volume of selling in either stocks or bonds provided some comfort.

The lack of vitality of the investment market was apparent in the fact that no new bond offerings were attempted during the week, and while there seemed to be no interest in investments, speculators showed no eagerness for market ventures.

There was some speculative effort at the start of the week to create a movement in shares of companies which might benefit by large purchases of war materials, but these "war babies" were soon orphaned.

The failure of steel mill operations and the movement of revenue freight to show signs of a seasonal quickening of business normally experienced at this time appeared to be the chief factor in the market stagnation, although the Far Eastern disturbances contributed to the general uncertainty.

The agreement on a 10 per cent railway wage reduction gave the carrier issues only a temporary boost. It was felt in Wall street that the savings from the lower wages, together with the work of the Railway Credit Corporation, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would save the railways from any further important receiverships, but actual restoration of earning power would require a substantial pickup in the movement of freight.

Deferment of the plan of putting out more Federal Reserve credit in an effort to stimulate business, as expected by some a few weeks ago, has also been somewhat disappointing. Gold withdrawals and currency hoarding have apparently delayed the initiation of the program. Currency in circulation increased $42,000,000 in the past week, or $19,000,000 more than in the like week of last year. President Hoover's campaign to check currency hoarding was regarded hopefully by Wall street bankers. Several felt that it would be successful if coupled with an aggressive program by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to end bank suspensions.

Average Off Slightly.

The stock market received no rude surprises in the way of dividend declarations. General Motors cut its annual rate to $2 from $3, but this appeared to have been fully discounted in the market in advance, for it had little effect upon the shares. Important dividend meetings later in the month are those of Union Pacific and American Telephone.

The price average of 90 stocks ended the week at 61.3, off only 1.3 from the end of the previous week, but 4 points under the level reached in an upturn Monday. Bonds sagged during the latter part of the week almost steady, although U. S. Governments held up well. The price average of 60 corporate issues lost only four-tenths of one point for the week.

The market got a few notches nearer the early January lows today. However, reactionary tendencies of industrials and utilities were almost imperceptible and the fractional average loss would have passed unnoticed had the list enjoyed a more comfortable margin of safety above last month's minimums. As it was, the day's two business hours hardly provided a fair test of resistance. Covering by shorts who were unwilling to chance further delay in protecting their profits undoubtedly assisted many stocks, and Wall street went home in the belief that the market would give a clearer demonstration of its intentions next week. The short interest increased last month, thus improving the technical position.

Rails were heavy, providing some discouragement for chartrists who in such situations look to the carriers for clews on trend. Chesapeake & Ohio and Chesapeake Corporation both touched new lows, although net losses were small. Norfolk & Western lost 3 and Union Pacific nearly as much. New York Central, fairly active, was down slightly more than half a point.

U. S. Steel Unchanged.

U. S. Steel readily absorbed offerings during the first hour, closing virtually unchanged. There was no movement to speak of in Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, General Motors, Union Carbide or du Pont. General Electric sold off ¼ to a new minimum, then closed higher. American Telephone made up most of a one-point decline.

Auburn weakened sharply, off 10 net. Peoples Gas sold under 100. Merchandising issues were heavy, First National Stores yielding three points, Macy two and Woolworth 1⅝. Case's decline of more than a point put it into new low ground. Sales totaled 660,300 shares.

The chief support of the steel plants is demand from automobile manufacturers whose February production should be considerably above January's. Car-making activity in some lines is doubtless being held back by uncertainty as to the Ford program. Youngstown district mills, which get much of the automobile business, will start next week at 35 per cent of capacity against 36 per cent this week.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Raw sugar declined another point today to the basis of 2.94 for spots. Only one sale was confirmed, consisting of 9000 bags of Philippines due this month, with most holders still asking 2.95.

Conflicting reports from The Hague and Cuba regarding the possible size of the Cuban crop had an unsettling effect in the futures market and prices moved irregularly, closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. The market opened unchanged to 4 points higher on covering and buying by trade and commission houses, but the demand was not aggressive and following the initial upturn, the market reacted under renewed hedge selling. The upturn was all lost, with some positions declining to a point below the previous close, but near the close prices firmed again. Final prices were several points above the lowest. The undertone was nervous and there appeared to be a disposition to even up for over the week-end and await further developments in connection with the Cuban crop. One private report said the Cuban crop would be fixed at 3,200,000 tons, while another said that 3,061,000 tons was being considered. Approximate sales, 17,250 tons. March closed 93c; May, 96c; July, 1.01c; Sept., 1.07c; Dec., 1.12c.

Refined was unchanged at 4.15c for fine granulated, with demand light and for nearby requirements only.

ACQUISITION OF PACIFIC WESTERN OIL CONFIRMED

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Bankers for the Pacific Western Oil Corporation confirmed the reports from Los Angeles of the acquisition of the company by the J. Paul Getty interests.

It was stated that the Getty interests had for some time owned a substantial amount of Pacific Western shares, but the bankers were unable to estimate the amount of additional stock acquired to swing control. The bankers also said that they could not offer any figures as to the amount of money involved in the transaction.

The Pacific Western Company was formed in 1928 to take over the Petroleum Securities Co., which was organized by Edward L. Doheny. The company has about 50,000 acres of oil and gas lands in California of which only a comparatively small part is developed.

The company has a capitalization of 1,000,000 shares of stock and funded debt of about $17,400,000. The shares are listed on the New York Curb market, and have been quoted around $5 recently.

COTTON SCORES ADVANCE IN TRADE AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Cotton was a little more active today and showed a generally steady tone with the market tightening up in the late trading on continued trade buying and covering, which found offerings relatively light.

May advanced to 6.85c and closed at 6.84c, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 7 to 8 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged to an advance of 2 points. There was a little Southern selling and week-end realizing, but this was absorbed by covering and trade buying which appeared to be coming partly from Liverpool and the continent and may possibly have included a little buying for Far Eastern account.

Last prices were within a point of the best. Switching from March to later months was again in evidence but the trade buying of near positions was sufficient to absorb the offerings and there was little change in the differences between months.

The steadiness of the market was attributed largely to the continued trade demand and some covering may have been promoted by a report heard that Japanese interests were covering may have been promot- spot market. Brokers who sometimes trade for Far Eastern account were reported small buyers here early but the source of the business was not clearly defined and this demand was not much in evidence later in the morning.

Liverpool cables were relatively easy with private advices reporting liquidation, hedging and a poor offtake in that market. Possibly the labor troubles in the Burnley district which were said to involve about 10,000 workers and was expected to begin today, found some reflection in the Liverpool market, but seemed to attract very little attention locally, as Liverpool was reported a buyer here during the morning.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at U. S. ports awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 215,000 bales, against 71,000 last year. Reports from Manchester indicated a fair cloth inquiry from India, but said many offers were unworkable.

CURB IS SHADE LOWER, TRADE SOMEWHAT BETTER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Curb market quotations shaded lower today in somewhat more active trading. Offerings persisted in the utility division, while enough specialties sold off to give that group a somewhat heavy appearance. Oils were a little easy. The turnover approximated 180,000 shares.

Commonwealth Edison made frequent appearances on the tape, getting down to the new low of 106¼ and closing at 107⅝, off 2⅝. Electric Bond & Share followed a very narrow range, losing only a nominal fraction on the day.

Youngstown Shee & Tube preferred, an inactive, sold at 47, off 35¼ points from the last transaction. The stock pays a $5.50 dividend. An odd lot of Quaker Oats changed hands at 78¼, down 7½. This stock trades infrequently. Pittsburg & Lake Erie gave up the 2 points advance it had made earlier in the week. National Dairy preferred rallied 1½.

Standard Oil of Kentucky, with a rise of ⅝, worked against the trend. Indiana showed some easiness, while Humble was down about half a point.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Copper prices eased further to 6½c for electrolytic, delivered in the Connecticut Valley, at which level some custom smelters were willing to sell, although larger producers adhered to 6½c. The easier tone was attributed to absence of consuming interest and only small sales developed at the lower levels. A fair export demand was reported early in the week following a reduction in c. i. f. quotations, but the further easiness in the domestic market widened the parity and foreign buying tapered off.

Moderate consuming demand developed for tin at steady prices, but the market generally remained quiet. Small importers' stocks checked selling pressure. Reports on movement of tin ore and concentrates from the Federated Malay States reflected curtailment of production.

Demand for lead tapered off after consumers had supplied nearby requirements. Reports of offerings by smaller producers at slight concessions in the Western market made buyers cautious, although prices were held unchanged.

Following declines to new record low levels, prices for zinc hold steady at the decline, with consumers looking on but with some sellers refusing to quote at prices named by other smelters.

Antimony advanced sharply owing to seriousness of the Far Eastern situation and absence of offerings from that quarter, with consumers interested in obtaining supplies. Later, however, offerings increased and slight reactions occurred.

By the Associated Press.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Report.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Feb. 6.—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. today reported net profit for 1931 of $5,454,047 after depreciation, Federal taxes, interest and profits of subsidiary companies. This compares with $9,912,232 in 1930.

This year, however, the company arbitrarily deducted $3,414,039 to provide a reserve for unusual fluctuations in the foreign exchanges of various countries and $711,384 as a reserve for the depreciation in value of U. S. and Canadian Government securities.

These deductions left $1,328,623 of net profit to be carried to surplus. In 1930 the $9,912,232 was carried to surplus.

Consolidated net sales for 1931 were $159,199,831.01 compared with $204,063,228.99 for 1930.

Consolidated earnings for 1931 before interest and discount charges were $9,952,655 after providing $11,945,597 for depreciation and after Federal income taxes and provisions for valuation of inventories and commitments at cost or market whichever was lower. In 1930 the consolidated earnings after similar deductions were $14,798,718.

CHICAGO WHEAT TURNS UPWARD AFTER DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Prompted largely by forecasts of a cold wave and by accompanying possibility of crop damage, wheat prices tended upward today after early downturns.

Rallies in wheat more than counterbalanced the bearish effect of stock market unsettlement and inactivity of North American wheat export demand. World shipments of wheat for the week appeared small, and indications were it was commented that the peak of the Argentine movement would soon be passed.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾c higher, corn ¼c off to ¼c up, oats unchanged, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

The wheat market opened lower but it soon became apparent that the wheat pit was in an oversold condition. Recoveries were aided by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations showed more strength than was expected, a circumstance associated with reports of cessation of cheaper offerings from Argentina. There was also evidence that some Chicago traders who had been sellers 3 cents higher at 61 cents and above for May were replacing their holdings.

Advances carried wheat up to about 1 cent gain all around as compared with yesterday's close. Domestic receipts of wheat continued small compared to a year ago.

Corn and oats chiefly followed wheat action, but at one stage the corn market touched the lowest price level since last October. Country offerings to arrive were of liberal volume, though mainly above the market.

Provisions averaged higher on account of increased consignments of lard to Great Britain for the purpose of anticipating tariff duties effective March 1.

TOTAL 'SHORT' INTEREST GAINS 758,193 SHARES IN MONTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The total short interest on the New York Stock Exchange increased by 758,193 shares from last Dec. 31 to Feb. 1, or 26.6 per cent, it was revealed today in figures made public by the Exchange.

On Dec. 31, when the Exchange made public its last figures on the short interest, the total stood at 2,842,072 shares. On Feb. 1 they stood at 3,600,265. From Jan. 18 to Feb. 1 there was an uninterrupted gain from day to day.

Feb. 1 total was the largest since last Dec. 11, when the total stood at 3,698,3

Coincident with the gradual increase in short sales, the premium charged for stock for "loaning purposes" has increased moderately. The rate quoted today on United States Steel stood at 3-16 point.

On a 3-16th basis, the daily charge imposed upon shorts desiring to sell United States Steel amounted to $18.75 for each 100 shares so loaned. This rate, which is regarded as an obstruction to free short selling, was said by brokers to have discouraged some customers from putting out new short lines.

In a few brokerage houses it was stated that they had been approached by some of their customers who expressed a desire to loan stocks they own outright to speculators who wished to go short. Although Stock Exchange houses are permitted under the regulations of the Exchange to loan stock thus owned, it was said that few were doing so. This absence of free offering of stocks for the convenience of the short interest, it was further explained, had resulted in sending up the price to bear speculators seeking such accommodation.

The Stock Exchange is still restricting short selling. All short sales coming to the floor must be so designated on the sale slip, and no short sale can be executed at a price lower than the preceding transaction.

SATURDAY BOND TRADE DULLEST IN 3 MONTHS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Traders administered a sleeping draft to the bond market today and the dullest Saturday session since last November resulted.

With little or no activity present, total sales dropped to $4,836,000 and the average for 60 corporate securities declined 4-10 of a point.

Although bids and offers were far apart in most cases, the rail mortgages led the list in the downward movement. Carrier mortgages in the low-priced class declined from 1 to 3 points, but considerable resistance was exhibited by the better grade issues.

United States Government obligations ran counter to the sinking trend and the majority of them registered modest gains. The heaviest trading was in Liberty fourth 4¼s and Treasury 4s. Investors in Government loans still hold to the belief that the Federal Reserve banks will soon reduce the rediscount rates.

Industrial bonds were the steadiest of the domestic section. Their average loss for the day was only around 1-10 of a point. Utilities did not do so well.

The foreign list was steady. Japanese loans eased fractionally and Australian and New South Wales liens were slightly higher. German 7s gained moderately, but the 5½s closed lower.

THE HARE AND THE TORTOISE

An Aesop Fable Is a Modern Reality

SINCE 1893

Today we have a good many "hares" hopping aimlessly about, unwisely animated by the feeling that sooner or later they will have a "break", make a lot of money quickly and then everything will be rosey. Same kind of hares of old Aesop's fabling . . . likable but so irresponsible.

Also we have quite a bunch of "tortoises", moving along slowly, sometimes laboriously, but with inexorable progress toward a definite goal. The goal, in both instances, is financial security.

Now, which class are you in? Has progress wavered? Are you still looking for the "break"? Then re-read the old fable and convince yourself that the law of averages is against you. If, on the other hand, your progress has been slower than it should be, all that is needed is the removal of some of the obstacles besetting your path.

In either case, Farm and Home can help you, just as it has helped more than 100,000 others. We should like to show you how, if you will just phone or write the nearest office. No obligation.

CONTEMPT CITATION FOR LAWYER SOUGHT

Randolph Laughlin Denies Charge by Plaintiff in $40,000 Suit.

A motion to cite Randolph Laughlin, attorney, before Circuit Judge Nortoni for contempt was filed yesterday in behalf of W. G. Coyle & Co., a New Orleans concern, which has a claim for $40,000 pending against the estate of the late John W. Thompson, contractor. Laughlin represents Thompson's widow, Mrs. Sara E. Thompson, 17 Hortense place, and her daughter, Mrs. Marcella Berkley, as administrators.

It is alleged that Mrs. Berkley's husband, Fred J. Berkley, of the St. Regis Apartments, 4950 Lindell boulevard, acting on advice of Laughlin, has been evading process servers. Berkley is sought by the plaintiff to appear before former Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm as special commissioner and give his deposition. The process servers, William F. Huf and Gordon A. Smith, made affidavits relating how their efforts to serve Berkley proved futile.

Laughlin yesterday denied to a reporter he was guilty of contempt. He said he believed the deposition-taking is nothing more than "a fishing expedition," which, he said, was prohibited by law. He admitted giving Berkley legal advice on the subject, but added that he had offered to make no objection if the other side would stipulate that the deposition was to be actually used as evidence at the trial.

"I did not make any threats to have Berkley evade process, as has been charged," Laughlin said. The motion for citation was signed by Douglas W. Robert, counsel for Coyle & Co.

The case grows out of the sinking of a tug owned by Coyle & Co. in the lower Mississippi River six years ago. The tug, it is alleged, was chartered by Thompson, although it is the estate's contention that the contract was with his brother, R. A. Thompson, of New Orleans. Laughlin said the company had collected $25,000 insurance. The claim was permitted to be filed against the estate after final settlement had been made in Probate Court by the administrators and it is now at issue in Circuit Court on an appeal from the Probate Court's action reopening the estate. The case here is the sequel to considerable litigation in Louisiana.

6000 Strike in England.

By the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 6.—Six thousand men went on strike today in 22 cotton mills over a wage and working schedule dispute.

TED SHAWN AND HIS DANCERS GIVE VARIED PERFORMANCE

Muscularity and Grace Combined Effectively in Presentation at American.

Ted Shawn, of Homeric figure and winged feet, brought his admirably trained corps of dancers to the American Theater yesterday and presented a program that was quite up to the Shawn standard in beauty, variety and allround skill. A matinee audience fair in size and expansive in enthusiasm greeted the opening performance. Two more performances will be given today.

There were 24 numbers on the program, effectively combining muscularity and grace, sharp staccato rhythm of movement and sweeping traceries of line. The dance was the thing, with musical accompaniment limited to a piano in the wings. Simple draperies made up the stage settings, but a liberal dash of color was provided on occasion by brilliant costuming. Costuming was particularly attractive in two folk dances, "Boston Fancy—1854," and "Bavarian Holiday," and both these numbers, too, were enlivened with a great deal of drollery and coquetry.

A Zuni ghost dance with Shawn as the Indian medicine man invoking the spirits of his ancestors gave a weird touch to the program, as did the Osage-Pawnee dance by four brawny young men, J. Ewing Cole, Campbell Griggs, Lester Shafer and Barton Mumaw. The same group performed "March of the Proletariat," and two or three other dances to the music of workers' songs of Middle Europe with equal distinction. Anna Austin, Regenia Beck, Gladys Tinker, Martha Hinman, Alice Dudley and Phoebe Baughan made up the feminine half of the troupe and supplied a noteworthy degree of pulchritude as well as technical skill.

MOTHER THROWS HER BABY INTO BLAZING FURNACE

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Anna Benko, 43 years old, today threw her ninth child, born two days ago, into a blazing furnace, police say.

Her husband, George Benko, 44 years old, a truck driver, says his wife has been in a highly nervous condition for several years. He told police he and his eldest son, John, 23, found the mother missing from her room when they returned from work, and the baby, Andrew, gone from his crib.

In the basement, Benko said, he found his wife cleaning the steps. When he asked her what had become of the baby, she said she didn't know. Benko looked into the furnace and found the charred body of the child.

Detective Steenberg reported Mrs. Benko was hysterical, so attempts to question her were abandoned.

Coroner Crafts said a sanity test would probably be given Mrs. Benko in about a week.

RULED PERU 11 YEARS, DIES A PRISONER

Ex-President Leguia's Administration Figured in Foreign Loan Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 6.—Augusto B. Leguia, former President and dictator of Peru, died today in a naval hospital at Bellavista, where he had been suffering from bronchial pneumonia. He was 68 years old.

His death automatically solved Peru's "Leguia problem," arising out of charges of irregularities placed against him after his 11 years of iron-handed rule had been overthrown by a revolution. A United States Senate committee's investigation of foreign loans also involved his administration.

He was taken from the Lima Penitentiary to the naval hospital last November, when his health failed, and underwent an operation.

He will be buried at Callao tomorrow.

Once an insurance agent, later a broker, the former President had an adventuresome career in other fields, marked by a long series of political intrigues.

Crown Among His Riches.

His presidential term was abruptly broken by a military revolt in August, 1930. He collapsed aboard a warship two days after the fall of his Government and had been ill most of the time since.

Imprisoned on an island at Callao pending trial for the alleged irregularities, he later was brought to the penitentiary here. With six relatives, he was tried in November, 1930, on charges of "illegal enrichment." A large quantity of jewels, including a gold crown, were found when his safes and deposit boxes were opened.

He and his sons were fined $7,625,000 as reimbursement for transactions during his regime held to be improper. Witnesses during the American Senate Committee's investigation of foreign loans said a commission of $415,000 was paid to his son, Juan Leguia, for promoting $100,000,000 in loans to Peru which now are in default. Juan Leguia is still in prison.

Faced Trial for Treason.

The Peruvian Congress last December asked that the former President be tried as a traitor and a resolution recommending a trial for treason was approved by the National Assembly.

Of an old Colonial family, he volunteered as a youth for service in the army and saw action in the Chilean war of 1881. Afterward he worked for a New York insurance company agency, then was made manager of a sugar plantation.

His political career began in 1903, when he was made Minister of Finance. A new regime put him in jail, then exiled him on a charge of plotting to seize the presidency. He went to London, lost everything he had in the brokerage business when the World War started and returned to Peru in 1919 as a presidential candidate.

HOUSE TO VOTE FRIDAY ON BILL TO END 'LAME DUCK' SESSION

Measure, Approved in Senate Six Times, Is Virtually Assured of Passage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Senate resolution to abolish the "lame duck," or short session of Congress, virtually was assured of final adoption when the House Rules Committee today set next Friday for action by that branch. Speaker Garner and leaders in both parties favor the measure. The Rules Committee unanimously decided to give it legislative right of way.

The resolution, providing for a constitutional amendment, has been approved six times by the Senate. Heretofore it was defeated in the House because it failed to fix a time limit on the second session.

The measure does not fix a limit on either session. It permits a new Congress to take office two months after election and prevents defeated Senators and Representatives from voting on legislation. Under the Constitution the first regular session of a new Congress begins 13 months after election.

The proposed amendment provides for the first regular session and terms of Congressmen to begin on Jan. 4 each year. The terms of the President and Vice President would begin on Jan. 24, instead of March 4, as at present.

Before final adoption, however, three-fourths of the states will have to ratify the plan.

POLICE WOULD BAR POLITICS

Chiefs in Chicago Session Want None of It in Department.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Lawyers and police chiefs attending a conference on crime prevention here recommended today that politics be taken out of Police Departments. They recommended that cities and towns appoint boards with a membership of five civic leaders to supervise Police Departments. Appointment or dismissal of the chief would rest solely with the board, which would not be under control of the Mayor.

Joseph L. Gerk, Police Chief of St. Louis, told the meeting there were 209 kidnapings reported to police of the nation in the last two years, and that 49 of them occurred in Illinois.

To Gain, a Child must EAT

It's not the stomach, but a bowel condition that keeps children from eating. Correct this, and they'll have the appetite of young animals.

Parents:

Don't coax any child to eat. Nature knows best. Healthy children are hungry. If pale, listless, and without appetite, they have stasis—constipation of the colon. Not to correct this sluggishness is inexcusable. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for ailing, sickly children all over the United States!

Do you know what to do for a child with coated tongue, unpleasant breath, eyes a bilious yellow? Don't dose him with cathartics that weaken healthy bowels. Children don't have chronic constipation! The trouble is all in the lower colon.

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for youngsters than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

CAUTION

Some stores will try to sell a substitute, even when it is for a child! Be sure you get the real California fig syrup.

The California Treatment for Sluggish Children

Nature provides a simple remedy for stasis. The only "medicine" required is some pure California fig syrup. It stimulates a child's colon muscles and has no effect whatever on the small intestines which strong purgatives paralyze for days.

Start this wonderful treatment today. Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the colon of every bit of poison and waste. Then just a little, twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. It may take four weeks if a child is all run down, but isn't it worth it, to have constipation conquered? And whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural, vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs. Get the real California fig syrup. It's pure, And delicious.

SIX OF TEN FOUND GUILTY BY JURIES

Record of Criminal Courts for the Last Week—Many Plead Guilty.

Nine jury trials in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court last week resulted in the conviction of six persons and the acquittal of four. Among those convicted were James P. Murphy and Joseph Kelly, Chicago, who were jointly charged with robbery under the Henry law. They disarmed a policeman, who had entered a Biddle street beer flat on orders of his superior, bound him and left. They were arrested soon afterward in a stolen automobile, carrying three revolvers, one of which was the property of the policeman. They were sentenced to serve 10 years in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Adeline Giles, 23 years old, mother of a 6-year-old daughter, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for assisting her husband, Johnson C. Giles, in the hold-up of a St. Louis avenue dry goods store, where $449 was taken. Mrs. Giles pleaded that what she did was under duress of her husband, who took the stand and declared that he was the instigator of the crime and had ordered his wife to accompany him, which she did reluctantly. Giles received a 10-year sentence for the offense recently on his plea of guilty.

Others convicted by juries are David McLarnin, Negro, two years on a manslaughter charge for running down and killing a Negro child with his automobile; Floyd Deal, hospital promoter, two years for grand larceny for taking $1400 worth of City Service Co. bonds from a business associate, and John Smith, charged with assault to kill, two years.

Those acquitted by juries are John Wakefield, charged with assisting in the robbery of a restaurant, and Robert Hunt, Negro, charged with burglary. Carl Larsen, charged under the Henry law with robbery of a Kroger store employe, was acquitted on a verdict instructed by the Court, as was Charles Adams, charged with rape.

Two men charged with robbery received penitentiary sentences on their pleas of guilty. They are Thomas McCauley, 1851 South Twelfth street, who received a 10-year sentence, and Henry Manns, Negro, who received a five-year sentence.

Others who entered pleas of guilty were sentenced as follows: Vincent Moncado, manslaughter, five years; Edgar Wilson, rape, three years; John Nuccio, larceny of motor vehicle, two years; David Hall, petit larceny, six months; Ernest Phieffer, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; Rubin Bright, driving motor vehicle when intoxicated, three months; Marvin Koerner, malicious trespass, 30 days; Ted Herman, larceny of motor vehicle, 50 days; Virges Williams, petit larceny, six months; Walter Williams, petit larceny, three months; Frank Johnson, carrying a concealed weapon, three months; William Carr and Martin Muelken, petit larceny, 33 days; Aleegar Hill, larceny of motor vehicle, 30 days; Gilbert Massey, carrying a concealed weapon, three months, and William Wheeler, forgery in fourth degree, six months.

GAME BIRDS DAMAGE FIELDS

Ducks and Geese Stay in Southern Illinois Because of Mild Winter.

By the Associated Press.

WEST FRANKFORD, Ill., Feb. 6.—Complaints continue to come from the Horseshoe Lake Area, a sanctuary for wild fowl in the Southern part of the State, as a result of the heavy damage geese and wild ducks are causing to the wheat crop.

Farmers whose wheat fields have been reported virtually ruined have made protests to the State Conservation Department but the department is powerless to aid as it is impossible to get the birds to continue their flight south owing to the mild winter. As nesting time is approaching it is expected the birds will nest and hatch in the Southern part of the State for the first time recorded in the history of Illinois.

COAL MINE DEATH RATE LOWER

1430 Fatalities Reported During Year 1931.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Bureau of Mines today announced that the death rate in coal mine accidents during 1931 probably would prove to be the lowest per million tons in the history of the industry in the United States. Up to date 1430 deaths have been reported for the calendar year 1931. It is estimated that production during the year was 437,641,000 tons, making a death rate of 3.27 per million tons mined.

During December 93 men were killed in mine accidents. This was 33 less than the number reported in December a year ago and 10 less than during November, 1931. There were five disasters during 1931 in which five or more lives were lost. These caused a total of 51 deaths.

Dean Inge Tells How He Would Remake World, If He Had Power

Noted English Churchman Permits His Fancy to So Plan Affairs That Poverty Would Be Abolished Along With Causes of Racial Enmities.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

LONDON, Feb. 1.

"THE gloomy Dean" is an optimist. "There is nothing to despair about in the world," he said, when I called on him for his view on the world situation. "There can be no question of an international collapse so long as the Anglo-Saxon peoples continue to set the tone on world affairs. We may be a little slow, but somehow we always manage to struggle through. We will do so this time. It is true that there have seldom before been such dark clouds but the very intensity of the world crisis is its most hopeful feature. The situation must either get worse, much worse and quickly worse, or it must be better.

"Were I dictator of the world," went on the Dean of St. Paul's who besides being one of the great contemporary ecclesiastical figures of England is a journalist and a student of international affairs, "were I dictator of the world's game I would, of course, first abolish war and armaments. But seeing that I cannot change human nature, I must consult history and ask myself what experiments of this kind had any success in the past.

America Affords Precedent.

"My two hopeful and helpful examples from history are the American Federal Republic, inhabited by people from almost every nation under heaven, and the British commonwealth of nations. There you have two leagues of nations in being. The Americans had the easier task, and they once had a civil war, but theirs remains the most marvelous achievement of history full of promise for the future. Our own great experiment is still insecure, but it is by far the biggest thing in the way of a league that has yet been attempted. Can such a league embrace the whole world? I say that it should be tried," went on Dr. Inge.

The League, in Dr. Inge's conception, should be a sovereign state with a small territory of its own. All international disputes would come before it. A recalcitrant nation would be punished, in the first instance with a complete boycott. All national armies and navies would be completely abolished, but the League Government would be empowered to levy troops to put down rebellions and frontier raids at the request of the nation affected. No tariffs and no passports would be permitted anywhere, but the independent self-governing states would remain.

"We cannot," he said, "do without patriotism and wholesome emulation."

Only One Form of Money.

The Dean's hypothetical League Government would have at its disposal the best brains in the world. There would be a uniform currency, probably in francs, and banking would be international. The regulation of international trade would be one of its duties. Another important task would be the control of migration. A nation with a high birth-rate would not be allowed to swarm like bees upon its neighbor's territory. But, on the other hand, no nation has a right to keep fertile soil untenanted. If the Australians, for instance, cannot colonize their tropical possessions, they should be open to Italians or to Asiatics.

"There must further be a universal language spoken by all for purposes of international intercourse. This language must be English, because it is already by far the most widely diffused speech in the world," he went on.

The high church dignitary further proposed that the League should control the problem of population. As regarded quantity, not much interference would be needed, since migration would be under the contract of the League, and no nation would be tempted to breed targets for bullets. But a nation which took no steps to check the multiplication of its worst stocks would be considered an offender against the progress of humanity, and pressure ought to be brought to bear upon that nation. This, the Dean stipulated, would not be attempted while he was exercising his supposed dictatorship over the whole world. During the time that he was dictator he would simply encourage eugenic

"Shameless Defiance to Solemn Pledges Without Parallel in History," Is Verdict Of Lloyd George on Disarmament Delays

Former British War Premier Puts Blame on France for Building Up in Europe the Most Powerful Armies and Stores of War Machinery the World Has Ever Known.

If There Is Failure at New Conference to Do Something Toward Disarming Everywhere, Then Germany, He Says, Cannot Be Expected to Keep Its Part of Treaty.

Where Military Odds Are 10,000 to 1

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
Former Prime Minister of Great Britain.
(World Copyright, 1932.)

LONDON, Feb. 6.

THE nations of the world are now assembled for a great conference on disarmament—a conference for which prodigious preparation has been made by commissions, committees and preliminary conferences.

Never has public opinion of the world looked forward so anxiously for results from any international conference. An impoverished world groans at the prospect of having to find this year out of its meager purse over 900,000,000 pounds for the upkeep of huge machines for human slaughter. Will hopes be realized?

I sincerely trust they will; but I cannot ignore the fact that the history of the disarmament movement since the World War has been in the main a disappointing record of lip service to the cause of peace, masked by persistent trust in the methods and weapons of war.

Actual achievement in this field since the war can be quickly summarized. Under the peace settlement, the victors insisted upon complete disarmament by land and sea of the Central Powers in Europe, promising faithfully to follow their example once they set it beyond question.

How Germany Was Shackled.

Their system of compulsory military training was abolished, their standing armies reduced to a size that would suffice only for quelling internal disorder, but would be quite inadequate for defense against aggression from even the smallest of their neighbors.

Their navies were sequestered and they were limited, as regards future construction, to tonnage which would barely suffice for coastal defense.

America and the British Empire dismantled their great armies, abolished conscription, and Britain further reduced her army establishment to a figure distinctly lower than it was before the war.

An important measure of naval disarmament was achieved at the Washington conference in 1921, leading to the scrapping of 70 battleships from the navies of Great Britain, the United States and Japan, and restriction on future building programs for capital ships; and at the London naval conference in 1930 limitation on all classes of ships of war was agreed between these three Powers.

On the other hand, when we turn to the land armaments of European Powers other than Germany, we find the total of our armed forces and accouterments for war is, in fact, not less, but far greater than it was before the outbreak of the world conflict that was waged to abolish militarism.

When the Germans raised queries with regard to the disarmament sections of the proposed treaty before signing it, they were informed officially that the allied associated Powers wished to make it clear that their requirements in regard to German armament were only "the first steps toward that general reduction and limitation of armaments which they sought to bring about as one of the most fruitful preventives of war and which it would be one of the first duties of the League of Nations to promote."

Solemn Pledges to Disarm.

The Council of the League was entrusted by the Covenant, signed by 55 nations, with the duty of formulating plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several governments.

Where and what are these "plans for disarmament?" It has taken 13 years to formulate them. These 13 years have not had a parallel in history for their record of shameless defiance of solemn pledges given by nation to nation.

Germany and Austria were harshly stripped of all arms except those scant armaments permitted by treaty. It was done with a relentlessness that left no doubt as to its completeness.

When Germany was reduced to utter helplessness, France and her continental associates proceeded not to redeem but to reverse their promise. They actually took steps to increase their military strength.

France, to strengthen yet further her aggressive power against her prostrate enemy or any other potential foe, entered into military alliances with the new countries that encircle Germany and Austria; and, whilst professing her inability to find means wherewith to pay her debts to Britain and America or even her own frugal peasants, France advanced large sums to enable her allies to purchase cannon and other munitions of war.

Vast War Machine of France.

The French army today is undoubtedly the most formidable military machine the world has ever seen. With its trained reserves it totals about 5,000,000 men, and it is equipped with the most redoubtable accumulation of destructive weapons any army has ever possessed. In addition, Belgium and Poland and the little entente, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugoslavia, are all military vassals of France with armies aggregating with reserves several millions of men, all trained on French lines and, in some instances, by French missions.

With their active forces, their trained reserves, France and her allies could muster upwards of 10,000,000 troops to put in the field against Germany. In their arsenals, they have weapons and munitions of war sufficient to enable them to put a force of many millions into the field fully equipped within a short time after the outbreak of hostilities.

Germany has an army of about 100,000 men. Since the abolition of compulsory military service her number of trained reservists has, of course, been rapidly dwindling and, in any case, she has no equipment for them, as under the treaty she was compelled to surrender her war stores and provide, as regards future supplies, a very meager allowance for her slender forces.

It cannot be seriously suggested that national safety requires France to have at her command forces outnumbering those of her former foe by 5000 per cent, or, with those of her military allies, by 10,000 per cent.

Past Record of Conferences.

This is a real problem for the disarmament conference. Will it be tackled boldly? The past experience of Geneva conclaves is not encouraging. Will this conclave discharge its duty in respect to disarmament with the same energy and efficiency that has been displayed by the League in arresting military inroads of Japan in China?

Whilst this building up and equipping of colossal armies was going on, France and her allies have been represented on the disarmament commission at Geneva, which for years has been solemnly sitting on a chalk egg.

Had French militarists displayed half as much skill during the great war in driving out invaders from their native land as they have shown by beating off at Geneva all attacks on their swollen armaments, the Germans would never have crossed the Meuse.

Whilst they are engaged in improving and increasing their deadly weapons, they have with a smile allowed their statesmen to sign every flashy declaration about peace, arbitration and disarmament submitted to them.

Hence Locarno with its love feasts ending in the glittering climax of the Kellogg Pact which outlawed war for ever—all followed immediately by a shameless increase in war equipment. Europe cannot afford any more of these expensive shams. They each of them add something to the burden of armaments, which has already ground the currencies of Europe into fragments.

If the present conference fails to bring about real consideration of a measure of genuine disarmament it will be worse than useless; it may well prove the starting point for a new era of competitive armaments.

If one group of parties to the Versailles Treaty, in effect tears up the solemn undertakings they then gave to disarm, they cannot expect Germany to keep indefinitely to her side of the bargain. If the rest of Europe does not honestly proceed to disarm we must expect the Central Powers before long to rearm.

Dangers in Evasions.

The international situation will then indeed be a grave one. It is no use dismissing the peril with a scoff at the histrionics of Hitlerism. That movement represents the honest fury of the youth of Germany with the way the fatherland was tricked into disarming its defenses. A great nation driven to despair is a peril to the world.

In my view, the conference ought to set before itself definitely as its agreed aim a reduction of all armaments to a level sufficient for the preservation in each country of internal order and for frontier defense against aggression by correspondingly disarmed neighbors; but inadequate alike in quality to undertake major aggressive operations against other countries.

So far as the weapons of war are concerned, this involves abandonment of those engines which are solely of value for aggressive warfare—heavy artillery, tanks, aerial bombing planes, also larger battleships of dreadnaught and post-dreadnaught types.

In regard to military forces, it implies abolition of systems of universal military training and, either substitution in each country of a small voluntary force of long-service men who take up the army as their vocation and are paid accordingly, or an alternative by lot system that would train only a small proportion of the youth of the country to the use of arms.

Reserves, war stores and machinery for their production should similarly be cut down. When we disarmed Germany we took away or destroyed not only her munitions but her jigs, gauges, tools and machinery for munition manufacture and compelled the conversion of her 6900 factories from purposes of war to those of peace.

Budgets Sometimes Deceptive.

Attempts will be made to compromise on this issue of disarmament in terms of budgetary limitation of total expenditure on war services. This is a clever dodge to do nothing of any moment, whilst appearing to do all that is required.

Something doubtless could be achieved on these lines for every reduction in present wasteful expenditure on armaments would be so much gained toward a return of world prosperity. But, while budgetary limitation would have a good deal of force in regard to naval armaments, it is quite unsuitable as a measure of disarmament when applied to land forces as between countries with conscript troops and those with voluntary armies.

The peace establishment of the army in the United Kingdom is 148,900 men. The yearly bill for the pay of these forces is 13,203,000 pounds. The metropolitan troops alone of the French army on peace establishment number 269,575, or nearly twice our total (excluding their colonial and oversea forces and their 5,000,000 reserves); but their past costs 6,662,000 pounds, or scarcely more than half the British bill.

In other words, the pay in our army is nearly four times as high as in the French conscript army and, in addition, barrack accommodation, clothing and other amenities of British troops are far better.

The rate of pay in the United States army is more than six times that in the French and the cost of their provisions more than twice as great, for their gigantic reserves hardly appear in the French budget at all.

Clearly, therefore, crude budgetary limitation of military expenditure is quite unsuitable for achieving general disarmament. If we are really bent on achieving definite disarmament and not merely in making a gesture or adopting a plausible formula, the nations must agree to renounce their more powerful weapons of aggression and abandon their methods of giving military training to large bodies of their citizens; and scrap their reserves of munitions and their facilities for producing them rapidly and in large quantities.

Not Hopeful of Success.

Do I think the present conference will accomplish this? Frankly, I do not.

In all the preliminary discussions which have gone on hitherto there has been no sign of willingness on the part of France and her continental allies, to adopt any measures which would be really fruitful in this field.

Italy, next Power to France in military strength, has avowed her readiness to accept any measure of limitation generally agreed on. But France, armed to the teeth, talks always of security and produces the most preposterous, misleading figures to demonstrate her comparative weakness.

If some statesman at the conference shows the courage and plain spokenness to shake the nations out of their cocoon of humbug and equivocation and forces them to face the facts, something may be achieved to lay the foundation for true progress in disarmament at a later stage.

Immediate results would not be obtained and much unpleasantness would be generated. But facts which are now suppressed under the shining tarpaulin of politeness would be exposed to view and public opinion everywhere would have a chance of operating on right lines.

Otherwise, I fear the results of this conference may only give final proof to the charges of bad faith which Germany raises and warrant her in embarking upon wholesale evasion of her own disarmament obligations under the Treaty of Versailles with consequences for future civilization of a most disastrous character.

Henderson's Powerful Role.

There is one promising feature in this conference. Arthur Henderson, now unshackled and unmuzzled, will be in the chair. He will, therefore, for the first time be free to speak his own mind without having his manuscript blue penciled before he goes to Geneva by officials trained in the over-cautious language of diplomacy or his knucklers rapped when he comes home by a chief who has a horror of definiteness, either in speech or action.

The president of the conference is in an independent position. He is known to be a friend of peace. Nevertheless, France cannot and will not taunt him for he lost a gallant son fighting for freedom of French soil. He can afford to indulge in the plain speech of which he has command and he has won the confidence of the league by his straightforwardness and balanced judgment.

Flood of Taxes Engulfs Every Nation, Declares Noted Historian

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO,
Famous Historian of Europe.

GENEVA, February, 1932.

THE principal cause of all the crises and catastrophes of the last 20 years has been the monstrous increase in public expenditure, which has provoked in nearly all countries the most exaggerated fiscal system ever known in history.

In 15 years expenditure and taxes have doubled, tripled, and quadrupled in almost all countries. If we limit ourselves to a few examples taken from the countries which are most in the limelight, expenditures and taxes have doubled, grosso modo, in Italy, in France, and in Germany; they have tripled in Switzerland; they have quadrupled, and even more than quadrupled, in England and the United States.

The list could easily be lengthened. It is a general illness, new, and very dangerous; and of which the modern world hardly realizes the existence.

Double, triple, quadruple the taxes of all the countries in 15 years

When one thinks that, in old days, to augment the taxes by a few millions was a herculean effort, even for the strongest of governments, one is astounded. Whence has the modern state drawn that superhuman strength to bleed the peoples white? How can one explain the docility and indifference with which our epoch everywhere submits to the fiscal policy?

Nearly all the revolts and revolutions of history have been wars against taxes. Liberty was originally conceived as the right to consent to a tax, which was not to be imposed at will. Why, in the age of liberty, does public opinion take so little heed of this fiscal oppression? And why are the majority of those who contribute to it in all countries even ignorant of the fabulous extent to which taxes have grown in the last ten years?

Prosperity Eased Tax Burden.

Prosperity explains to us in part this curious mystery. Taxes are paid in money; the more money there is about, the less heavily the tax weighs. One of the reasons why the peoples revolted so often and with so much energy against the fiscal policy up to the time of the French Revolution was that at that time money was scarce.

The age of gold began in 1848, with the discovery of the mines in California and Australia; the production of gold increased rapidly from year to year; money was abundant, prices rose, and the world was enriched. States began to spend without avarice; and the peoples became accustomed to paying ever-increasing taxes without much ado.

It is impossible to understand the history of Europe and America after 1848 if one is ignorant of the ever-growing monetary facilities which the States enjoyed in the second half of the nineteenth century.

These facilities enabled the States of Europe and America to increase their taxes during the last 30 years without encountering ever-growing resistance. In two generations the Western peoples became accustomed to consider the incessant development of public expenditure as a law of nature.

When the Reaction Came.

The multiplication by two, by three and by four of expenditure and taxes, which we have seen during the last 15 years in all countries, is only the exaggeration of that tendency, produced by a sickly abundance of money.

The World War accumulated gold in certain States. Inflation and credit, which were as abundant as they were easy, assured a fictitious or swollen prosperity for a few years. In the glamour of this general prosperity, half real and half illusory, all the Governments were able to double, triple and quadruple their expenditure and their taxes, almost without the knowledge of those who had to pay.

It seems, however, that this time they have gone too far. Difficult years have succeeded prosperous ones. Profits, salaries and professional incomes have diminished. Industry and agriculture are on the decline. No state has succeeded in balancing its budget. Millions of unemployed have everywhere become a burden to the commonwealth. Upon this general impoverishment the taxes weigh

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Opposes County Consolidation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

UNDER date of Jan. 15, an article appeared in the Post-Dispatch quoting Paul Clayton, president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, in an address delivered by him before the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the substance of which was for the elimination of townships and merging of Illinois counties with a view toward reducing taxes.

Taxes should be reduced, but the elimination of townships and merging of counties is one step forward in a development which began during the past half century and bids fair to outrank all tramplings of czars and kings on civil rights once gained. Silently and quietly, it is divesting all local government of its rights and liberties of directing the expenditures of its own taxable moneys.

The concentration of power to levy taxes in the hands of a few taxing bodies will in no wise reduce taxes; on the contrary, it will defeat the purpose and increase political machinery.

Past experience has taught us that a tax or levy against the people is seldom, if ever, reduced regardless of what body makes the levy. For instance, prior to June 29, 1931, each county in Illinois supported all paupers within its area. After that date, the various towns within the counties were required to take care of their own paupers, which required a levy by each town against the taxable property within the corporate limits. The counties having been relieved of this burden, it would naturally be expected that county levies would be reduced to an amount commensurate with that being borne by the various towns within the county area. Was this done? The answer is no.

Legislation of the kind recommended by Mr. Clayton would be only another camouflage on the people similar to that of the eighteenth amendment.

Collinsville, Ill. A TAXPAYER.

Mr. Neun's Hair Shirt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT NEUN of the Board of Aldermen has decided to put himself on rations until the pending unemployment relief measures are passed. It is an emotional decision. Mr. Neun's heart is in the right place, but his head isn't. The hungry will be no less hungry because of Mr. Neun's bread-line fare, nor will any job be thus created for the jobless man. Certainly the hungry should be fed, and it goes without saying that any man who fails to chip in his quota to the relief fund is a thoroughly contemptible slacker. But the task of leaders today, and Mr. Neun as the second highest official in the city must be considered a leader, is to find the way out of this depression, and to keep on pounding till they do find it, to the end that the unemployed shall be restored to the day's work.

PAPHNUCE.

E. M. Grossman Is For Dearmont.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT was interesting to read Curtis Betts' article in your Feb. 2 issue, announcing that Judge Daniel G. Taylor had declared himself for Russell Dearmont for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Mr. Betts said: "With Taylor openly for Dearmont, there is now a line-up of most of the 'financial angels' of the St. Louis Democratic organization for the Cape Girardeau Senator . . ."

I should like to inform those interested that there are many not in the class of "financial angels" who also are supporting Russell Dearmont. We feel, as Judge Taylor does, that Dearmont is "a courageous young man, fundamentally sound upon the important principles of government, such a man as the State needs for Governor." In addition, we are for Dearmont because the office attracts him as an opportunity to render vigorous and aggressive service to the State, for the sake of the State itself and its citizens and taxpayers.

The dramatic and successful fight he made on behalf of poor people who are compelled to borrow from companies making small loans, and the tact and strategy which he displayed in the Senate in connection with the enactment of the new income tax law, demonstrate his courage and ability. Besides being a man of character and intelligence, he has what the people call social vision, and he appeals to our imagination. His candidacy puts life and zest into a political campaign. With him we can get up some enthusiasm. It will be particularly exciting to help knock out the presumptuous attempt to build up in Missouri the archaic and outworn political boss system. If Russell Dearmont is elected Governor, the Governor of Missouri will be Russell Dearmont.

Prohibition Editorials.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PERMIT me to join in expressing appreciation of Charles G. Ross' article on prohibition in your issue of Jan. 24, of your editorial on the same subject of Jan. 31 and of your editorial note of same date stating that liquor is not inherently evil. Your opponents will have to set forth many credits for prohibition in order to offset the debits charged by your editorials.

Jefferson City. D. J. McDONALD.

The Tragic Story of China

In order fully to understand what is happening in the Orient, it is necessary to review what has occurred since China was opened to the Occident as a result of the Anglo-Chinese War of 1839-42, known as the Opium War. It is a tale of ruthless greed and exploitation, diplomatic treachery and bloodshed hardly duplicated in human annals. It explains why the Chinese hate not only the Japanese, but all foreigners.

Prior to the Opium War, China was a vast, peaceful, self-contained nation, or, if Bertrand Russell's distinction is more accurate, civilization. That is to say, while the Chinese were akin in culture, language and religion, they had no strong sense of national political solidarity. As Dr. Parker Thomas Moon puts it in his book, "Imperialism and World Politics," the Chinese were > too much absorbed in the eternal realities of work and love and children and friends and family, too much accustomed to local and individual liberty, and too placidly certain of the unconquerable massiveness of their race and civilization, to be much agitated by the fears or ambitions of smaller nations, or much concerned by the fact that their Emperor and their bureaucracy were of the alien Manchu race.

In 1839 a Chinese commissioner at Canton decided to put an end to the profitable opium trade by which British merchants were debauching the Chinese people. The war that ensued was short and disastrous. As the spoils of victory, Great Britain exacted an indemnity, took the island of Hongkong and caused five Chinese cities—Shanghai, Canton, Amoy, Foochow and Ningpo—to be opened to Western commerce. At this time also was extraterritoriality born, it being stipulated in the peace treaty that British citizens in the port cities should not be subject to Chinese law. Still another result, one that has bedeviled China for 90 years, flowed from the opium war: China relinquished the right to regulate its own tariff.

Other nations, jealously watching Britain's progress, were not slow to seek a share in the practically untapped Chinese market. With all the frantic energy of a gold rush, they poured their goods into China and set the stage for the drama that now approaches a climactic point at Shanghai. At this early time, too, the missionaries arrived to convert the "heathen." To their activities the Taiping Rebellion is traceable. A Chinese who had embraced Christianity undertook to overthrow the Emperor and succeeded only in plunging his land into the Anglo-Chinese War of 1857, in which France joined. Again the Chinese were helpless against Western guns, and again they paid through the nose. This time more ports were opened; the Yangtze River, tapping China's richest valley, became a European trade route. The tariff was lowered, safety of missionaries guaranteed and other concessions made.

Now China discovered that friends can be as costly as enemies. Russia, supposedly a Chinese partisan in the second British war, sought recompense and was granted all Chinese territory north of the Amur River and east of the Assuri, what later became the maritime province of Russian Siberia. This was the first large slice of China grabbed by foreigners. It was followed by other grabs, which make the partition of Poland seem a minor crime. Japan took Korea, France seized Annam and Tonkin, Burma went to Britain, and Russia, in its quest for a warm water port, gained control of Manchuria. The Powers tore China apart like wolves at a carcass.

Mere territorial grants, however, were a prelude to systematic exploitation of China's rich interior. The Powers vied with one another for the right to build railroads, for control of mines and oil fields, and whatever else was valuable. Since railroad rights also involved vast trade concessions, fierce rivalries broke out among the Powers which were settled by the establishment of "spheres of influence." The Russians built the Chinese Eastern Railway across Manchuria to Vladivostok, France's sphere was the three southern provinces, Britain took the Yangtze Valley and Germany carved out Shantung for its tidbit.

Japan, which had admitted Western civilization following Commodore Perry's second trip in 1854, almost immediately altered the tempo and objectives of its life. It saw the advantage of Occidental methods and, with surprising ability and diligence, began to copy them. Japan's penetration of Korea led to the Sino-Japanese War of 1894, which, like all of China's wars, ended in a quick knockout. In the peace treaty, Japan got Formosa and a large indemnity, and China recognized Korea's independence. The last, of course, was a mere bit of camouflage to conceal Japan's design to acquire Korea, which it has since done.

It was inevitable that Japan, afflicted with growing pains and new-found strength, should regard the presence of Russia in Manchuria, and especially Southern Manchuria, as a menace. In 1903, Japan demanded the withdrawal of Russian troops from Manchuria, and offered to recognize Russian rights in most of Manchuria, if, as quid pro quo, Russia conceded Korea to be a Japanese sphere of influence. Diplomatic negotiations broke down and war ensued. Japan's surprising victory brought Nippon to the front as a first-rate Power. The present trouble in Manchuria has its roots in the peace settlement, in which the Japanese won the right to exploit Southern Manchuria.

While the Powers wrangled and fought over China, a bitter brew was cooking in the hearts and minds of the Chinese. The Dowager Empress Tsze-hsi, after frustrating Emperor Kwangsu's effort to modernize China, as had been done in Japan, encouraged the rising tide of anti-foreign sentiment in China. It manifested itself in 1899 by sporadic attacks on missionaries and other Europeans, and in 1900 the incident known as the Boxer War occurred. The Boxers were members of a society who believed in China for the Chinese, and they sought with fanatical zeal to expel all foreigners. A violent outbreak in Pekin caused Russia, Germany, Japan, the United States and Great Britain to send troops, and the rebellion was quickly snuffed out. The price exacted of China was an indemnity of $325,000,000, an intolerable burden upon the Pekin Government. The United States set aside its share for education of Chinese students in this country.

The Chinese Revolution of 1911, while it overthrew the Manchu dynasty and made China a republic, was anti-climactical. During the confusion, Russia improved the shining hour to seize Outer Mongolia, while Great Britain added most of Tibet to its sphere of influence. Yuan Shih-kai, who became President, proved himself a reactionary of the most vicious type and used his power in a vain effort to crush the Kuomintang, or people's party, and Dr. Sun Yat-sen, its leader, the outstanding political figure of modern China. In that party lay, and still lies, China's hope to break its fetters, but the inauspicious advent of the republic, caused by Yuan Shih-kai's treachery, resulted in protracted civil war, which, in some form or other, has persisted until the present.

The World War gave Japan the opportunity it had long sought to acquire a standing in the Orient superior to that of the Western nations. It seized from Germany Kiaochow Bay and Shantung and presented the famous Twenty-one Demands to China, which, if granted, would, in the words of Dr. Moon, have made China a Japanese Egypt. Since the interests of all the other Powers were imperiled by the demands, and since China displayed stubborn resistance, some of the more extreme demands were withdrawn. However, when the war ended, the Western Powers discovered that Japan, whose sphere of influence had been widened to include Shantung, Eastern Mongolia, Northern Manchuria and Fukien, was now practically supreme in the Orient.

Imperialism had done its work well in China, after 80 years of pillage, but it had also fanned the flame of Chinese nationalism. It became clear, especially to the disciples of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, young Chinese who had exposed themselves to Western education, that China's salvation lay in cultivating this spirit of nationalism until it grew strong enough to permit the establishment of a powerful central government. Such a government does not yet exist in China, but the warfare in Manchuria and the bombardment of Shanghai are helping to bring it into being. As Bismarck unified Germany by sending it to war against France, so the Chinese leaders are capitalizing anti-Japanese feeling to the same end.

What will be the outcome of this great historical drama? Napoleon said of China: "There lies a sleeping giant. Let him sleep, for when he wakes he will move the world." Japan, heedless of that ominous utterance, is rousing the giant, and perhaps planting the seeds of its own destruction. China's four hundred millions, goaded by nearly a century of foreign injustice, may be about to fulfill Napoleon's prophecy.

The Public Works Debate

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania has thrown his strength to those who urge a huge Federal bond issue for public works. Such a measure, the Governor asserted, would check deflation, provide jobs, "restore confidence, increase activity and start all business, and with it prices, well on the upgrade."

The reasoning behind such a belief is impressive, notwithstanding both France and Germany found in the post-war period that large outlays for public works complicated rather than helped the national economy. Money spent for public works, say its proponents, would be paid out for material. Material producers would, in turn, hire laborers and pay out wages. With this purchasing power, working men would immediately increase their purchase of goods at retail. Retailers would be forced to place orders with the wholesalers; wholesalers with manufacturers; manufacturers with material producers. Employment would consequently expand, and, with it, purchasing power and all business activity. This revival of business would, they think, bring with it a restoration of confidence; ease the banking stringency and enable banks to lend and business men to borrow with renewed safety. They believe this improvement of the banking situation would re-establish the credit upon which all business activity is based; that public construction, if extensive enough, would stimulate business strongly and directly. They feel that by comparison anything the new Reconstruction Finance Corporation can do will be indirect and feeble; that the plan would supply the stimulus, which private effort is now powerless to supply, to set the wheels of industry in motion once more.

It must be admitted, however, that the project presents many serious difficulties. A bond issue of five billion dollars, coming on the heels of the two-billion issue for the reconstruction corporation and another two-billion issue which will be required to meet the deficit, could be sold only by methods of solicitation and appeals to patriotism comparable to those which were needed to float the Liberty loans during the war. It is probable that it could not be sold without a substantial increase in the rate of interest for public borrowing. And it would undoubtedly depress the price of Federal bonds which are already outstanding. It would, moreover, necessitate the continuance of high rates of taxation during the next period of prosperity for the payment of principal and interest on the augmented national debt.

Serious as these objections are, the proposal, none the less, continues, as conditions of unemployment grow more serious, to challenge consideration. The La Follette-Costigan bill, now before the Senate after emerging from committee with a recommendation that it do pass, compels serious thought of whether we do not face a choice between giving the people something to do or resorting to such outright doles as that proposed by the bill, which would distribute $375,000,000 for relief. Admittedly, the public works measure is a last resort; but we are confronted by a well-nigh complete paralysis of industry and by unemployment which even threatens actual starvation.

Men, women and children need food. They need decent houses to live in. They need clothes. We have the labor; we have the brains; we have the resources to enable us to supply these wants. Are we condemned to sit idly by and wait and hope that time will solve our problems? There is not a road which does not present hazards to life which men and machines now idle could eliminate. There is not a city which is free from disease-breeding slums which labor could eradicate; areas of ugliness which could be turned into spots of beauty. There is a crying need of clean and comfortable housing for industrial workers in urban areas. There are great power sites awaiting development, and there are dangerous grade crossings to be eliminated. The Democratic leaders in Congress admit the situation and the sole recourse remaining by themselves proposing a $750,000,000 substitute measure for the La Follette-Costigan bill; half for relief and half for public works.

There appears to be no means of foreseeing how the plan would work. The Government could get the money. We could create the improvements. We could pay off the bonds by taxation. The experiment would be heroic, it is true. Unfortunately, its opponents have offered no other way to rescue us from stagnation. They can suggest only the dole.

Pearls of Wisdom From Our Prophets

From the New Yorker, the Nation, Daily Papers, and "Oh Yeah?" (Viking Press).

January, 1928. E. H. H. Simmons, president New York Stock Exchange: "I cannot help but raise a dissenting voice to statements that we are simply living in a fools' paradise and that prosperity in this country must necessarily diminish."

September, 1928. Secretary Mellon: "There is no cause for worry. The high tide of prosperity will continue."

Roger W. Babson, economist: "If Smith should be elected with a Democratic Congress, we are almost certain to have a resulting business depression in 1929. The election of Hoover and a Republican Congress should result in continued prosperity for 1929."

October, 1928. Charles Curtis, Vice Presidential candidate: "Stick to the full dinner pail. You have been enjoying Republican prosperity. If you want to continue the prosperity of Calvin Coolidge, vote for Hoover."

Otto H. Kahn, banker: "The kind of prosperity which Mr. Hoover is so earnestly seeking to promote and perpetuate, and which, through his direction of the Department of Commerce he has done so much to aid, is widely diffused prosperity, percolating through all sections of the country, benefiting the people, adding to the contents not merely of their pocketbooks, but of their lives."

November, 1928. Irving T. Bush, of the Bush Terminal Co.: "We are only at the beginning of a period that will go down in history as the golden age."

December, 1928. President Coolidge: "No Congress ever assembled has met with a more pleasing prospect than that which appears at the present time. The requirements of existence have passed beyond the standard of necessity into the region of luxury. The country can regard the present with satisfaction and anticipate the future with optimism."

September, 1929. Irving Fisher, economist: "There may be a recession in stock prices, but not anything in the nature of a crash."

October, 1929. Irving Fisher: "Stock prices have reached what looks like a permanently high plateau. I do not feel that there will soon, if ever, be a 50 or 60 point break below the present levels, such as Mr. Babson has predicted. I expect to see the stock market a good deal higher than it is today within a few months."

Mr. Hoover, on the day following the market crash: "The fundamental business of the country is on a firm and prosperous basis."

Charles M. Schwab: "In my long association with the steel industry I have never known it to enjoy a greater stability or more promising outlook than it enjoys today."

November, 1929. Arthur Brisbane, writer: "All the really important millionaires are planning to continue prosperity."

Julius Barnes: "The factors of previous depressions are absent."

Stuart Chase, economist: "We probably have three more years of prosperity ahead of us before we enter the cyclic tailspin which has occurred in the eleventh year of each of the four great previous periods of commercial prosperity."

Jesse Livermore, Wall street: "To my mind, this situation should go no further."

Alexander Legge, Farm Board: "It looks as if industry would have to start scraping around to get employes, instead of laying off anybody."

Henry Ford: "The situation promises much better than it did a year ago."

Arthur Brisbane: "It ought to be a good year."

December, 1929. Julius H. Barnes: "A return of the credit market and business activity will perhaps be slow during the first half of the coming year, but conditions will obtain their regular equanimity before the year is out."

Secretary Mellon: "I see nothing in the present situation that is either menacing or warrants pessimism. During the winter months there may be some slackness or unemployment, but hardly more than at this season each year. I have every confidence that there will be a revival of activity in the spring and that during the coming year the country will make steady progress."

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor: "Let us be thankful that we are getting back on our feet again."

March, 1930. Senator Guy Goff of West Virginia: "The tariff has accomplished wonders and it will achieve the marvelous. It has fostered our industries, built up our manufactures, elevated our manhood and dignified our labor. It has touched our barren, rugged hillsides and caused the waters of commercial prosperity to flow all over the land. It has illuminated our valleys with the leaping flames of our furnaces and caused them to kiss the mountain tops in their ascent to prosperity. If these American standards continue, then the republic will become the great altar stairs that will slope through the mortal struggles and disappointments of life up to God."

Secretary of Commerce Lamont: "Business will be normal in two months."

Senator Watson, in a speech on the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill: "I here and now predict, and I ask my fellow Senators to recall this prediction in the days to come, that if this bill is passed, this nation will be on the upgrade financially, economically and commercially within 60 days, and that within a year from this time we shall have regained the peak of prosperity."

P. E. Crowley, president New York Central Railroad: "Prophecy is a vain thing and I have no wish to join the ranks of the prophets, but I cannot believe that this country of ours, with its huge consumption and its enormous capacity, can long remain in a state of depression. Secretary of Labor Davis: "We have hit bottom and are on the upswing."

Dr. Julius Klein: "There seems to be a fairly good chance that the United States will be out of the current depression by the end of October."

October, 1930. George M. Reynolds, Chicago banker: "I should not be surprised if by the middle of December we would find conditions considerably improved."

John J. Raskob, capitalist: "Within three months we will quickly leave depression behind and all be singing, 'Happy Days Are Here Again.'"

November, 1930. Alfred P. Sloan Jr., General Motors: "I see no reason why 1931 should not be an extremely good year."

Walter S. Gifford, president American Telephone & Telegraph Co.: "As sure as I am standing here, this depression will soon pass."

December, 1930. W. S. Farish, Humble Oil: "The present depression, which is commonly called a business depression, will, in my belief, end within six months."

Prof. Joseph J. Klein of New York City College announces that his study of business forecasts for previous 10 years shows the prophets were right in 36 per cent of their predictions, and wrong in 64 per cent.

TRICT ECONOMY TAKING DETROIT THROUGH CRISIS

Mayor Cuts Appropriations From $76,000,000 to $63,000,000 and Plans to Trim $6,000,000 More

TREET CAR DEFICIT IS DECREASED

Executive Expects Five Years Will Be Required to Put City on Feet—Tax Collections Slow.

the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 6.—Bonded virtually to the limit, facing a deficit of more than $10,000,000, necessary budget slash of $6,-000,000, and with tax collections early $15,000,000 behind expectations, Detroit apparently is weathering a financial crisis that has brought disaster to other American ities in similar circumstances.

The principal reason for optimism in the city's financial future is the economy program of the young, ed-headed Mayor, Frank Murphy, nd his aid, G. Hall Roosevelt, City Controller. Between them, with the backing of a new City Council, hey have begun a budget reduction campaign that reaches into very city department.

"Don't lay off old employes or crubwomen or those who will suffer greatly from the loss of work," instructed Mayor Murphy. Then he began a systematic campaign of reduction believed to be the most drastic any American city ever has de in salary and payroll.

More than $76,000,000 was appropriated for Detroit in the fiscal budget for the year starting July, 1931. Suddenly the city found itself confronted with lagging tax payments, with the estimated revenue for the period set at $57,-00,000. There was a $19,000,000 ap between the appropriated amount and the expected revenue, d the Mayor immediately unched into a reduction of the appropriation. He placed all departments on a rigid quota basis, nd brought the budget down to 63,000,000. Then he set out to lash off another $6,000,000 and as virtually completed the reductions.

Taxes Still Far Behind.

In an effort to bring in overdue axes, the people approved an mendment reducing interest on elinquent taxes of 1930 and previous to that year. The current axes, however, were not included n the reduction. The plan met ith some success, the Mayor reported, but taxes are still far beind expectations.

Mayor Murphy attributes a great art of the bonded indebtedness to he city's rapid expansion.

"Remember that 23 years ago Detroit was a city of 41 square es and 400,000 population," he ays. "Today it encloses 139 quare miles and has an additional ,000,000 population. Naturally his growth required heavy expenditures in paving, sewers, lighting nd every form of improvement."

The bonded debt of the city in 931 was nearly half a billion dolars, with a per capita bonded debt f $194.62, or $91.21 of the assessed aluation for each $1000. In 1910 bonded debt was less than $8,-00,000. The city's combined tax ate, for State and local purposes, ncluding good roads assessment, is 27.58 for each $1000 assessed valation.

One of the recent actions of the Mayor, in an effort to reduce loss f revenue and deficit in the municipally-owned street railway lines, was to take over the Detroit Motorbus Co., a private enterprise. ll Detroit transportation is now municipally owned, and the Mayor as reported a decrease in the monthly street railway deficit from $250,000 to $85,000, with the prediction that the deficit will be entirely removed within a few months.

Will Keep Budget Down.

Mayor Murphy has repeatedly declared that he will not stand for larger budget, and has insisted hat unless more taxes are paid or ew sources of income are provided, the city must be run on $12,-,000 during the next fiscal year. He has warned the city officials hat it will take the city government five years to get out of its present financial plight, but that continued economy will bring Detroit through the narrows where other cities have foundered.

Loans on short term notes, says the Mayor, have proved the most oublesome for Detroit. With the city bonded almost to the limit, including a $5,000,000 loan from the Ford Motor Co., he is seeking to place finances, as far as the shortterm loans are concerned, on a more stable basis.

A $7,000,000 welfare bill for the last fiscal year, increased to this amount by Mayor Murphy's energetic program of assistance to the unemployed, was raised by the issuance of public emergency Bonds. The Mayor has stated that this cannot be done during the present fiscal year.

"The worst thing that could happen to the city—and the thing which we will not permit to happen—would be a repudiation or default on its debts," says the Mayor. "We will not be in the clear by next year, but in five years I believe we will be on a firm basis, without reaching the stage that has endangered the stability of many other cities in a ke position."

Flood of Taxes Engulfs Nations, Says Ferrero

with all the force of the monstrous development of the last 10 years.

The great question for each people today is to know how and in what measure it can carry its burden.

Germany and Italy bend under its weight. France and Switzerland seem to have sufficiently solid sinews, one for double taxes and the other for triple. England staggers under taxes four times heavier than in 1914.

World's Economic Blindness.

What will the United States do? Will they be able to bear the strain? Will they also stagger one day like England? It is certain that in no country is it so necessary as in the United States to study the crisis through which England is passing. It contains, perhaps, a valuable warning.

There is nothing too complicated or too obscure in the disasters which have flung themselves upon the world. Their cause is simple.

Why did not Europe understand in the year 1919 that, after an enormous war of four years, all the belligerents needed 10 years of economy and wise management, and that the states ought to set the example?

Why did the most enlightened epoch of history allow itself to be deceived by the strange illusion that it was possible to cure the effects of destruction by waste?

Why was it that the peoples had to reach the edge of the abyss before they opened their eyes and saw it in front of them?

But blindness to simple truths seems to be a general malady of our day. One might cite several examples of this. Take, for instance, the problem of debts and reparations. It gets more and more complicated from month to month, and its tangled impossibilities become mingled from month to month with all the other difficulties by which the world is tormented. Why? Because in this domain also an elementary truth has been misunderstood.

The Allies of the great war imposed important indemnities on those whom they had conquered, and dispersed after they had made peace, demanding mutually considerable sums from each other.

If all these engagements are to be carried out, it will be necessary that for two generations enormous sums should be paid from state to state, and from Europe to America. A considerable part of that money will have to cross the Atlantic.

Debts Paid With More Debts.

Besides this, the war was followed by universal debt. The countries which after the war found themselves possessed of much gold, the United States and nearly all the European neutral states, lent considerable sums of money to other states which were in need of it.

The creditor states have a right to receive their interest annually. Their loans further international debts which must be added to the others.

The conclusion was obvious. As the peoples could only pay their debts in merchandise, it was necessary to remove as many obstacles as possible so as to facilitate the circulation of merchandise for the benefit of the regulation of reparations and debts of war. The multiplication of international borrowing demanded a slackening of protectionism.

Everywhere the opposite course was pursued. The United States demanded the payment of their war debts and multiplied their borrowings on all the continents, but they raised their tariffs at the same time to such a point that importation from Europe became almost impossible.

But how were the debts to be paid when the means of payment were taken away from the debtor? For a certain time the payments were made by making new debts. America paid herself by increasing the debts. But it was impossible to go on indefinitely paying the debts by continually making new ones.

The Europeans nations, while they complained continually of the United States' policy, imitated it. They demanded important indemnities from Germany, and they lent her considerable sums, but they put every obstacle possible in the way of German exports. Germany also, so far as possible, paid by making fresh debts.

Gold's Inactive Part Now.

The consequences of this contradiction are now beginning to appear. All credit of every kind is hanging in the balance, because the difficulty of payment for the debtor countries increases daily.

Half the world is threatened with failure. Gold is accumulated in a few countries, for there is no longer any means of lending it. Certain countries, like France and the United States, are reproached for accumulating the gold which the other countries so much need; and international conferences are proposed, as they say, to further redistribution.

The United States and France would be only too thankful to lend the gold of which they have no need if they could find safe creditors. But where are they to be found today when the excess of economic nationalism increasingly despoils the creditors of the means of payment? Safe creditors become more and more rare.

One can draw a conclusion from all these considerations which is not too discouraging. Just because many of our present difficulties have very simple causes we shall end by extricating ourselves from them. The remedies are not difficult to find, even if their application is often difficult.

Dean Inge Tells How He Would Remake World

Almost No Taxation.

"It wouldn't be a bad thing to have such a dictatorship," the Dean went on musingly. "In most countries politics are in a deplorable state. In most countries it is nothing but class-bribery, and the pillage of minorities. The first thing I would do in my own country would be to abolish the House of Commons and to constitute a Senate based on interests and not on numbers. It would be a dignified body, mainly consisting of elderly men who had served their country with distinction. National taxation would be light, since there would be no army and navy, no doles to the unemployed and a lower rate of interest on the debts. I would levy taxes on all luxuries. The distribution of wealth would be encouraged by imposing death duties on the amount received, and not on the undivided fortune.

"The very first job of my dictatorship would be to get rid of a few million men and their families whose jobs have disappeared through labor-saving machinery. I would start a scheme of state colonization, which is a very different thing from state-aided emigration.

"I would plant in Canada, South Africa and Australia hundreds of self-supporting and self-contained villages and communities, growing their own food and supplying their own needs like the parishes of England did before the industrial era. There are many good places available, but in many respects the clearing away preliminaries, the preparation of the settlements would be too expensive to be done by white labor at the present price levels. I should have no scruples about employing Asiatic labor for such purposes.

"My chief aim would be to abolish poverty, of course, and I think that, with a smaller population, having got rid of the surplus population in England and running things on efficient lines, we could some day again live in comfort in England. My proposal is not too fantastic to be hastily dismissed. Some remedy must be found. And I am sure we will find it. The Anglo-Saxons have never lacked in common sense."

LACLEDE GAS RATE FIGHT GOES BACK TO STATE BOARD

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 6.—A rehearing was denied the Laclede Gas Light Co. by the Missouri Supreme Court today in the rate and valuation case in which the court last November set aside an earlier order of the State Public Service Commission.

The present rates of the Laclede company for gas were fixed on the basis of the valuation of about $47,000,000 approved by the commission and when allowed in January, 1929, represented an increase of about $600,000 a year in charges to consumers in St. Louis.

The Supreme Court's decision last November, on an appeal by the City of St. Louis, held that the commission had erred in not deducting from the company's property the value of certain retirements, such as obsolescent gas street lamps superseded by electric lights. The commission, the Court said, properly refused to permit the company an annual depreciation charge to cover such obsolescence, which was held to be a risk assumed by the property owners.

Under the Court decision the rate and valuation case goes back to the commission for reconsideration.

Meanwhile the gas company has filed with the commission an application for permission to mix natural gas and manufactured gas to form a product of 800 B. T. U. to the cubic foot, and to serve it at new rates averaging about 7 per cent lower for general domestic use and 30 per cent lower for house heating. Hearings on this proposal are to begin before the commission here next Tuesday.

Nova Scotia Liquor Report.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 6.—Nova Scotians preferred wines and beer to hard liquor in the 12 months ending Sept. 30, last. This was shown today in the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission's report, which said gross sales amounted to $4,950,000, with net profit of $1,050,000. After Government charges for operation and police, the provincial coffers had $728,000 remaining.

URUGUAY REVOLUTIONIST TAKEN

Supposed Leader Is Son of Rebel Chief Who Failed in 1901.

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 6.—With the arrest tonight of Nepomuceno Saravia, estranged regional leader of the Nationalist (minority) party, officials said they thought a revolutionary venture had been thwarted. They added that the supposed leader, son of the late Aparicio Saravia, who led an unsuccessful revolution in 1901, had planned to dissolve the Administrative Council, which shares the executive powers, and both Chambers of Congress if the march on Montevideo had succeeded.

Prior to Saravia's capture, Communists were suspected of planning to storm public buildings, including the jail, where an attempt, it was expected, would be made to free prisoners; a warehouse where foodstuffs were kept, or the customs house, where there were large funds.

Legit Houses Still Dark

Another Week of Idleness in Sight Before the Shubert Re-opens With Al Jolson in "Wondar Bar" and Walter Hampden Arrives at the American With His Big Revival of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac."

WITH nothing in the "legit" houses during the past week and no entertainments scheduled there for the next seven days interest, if any, in things theatrical centers in the reopening of the Shubert Theater with Al Jolson in the big musical, "Wonder Bar," next Sunday night and the arrival of Walter Hampden, the following evening, at the American for three nights and matinee of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

No other modern play has had so many interesting vicissitudes as Edmond Rostand's heroic comedy, "Cyrano de Bergerac." This play was the greatest success of two celebrated actors—Richard Mansfield and Constant Coquelin—and in its early days it was the subject of much controversy not only in the newspapers but in the courts.

The play was presented by Coquelin for the first time at the Theatre Porte Sainte-Martin, in Paris, on Dec. 28, 1897, with the part of Roxane acted by Mlle. Legault. In Paris the event was considered comparable in reclame, and also in historic importance, with the premiere of Victor Hugo's "Hernani" nearly 70 years before. Although Coquelin had enjoyed a long and distinguished career in a series of the world's greatest romantic and comedy roles, his Cyrano placed him at the apex of his fame.

Richard Mansfield saw the play in Paris and decided to appear as the tragi-comic Gascon hero in the United States. As Rostand had not had the foresight to protect his play in this country by copyright, and as the present international copyright agreement was not then in force, Mansfield did not have to go to the legal formality of entering into a contract with the author for an American production. So far as this country was concerned, "Cyrano de Bergerac" was common property.

Upon his return to New York, Mansfield announced that he would produce "Cyrano" the following autumn, and this he did, opening at the Garden Theater, New York, on Oct. 3, 1898, in an English version prepared by Howard Thayer Kingsbury, and with Margaret Anglin in the role of Roxane. It was her acting of this role that started Miss Anglin on the road to her great success.

Meanwhile Augustin Daly also had prepared to present the play at his theater in New York, using a version of his own and with Ada Rehan, then in the heighth of her great powers and popularity, as Roxane, and Charles Richman, at that time just rising to prominence as a leading man, in the title role.

DALY'S announcement caused a storm of discussion and no little hard feeling. While he undoubtedly had a legal right to produce the play, his moral right was by no means clear, considering that Mansfield was first in the field. The situation became more tense later when it became known that Mansfield, although under no legal obligation to do so, was paying Rostand the same royalty that he would have had to give if the play had been copyrighted, while Daly paid nothing.

Further fuel was added to the fires of controversy by the charge that Daly had so cut and transposed the play that Miss Rehan's role of Roxane was made the star part, with Cyrano so curtailed and suppressed as to be a mere "feeder" for her. What truth there was in this New York critics did not have a chance to discover, because the Daly production never reached that city. It opened in Philadelphia on the same night as the Mansfield premiere at the Garden, and then was presented for a week's engagement each in Baltimore, Washington and Brooklyn. Meanwhile the Mansfield production had scored an overwhelming success, and so had Mansfield and Miss Anglin personally, and it was generally felt, when Daly suddenly changed his plans and closed in Brooklyn, that he did not dare face the issue in Manhattan.

Mansfield played Cyrano for two years to business which had never been equaled in the American theater up to that time. Then he dropped the play after a court decision that affected many theatrical interests in this country.

A CHICAGO lawyer named Samuel Eberle Gross had written a play which the world at large had never heard of called "The Merchant Prince of Cornville." Gross brought suit for an injunction and damages against Mansfield on the ground that "Cyrano" was a plagiarism of his piece. Although there was no evidence to show that Rostand had ever seen a copy of "The Merchant Prince" or knew of the existence of it or its author, the Illinois courts decided in favor of Gross.

In disgust Mansfield discarded the play, declaring that never would he pay royalty on "Cyrano" to anyone but Rostand.

How, then, was Mr. Hampden able to play "Cyrano" without dealing with Mr. Gross? Because of a reversal of the Chicago decision in the Federal courts when Walter Damrosch's opera, "Cyrano," was presented at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Gross had died by that time, but his heirs tried to stop the performances of the opera without success, as the decision of the Chicago court was not upheld. Thus the way was left open for the Hampden production.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

HOLLYWOOD didn't do so well by Lil Dagover, the German actress, in her first American-made film, "The Woman from Monte Carlo," which is at the Missouri this week. The story is thin and not very interesting, and comes to a sudden and unsatisfying end. Maybe Dagover got tired or mad or something and sailed for home before it was over. At all events, nothing very much happens in the tale of a French navy officer's wife at the start of the great war and the star has little opportunity to show whether she can act or not. However, she speaks English in the continental manner which has proven attractive before so, if she ever comes back to this country and is handed a worth-while play, she may get somewhere. Far better is "Manhattan Parade," the Missouri's other feature, which is a sort of Hollywood answer to such stage plays as "Once in a Lifetime," which poke fun at the movies. In "Manhattan Parade" the film takes a rap at a couple of theatrical producers, Lou and Jake — names which seem to suggest somebody or other—and shows how the stage is mismanaged. Joe Smith and Charles Dale, a pair of vaudevillians, do well by these roles and provide a lot of good laughs.

Poor Butterfly.

OLD Chinese customs like splitting men's heads with a meat ax, and old Chinese proverbs such as "A fool and his honey are soon parted," or words to that effect, are all mixed up in "Hatchet Man," at the Ambassador, where Edward G. Robinson is a slant-eyed Oriental who arbitrates Tong differences with his trusty cleaver. The story is a real thriller, with an ending which lifts the customers out of their seats—or at least those who have not fainted dead away. There is some romance to the story, the love interest being furnished by Loretta Young, who makes a very attractive Americanized Chinese flapper.

Scotland Yard on the Job.

THERE is murder, too, but on a smaller scale, in "The Silent Witness," the best picture of the week, at the Fox. This is one of those English mystery stories with a courtroom scene which is a knockout, due chiefly to the acting of Lionel Atwill, who wants to take the blame for a killing in which he was not in the least concerned, to protect his son. The boy didn't do it, either, but you never find that out until the last minute or so, and the play holds your interest from start to finish.

Love in the Jungles.

HOW the heat of Indo-China tries men's souls and drives them to strong drink is retold in "Prestige" at the St. Louis with the usual accompaniment of tom toms, faithful native servants and the customary paraphernalia of all jungle films. Ann Harding is the one white woman involved and she sticks by her worthless husband despite the fact that Adolphe Menjou is hanging around anxious to take her back to Paris and show her that the boulevards are even hotter than the equator. Killings figure in this meller also for Adolphe gets his along with a lot of natives and out of the general bloodshed Ann and her husband seem to be rising to happiness when the picture winds up.

Love's Young Dream.

SMART dialogue and Robert Montgomery will have to provide whatever success attends "Lovers Courageous" at Loew's this week. The story is all about an English girl who throws over a rich Lord to marry a penniless playwright who doesn't succeed in selling a play until the picture is almost over. Montgomery is the struggling author and Madge Evans the girl and they make a nice romance out of a not very important drama.

Burton Holmes in Talk on Hollywood

BURTON HOLMES has yielded to the spell of Hollywood. He went out there last spring to fill a "talkie" engagement, remained to acquire a hill-top villa and to become so enthusiastic about the region that he is determined to tell all about it in words and pictures. He will come to the Odeon Monday night, Feb. 15.

Mr. Holmes' camera impressions of the movie capital will carry his auditor-spectators behind the scenes and among the stars, showing how they work and play, where they live and the places where they enjoy themselves. There will be vicarious trips to Agua Caliente, Catalina and all the neighboring communities where the architecture runs to fantasy; the flowers and colors to extravagance, and where the climate is in a constant state of being "unusual."

This talk is to be followed on succeeding Monday evenings with: "New Beauty Trails in Switzerland," "Northern Europe, from Berlin through Sweden, Denmark, Iceland and Norway," "All Over Italy, from the Alps to the Ends of Sicily," and "Doing Paris and the Colonial Exposition."

Joint Recital Friday.

There will be a joint recital, free to the public, by Miss Esther Bunt, contralto, and C. J. Fiddick, basso, next Friday evening in Grace M. E. Church, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Lynch.

Triangle Club in a New Musical Comedy

Miss Jean Bronenkamp, star of the student musical comedies "Ship Ahoy" and "High Hat" at Washington University, has been selected as prima donna in "Look Who's Here,' the forthcoming Quadrangle Club production. The selection of Miss Bronenkamp completes an all-student cast of 75, including the chorus.

In support of Miss Bronenkamp are William Bryan, leading man; Jimmy Parker, juvenile; Louise La Rue, ingenue; Georgea Flynn, comedienne, and Joseph Ledbetter, comedian. Louise Osterberg and Bernard Ofner have been assigned the leading character parts, while Marvin Mueller will handle a second comedy role with Arthur Moore in a similar part. William Ogden, Perry Pasmezoglu and Sylvester Kesner and several others in minor roles complete the cast.

Gray-Olk String Quartet.

The Gray-Olk String Quartet will be presented in a recital at the North Side Y. M. C. A., 3100 North Grand boulevard, Friday, at 8 p. m. There will also be a showing of the motion picture. "Cradle of the U. S. A." and a reading, "The Perfect Tribute," by Mrs. Ruby Kembroeck.

Woman's Club to Give Play.

The dramatic section of the Woman's Club of Christ Church Cathedral will present a three-act comedy "Breezy Point," Tuesday evening at Bishop Tuttle Memorial, 1210 Locust.

German War Picture To Be Shown Today

"Comrades of 1918," a picture of the war as seen through the eyes of Germany, will be shown for a week beginning today in the German Moving Picture Theater, 2345 Lafayette avenue. In "Comrades of 1918" the reason is explained why the great war came to such an abrupt finish. This talking picture not only shows scenes in the front trenches, but also the suffering of the starving population of Germany itself.

This film was produced as an accusation against war madness. The German Reichstag has been requested to have the picture shown at least once every year in the schools in Germany as a preventive of future conflicts.

French Talkie Film "Le Million" Tonight

The Film Guild of the Y.M.H.A.-Y.W.H.A. will present "Le Million," a French talking picture, tonight and Monday evening. It is a film which pokes fun at some of America's most sacred institutions with football, gangsters, grand opera and, of course, Hollywood, seen through French eyes. "Le Million" is a pantomime, the dialogue having been cut to a minimum, with a continuous sound of music fitted to the scenes.

German Musical Comedy Tonight.

"Ehrliche Arbeit (Honest Labor), a musical comedy, will be given tonight by the German Theater Stock company in the German House Auditorium, 2345 Lafayette avenue. This comedy is being given under the auspices of the St. Louis Master Bakers' Alliance in honor of the Master Bakers' Association of the United States, which holds its convention in the Jefferson Hotel, starting today.

Gabrilowitsch Soloist on the Symphony Bills

Pianist to Play the Schumann A Minor Concerto at Golschmann's Pair of Concerts Friday and Saturday.

OSSIP GABRILOWITSCH is to play the Schumann A minor concerto as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its regular concerts at the Odeon next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. Gabrilowitsch, one of the greatest of pianists, is conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Associate with Leopold Stokowski in the direction of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Although for the past 15 years he had been devoted to the larger instrument, the orchestral ensemble, he remains as he was before he took up the baton—one of the outstanding pianists of the world.

His appearance is a feature of a program prepared by Conductor Golschmann, which includes a first time performance of the "Chants Negres" of Blair Fairchild, an American composer, now resident of Europe, who has created a work from old Negro songs. The program in addition offers Beethoven's "Leonora Overture No. 3" and from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," the three orchestral excerpts: "Minuet of the Will o' the Wisps," "Dance of the Sylphs" and "Rakoczy March."

Gabrilowitsch, who has not played in St. Louis for almost a decade, began his pianistic studies at the age of 5 and was at 16 a member of the Leschetizky class in Vienna. At 18 he made his professional debut in concert and within a couple of years had won international fame as a master of the piano. His association with orchestras dates from 1917, and in 1918 he became conducter of the Detroit orchestra, 10 years later becoming associated with Stokowski in Philadelphia, although remaining at the helm in Detroit also. He became an American citizen not long after his marriage to Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain.

The program for the concerts this week is:

Overture "Leonora No. 3," Op. 72 .... Beethoven
"Chants Negres" .... Fairchild
(First time in St. Louis).
Three Pieces from "The Damnation of Faust" .... Berlioz
(a) Minuet of the Will O' the Wisps
(b) Dance of the Sylphs
(c) Rakoczy March.
Concerto in A minor, for piano and orchestra, Op. 54 .... Schumann
I Allegro affetuoso
II Intermezzo: Andante grazioso
III Allegro vivace

"Girls in Blue" at Garrick.

Cinema Turns to Old Ones

Fitting Up the Famous Silents With Conversation for Talkies Is Now a Popular Sport out in Hollywood, But The Valentino Legend Will Keep "The Four Horsemen" Off the Screen, in All Probability, for Some Time to Come.

BARBARA STANWYCK is making a talking version of Edna Ferber's "So Big" out in Hollywood, Paramount is doing "The Miracle Man" all over again and other famous cinemas of the silent days are being fitted out with plenty of conversation for present day demands but the persistent Valentino legend probably will prevent for several years more a remake of "The Four Horsemen."

Several times, in the last three or four years, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials have considered using again the story as a vehicle for both Gilbert and Novarro, and lately, of course, for that studio's ace Don Juan, Clark Gable.

Realizing that invidious and other comparisons would be inevitable, regardless of the quality of the new issue or the name and reputation of its star, the studio has refrained from turning it into a talkie.

Valentino and his part in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" still are too well remembered.

When the rights to "The Four Horsemen" were purchased in 1921, on a 10 per cent royalty basis, with a $20,000 cash advance, the film world was skeptical.

Few believed another picture about war, following so closely others based on the same subject and the big fight itself, would be successful.

Within a few days after the picture was released, big profits began to loom. The Metro company thought it would be best to buy out Vincente Blasco Ibanez.

An agent for the company went to Europe to offer Ibanez $100,000. He held out for more. A deal was closed for $170,000, bringing the cost of the screen rights to $190,000.

The picture has grossed nearly $5,000,000. Ibanez allowed himself to be talked out of a nice bit of change.

METRO could remake the Horsemen now without any extra costs for the rights to the story—and costs are being pretty widely discussed out on the Gold Coast at the moment. Hobart Bosworth, according to his expression, speaks "from the sidelines," but his comments on this movie industry, and especially on its present salary questions, are pertinent.

Optimistic views are Bosworth's. This movie industry, of which he has been an active part since the day in 1909 when he played in "The Sultan's Power," first movie filmed in Los Angeles, he sees now as a patient undergoing an operation necessitated by prolonged bodily abuses.

The surgeon's knife (we take it he meant the bankers' axes, being wielded right heftily in some of the studios) may be painful, but the patient will come out of the ether a stronger and healthier individual, he thinks.

Economies, he believes, are misguided when they hit at the motion picture artist.

"The industry has grown on personalities," he says, "and it is realizing that now more than ever before.

"I believe that a star whose pictures break box-office records is entitled not only to exemption from a salary reduction, but also to an increase proportional to the added revenue that star brings to the industry."

The star, the writer, the director—these, he contends, are the paramount forces in successful pictures, and the stars, because it's their personalities that the public "buys," are foremost of the trio.

A LOT of changes have been made in the cinema art since Bosworth first broke into the game. Actors used to act with their hands in the old days. Now they must have something akin to brains to bring out their talents. At least such is the observation of Robert Z. Leonard, director of Robert Montgomery's "Lovers Courageous," which is playing at Loew's this week.

"The evolution of acting from the first flicker-film days to the talkies is an interesting cycle," declares Leonard. "In the early days the actors used to smear white makeup all over their faces so that they could be seen in the poor photography, and used their hands to register whatever emotion necessary. The facial expression didn't mean very much unless it was grossly exaggerated.

"When lighting was improved, acting began to get better but it still depended almost entirely upon broad gesticulation. The title explained what the actor meant anyway and it didn't really matter a great deal just what he did.

"When talkies came along, the voice of the screen and the actor opened up new fields. The screen outshone the efforts of the stage and the performances in talking pictures were even finer than those of the theater. Besides having a face, the actor now had a voice. On the stage, his face wasn't of great use for intimate suggestion because of its distance from the audience. But in the combining of stage and screen technique, acting became a matter of brains, a far cry from the old days of hand waving."

HERETOFORE the selection of a leading woman has been no great problem for Harold Lloyd because his heroine had little to do but look pleasant and act as a foil.

For three months Lloyd has been looking for a girl for the picture he has been preparing for the last 15 months. Incidentally, this picture will not be completed until this fall, a record time—for him—of two years between pictures.

In the story he and his writers are whipping into shape, the girl plays what might be termed a dual role.

Nearly every ingenue in Hollywood has been considered or tested, and at this writing Constance Cummings, Irene Purcell and Leila Hyams were the leading favorites.

Lloyd outlines the story this way:

Harold (thus he speaks of his character) comes to Hollywood because he's heard new faces are wanted. The first thing he sees when he gets off the train is a picture company at work. The star, a brunette, smiled at Harold and he falls for her.

"A day or two later he meets a beautiful blonde, and he falls for her, too, not knowing he had met her previously when she was wearing a brunet wig.

"Thinking he's in love with two girls, he is in a quandary trying to decide which he likes better when he accidentally discovers the girl removing her black wig.

"It's a simple plot, isn't it? Nothing much to it, but it's the gags that count."

Lloyd said there would be very little "thrill stuff" in his yet unnamed picture. In this respect it will be unlike several of his recent films, which depended on thrills for their biggest laughs.

"The new one is strictly a comedy-romance," Lloyd said, "with the studios and Hollywood as its background.

"No, there won't be any scenes of movie celebrities, nor will any footage be wasted showing points of interest in Hollywood.

"We will, however, use studio 'props,' such as the water tanks, for some of the gags."

PARIS, Jan. 26.

THIS is the time when Parisians spend their time visiting the art exhibits during the day and appearing at the theater for the new plays at night. One of the most interesting art showings of the season is the exhibition which Mrs. Helen Pierce Breaker has at the American Library. Mrs. Breaker, formerly of St. Louis and the daughter of Mrs. Laurence B. Pierce, has become famous in Europe for her photographic studies. Among the pictures she is showing is one of her 12-year-old son. Another which has already received interesting comment is of a Georgian princess in native dress.

Mrs. Breaker has a large studio and apartment on the Rue Compagne Premiere, in the Montparnasse or artists' quarter. She spent the Christmas holidays in Switzerland, where her son attends school.

Mrs. Mimika Frith, who for several years has been making her home in Paris at 69 Rue de la Faisanderie, is now living at the Hotel Oxford and Cambridge on the Rue St. Honore. Mrs. Frith is a sister of E. A. Farish, a former St. Louisan who makes his home in Paris, and of John Hamilton Farish of St. Louis.

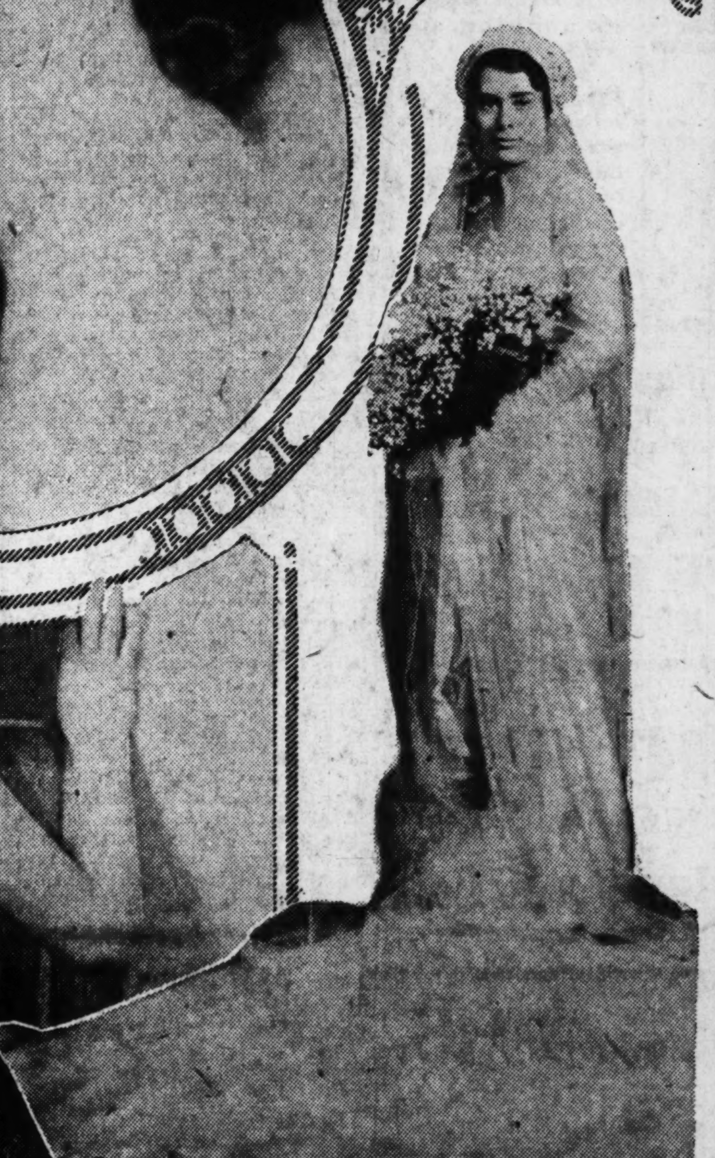
Harold Tittmann, secretary of the American Embassy in Rome, has been in Paris several days and during his stay here is at the Hotel Ambassador. Mr. Tittmann is the son of Mrs. Harold Tittmann of St. Louis. He and his wife and son visited in America about a year ago.

Mrs. Robert W. Walsh of St. Louis and her sister, Miss Pollard, are spending the winter in Egypt. They have just returned from a journey by caravan across the Sahara and plan to leave Cairo soon for a trip up the Nile, visiting Luxor and Assuan.

Dwight F. Davis has arrived in Paris and has joined his wife and daughter at their apartment here on the Rue Georgesville. With him came his daughters, Miss Alice and Miss Cynthia Davis, and his son, Dwight Jr. They intend making their home abroad for some time.

MISS KATHERINE MULVANE, daughter of Mrs. John David Mulvane, New York, whose engagement to Edward Pierce Maffitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skinker Maffitt of St. Louis, has been announced. Mr. Maffitt Jr. is vice consul at the American Consulate in Athens, Greece. —Michael Gallo, New York

MISS MARTHA PETTUS, daughter of Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, who will be a bridesmaid at the wedding, Tuesday, of her brother, Thomas Wright Pettus, and Miss Jane Tyler Messick. —Ashen-Brenner



MRS. JULIUS STANLEY BIRGE, formerly Miss Jane Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Butler Allen. Her marriage took place Monday. —Schweig.

MISS ELIZABETH STOCKING, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Jay T. Stocking, who will assist at a tea to be given tomorrow by Mrs. Harry Sprague for the executive committee of the League of Women Voters. —Ashen-Brenner.

MRS. ROBERT CHALMERS BENNETT, who was, until Jan. 30, Miss Mantu Ray Pells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ray Pells. —Jules Pierlow.

Parties for Sister Of Mrs. T. F. Fowler

MRS. WILLIAM S. LINES of Overdale, Phoenixville, Conn., who is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Later in the evening a buffet supper in honor of the visitor will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Moser at their home on the Warson road. Wednesday evening a dinner will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mayne at their home in Picardy lane, for Mrs. Lines. She was the guest of honor Thursday afternoon at a mixed tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucas at their home, 5642 Kingsbury place.

Friday Mrs. Fowler gave a luncheon at her home for her sister. The table was decorated in spring flowers in which yellow and lavender blossoms predominated. The guests later attended the concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The guests included Mrs. Hayward Gatch, Mrs. Edwin S. Harrison, Mrs. Walter Mayne/ Mrs. Robert Knapp, Mrs. James T. Pettus, Mrs. Elzey Roberts, Mrs. George Boardman Bell Jr., Miss Caroline Fowler and Miss Dorothy Collins. Mrs. Hines will leave for her home Feb. 16, following a visit of several weeks in St. Louis.

Lecture February 15 For Junior League

THE St. Louis Junior League will have as its next guest speaker at its series of Monday morning lectures, Dr. Bruno Roselli, founder and chairman of the Italian department of Vassar College. At 11 o'clock Feb. 15 he will discuss "The Roman Question and Its Settlement." There will be no lecture tomorrow.

Junior League Foregoes Ball to Help Charity

Assessment of $20 a Member for Philanthropic Purposes — Some to Earn Their Share.

THE annual Junior League ball, which a few years ago succeeded the Junior League Follies as the organization's largest project for raising funds with which to carry on its philanthropic work, has been abandoned this year. Instead, a $20 assessment levied on each member to cover the requirements for their budget has inspired many of them to try business enterprises in order to procure their quota, instead of demands on their families. Although given until next January, the close of their fiscal year, in which to submit their funds, some young women will take advantage of the Lenten season when social duties do not interfere, as an auspicious time to put their plans into operation.

Mrs. Stanley Moon, assisted by Mr. Moon, invited 25 of her friends to a tacky party after dinner last night at their home, 7 Beverly place. A sign over the front door demanded cash and each guest presented the hostess with a dollar as an admission fee. The house was decorated with amusing placards. At midnight the guests were taken to the kitchen, where they prepared their own sandwiches for supper. Mrs. Moon wore a short black evening gown fashionable a few years ago.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Rowe Garesche, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Farnsworth Bisbee, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fordyce III, Miss Caroline Tyler, Miss Alice Clark, Miss Marie Louise Hammett, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Vardeman, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Farish Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Willis Brodhead, Mrs. John Brodhead, Julius Pierce and Earl Joseph Moon, brother of the host.

Mrs. William Harold Hoover, 6 Lenox place, is conducting a bridge tournament in her home. Thirty-two young women responded to telephone invitations to play at the first meeting, and paid an entrance fee which will go to the Junior League. The play is for small stakes which eventually will be given as prizes to the last winning table. The players are eliminated as they lose, and the tournament now consists of four tables. Among those participating are Mrs. Jane Parsons, Miss Louise Church, Miss Dorcas Carr Taylor, Mrs. John M. Drescher, Miss Rose Muckerman, Mrs. Joseph Hercules and her sister-in-law, Miss Hercules, Mrs. Harley Beall Caywood, Mrs. Robert Saunders, Mrs. Cecil C. Pangman, Mrs. Kent Koerner, Mrs. Dudley French, Mrs. Bruce Seddon, Mrs. James A. McVoy and Miss Virginia McVoy, Mrs. Maury Hill, Mrs. Clifton Carter Lewis and Miss Frances Blayney.

Miss Helen Heissler, daughter of Mrs. Alice Orthwein Heissler, 5074 Waterman avenue, has evolved the scheme of making glazed tarlton bags filled with children's toys and tied with attractive ribbons. The novelties are made in various colors which change with the holidays, and later Valentine and Easter favorites will be added. In addition Miss Heissler plans children's parties from games to refreshments, including color combinations and favors and sells her services for the league's charities.

Miss Lily Busch Magnus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Magnus, is knitting bags as accessories for the popular knitted suits of the mode, and fitting them to appropriate mountings. She also plans to fashion bath mats to order.

Mrs. Leicester Faust is discussing arrangements for the sale of honey made at the Faust country place, Swastika Farm, on the Olive Street road, and Mrs. Robert Orthwein is assembling bridge score pads, each a different color, in packages of 12.

The fashioning of baby garments and sweaters will serve as other mediums for money-making.

Tea for Voters' League Leaders

MRS. HARRY E. SPRAGUE, 6104 Pershing avenue, will be hostess at a tea tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock at her home for the past presidents of the League of Woman Voters, the board of directors and the Executive Committee of the Yehudi Menuhin concert to be given at the Odeon March 2, under the auspices of the league.

Mrs. Sprague has invited the following women to assist: Mrs. Ernest W. Stix, Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, Mrs. Edward Worcester Jr., Mrs. John A. Haskell, Mrs. Sidney Maestre, Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson and Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord. Mrs. Luther Ely Smith will give a report on the sale of boxes for the concert; Miss Frances Blayney will give her report on programs and Mrs. Sydney Salkey on the ticket sale.

Mrs. W. Victor Weir is president of the league.

Religious Drama For Lent Planned

THE WESTERN CATHOLIC UNION will present the religious drama, "Everyman" at many Catholic parishes in St. Louis during the Lenten season. The drama will be given by the Thelonian Players of St. Louis who have contributed their services and the play will be presented under the direction of Miss Paula Hoegen. About 16 parishes have booked the drama, the entire proceeds of each performance to be applied to a charity named by the pastor of the respective parish.

The Thelonian Players in moving this ancient morality play many times during the season of lent are following the customs of old England in regard to this and other religious dramas, for as early as 1268 at Chester in England, there is evidence of the town pageant. In York these pageants moved from station to station so that all the people in the city could witness them without moving far from their homes.

"Everyman," was presented in England as one of the town pageants before the year 1520 when the work was first edited. Its origin is commonly attributed to Peter of Diest of Holland. The drama was popular in Dutch as well as in German and Latin and it is known that in England it was a favorite subject of representation by traveling companies at feasts and holidays, or by noblemen's troups of players in the halls of castles.

The role of Everyman in the series in St. Louis will be played by Peter J. Hoegen. The cast includes, William Winkler, Henry Schmandt, Leo Robben, Elmer Krings, Edward Schneiderhahn, Sylvester Schuler, Arthur Hanneken, John Gorman, Don Cunningham, Miss Mildred Planthold, Miss Florence Knobbe, Miss Adeline Krings, Miss Betty Rapp, Miss Julia Koch and Miss Frances Heath.

The following is the schedule for the plays including the date, the parish and the place at which the play will be given: Sunday, Feb. 14, SS. Peter and Paul, Goller Hall, 816 Allen avenue; Thursday, Feb. 18, St. Agnes, Croatian Hall, Twelfth and Russell boulevards; Sunday, Feb. 21, St. Cecilia, parish hall, 5400 Louisiana avenue; Wednesday, Feb. 24, Holy Family, parish hall, 4129 Humphrey street; Thursday, Feb 25, St. Henry, parish hall, California avenue and Hickory street; Sunday, Feb. 28, St. Barbara, parish hall, 1359 Hamilton avenue; Tuesday, March 1, Our Lady of Perpetual Help, parish hall, 2001 East Linton avenue; Wednesday, March 2, St. Francis de Sales, basement hall, Gravois and Lynch avenues; Friday, March 4, All Souls, Overland, parish hall, 9602 Milton avenue; Sunday, March 6, St. Augustine, parish hall, Hebert street and Lismore avenue; Tuesday, March 8, St. Bernard, parish hall, 4023 Gratiot street; Wednesday, March 8, Resurrection, parish hall, 3880 Meramec street; Thursday, March 10, St. Engelbert, parish hall, 4336 Shreve avenue; Sunday, March 13, St. George, parish hall, 8240 Gravois avenue; and Tuesday, March 15, St. Boniface, parish hall, 405 West Shirmer avenue.

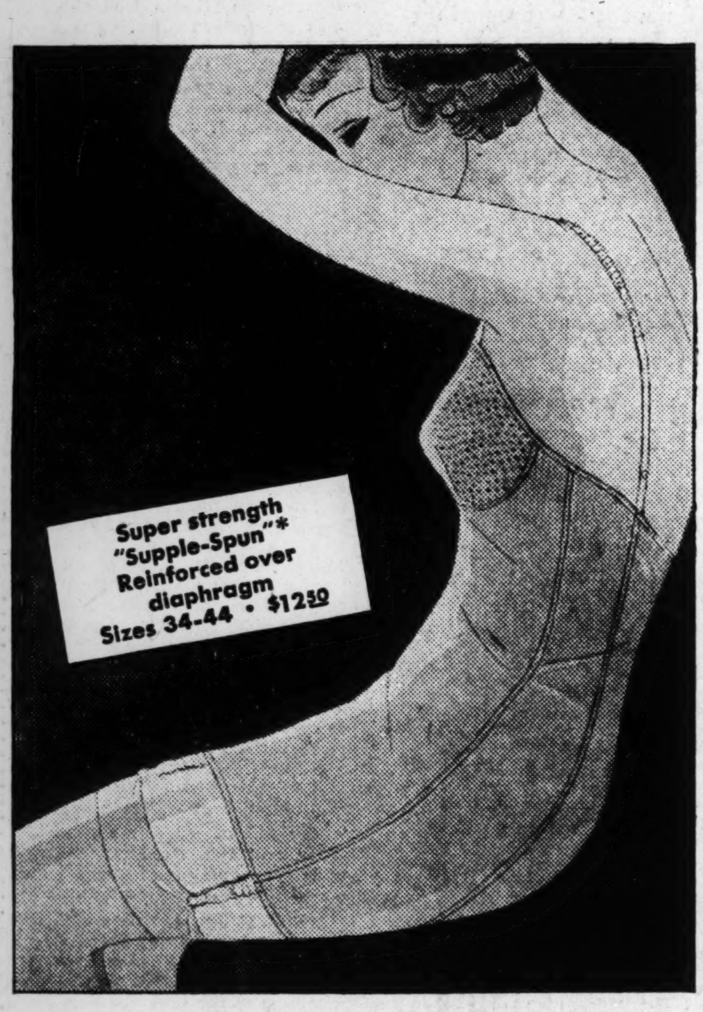
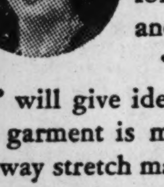
FOR HEAVIER FIGURES





"The full figure need no longer envy the slender her 'Sensation'"
says Antoinette Donnelly

"'SENSATION PLUS' gives the heavier figure those lovely, supple lines 'Sensation' foundations have been creating for the slender," says this famous stylist and beauty specialist.

"If yours is a heavier figure, 'Sensation Plus' will give ideal restraint and absolute ease. For the new garment is made of 'Supple-Spun,'* that marvelous two-way stretch material—in a heavier grade, of course.

"The new garment is boned and reinforced over the diaphragm . . . Yet it gives you ease, comfort, and no corset consciousness. Like all other 'Sensations,' it is ride-up-proof. It clings tighter than your own skin."

Have No Gray Hair Streaks Before 60

Now simply brushing hair ends grayness so perfectly no one will suspect you ever had a gray hair

Don't let gray hair, or hair streaked with gray, ruin your business or social career because it makes people think you are "too old." You can now end this handicap easily, quickly, and inexpensively right at home. And the results will be so perfect that no one will suspect you have done a thing to your hair.

Do One Simple Thing

Just sprinkle a few drops of KOLOR-BAK on your hair brush, and brush your hair as usual. This wonderful, colorless liquid will cause your gray hairs to disappear like magic. A new, youth-like color will be imparted to those ugly, gray hairs. And as your hair becomes youth-like in color, you will look years younger, far more attractive.

Obtain KOLOR-BAK at any drug or department store. Use as directed—and—almost before you realize it your gray hairs will be youth-like in color.

Insist upon KOLOR-BAK for it is different in formula and results from all other methods. No other product is "just as good." KOLOR-BAK offers the most natural way science has found to end gray hair. Obtain today, and refuse all substitutes.

FORMAL OPENING OF ANNUAL EXPOSITION AT 1 O'CLOCK

Twenty-Seven Makes Will Be Shown in Elaborate Passenger Car Salon — Great Strides in Design — Striking Decorations for Exposition in New Mart Building.

THE twenty-fifth annual St. Louis Automobile Show will be formally opened to the public at 1 o'clock today in the New Mart Building at Twelfth and Spruce streets. This formal event marks the silver anniversary of the first automobile show, which was held 25 years ago in the Jai Alai Building, now known as the Winter Garden, on De Baliviere avenue. That show was conducted by the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and all subsequent shows have been under the auspices of that trade body, whose members include all of the distributers of motor cars in St. Louis and most of the dealers. The show will be declared open at 1 o'clock by L. M. Stewart, president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, and it will continue thereafter from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. each day until Saturday night, Feb. 13.

At the Automobile Show 22 motor car distributers will exhibit 27 makes of automobiles, a few of them having two lines, as Cadillac and La Salle, Studebaker and Rockne, Hudson and Essex, while three distributers of Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge also distribute the Plymouth.

This year the automobile show will be strictly a passenger car salon. Owing to the limitations of space in the new Mart Building, it was not possible to accommodate trucks or the many applicants for accessory exhibits. The 1932 passenger cars will be shown in squares or spaces ranging in area from 1500 square feet to 5200 square feet. Virtually every distributer will show a full line of the models of the car which he handles.

Alfred Reeves, who is general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the manufacturers' organization, declares that the 1932 cars, both in mechanical improvements and in body designs, are three years ahead of the 1931 lines. For this reason it is believed that many thousands of people from St. Louis and surrounding territory will be eager to see the beautiful automobiles at the Automobile Show and to have explained to them the striking, and in some cases startling, mechanical changes that have been made.

Included in the mechanical changes are such important items as automatic clutch, automatic choke control, automatic decarbonizer, air cooled gasoline lines, floating power, rubber-mounted engines, automatic starters to prevent stalling of motors, two-speed or dual ratio axles, automatic shock absorber adjustments, superchargers on carburetors, improved. transmissions and the widely talked of free wheeling and synchro-mesh transmissions.

In addition, many other improvements of great interest to motor car enthusiasts have been made. Among these are new safety devices, larger and roomier bodies which have been silenced, longer wheel bases, increased engine power, down-draft carburetors and improved methods of lubrication. It is asserted by automotive engineers and designers that the body designs for 1932 are the most beautiful ever produced. The public will probably approve this statment when they see the cars at the St. Louis show.

In addition to the motor cars there will be three exhibits of motor boats. One of these is the Gar Wood line. Another is the line of boats manufactured by the Dodge company. A third is the Chris-Craft and the fourth line is the Century. The boat exhibits is in the south end of the display space.

The Automobile Show will be held on the fourth floor of the Mart Building. The area of this floor is approximately 100,000 square feet. Visitors to the show will be taken to this floor on four large, high speed, very safe elevators. Each of these elevators is permitted by the inspector of elevators to carry 60 persons. By their use, 240 persons can be taken from the first floor to the fourth floor in 30 seconds, so there will be no congestion. In addition to the ample elevator capacity, there are six stairways

Oldsmobile Adds Straight Eight to Six-Cylinder Line

Ride Regulator, Free Wheeling, Syncromesh Transmission in New Models.

Two new Oldsmobile cars—a six and an eight—are exhibited at the show, E. E. McIndoo, zone manager, announces.

Among the more important Oldsmobile features are a selective ride regulator with dash control and double-action hydraulic shock absorbers; free wheeling with improved synchromesh transmission and silent second gear; an engine decarbonizer; full automatic choke; improved downdraft manifolding and carburetion on both the six and and the eight with dual carburetion and manifolding on the eight-cylinder engine; high compression cylinder head; automatic heat control; oil temperature regulator; 116½-inch wheelbase, and complete rubber insulation between engine and chassis and chassis and body.

Two Powerful Engines.

The six-cylinder engine has been given added power by increasing the bore and enlarging the valves. It now has a 3 5-16-inch bore and a 4⅛-inch stroke, giving 74 horsepower.

The straight eight engine has a 3-inch bore and a 4½-inch stroke and develops 87 horsepower.

The chief difference between the two engines is in the carburetion and manifolding. The eight has a duplex carburetor and intake manifold with separate leads to two sets of four cylinders each, thus providing equal fuel distribution.

An entirely new feature in automobiles is the decarbonizer unit, which enables an owner to remove carbon from combustion chamber and valve stems without effort and at a minimum cost. This is described elsewhere.

New Type Engine Mounting.

A new type engine mounting has been designed to dampen vibration. At the front end the mountings are set in rubber at a scientifically determined angle while at the rear two "biscuit" type rubber mountings are used. A torque reaction stabilizer to check any periodic vibrations at low speed is fastened, through rubber, to the frame and transmission housing.

Bodies are of the well-known Fisher built composite wood and metal construction, amply braced at points of stress and featuring open joints where squeaks might occur. As a result of the larger chassis added seating space and leg room are given.

Body types of the standard Oldsmobile six and eight are: Two-door sedan, business coupe, four-door sedan, sport coupe, convertible roadster and patrician four-door sedan. Six wheels, either painted wood, natural wood or wire, with fender wells, hold-down irons and locks; trunk platform, white sidewall tires chrome plated trim rings for the wheels and snap-on chrome plated spokes for wire wheels may be secured at slight additional cost.

New Pontiac Cars Designed Especially For Riding Comfort

Under all extremes of roads—from rough country lanes to smooth city streets—the new Pontiacs provide comfort. Through a small control button on the steering column a driver may adjust the resistance of the hydraulic shock absorbers to meet the varying rebound of the springs. When driving over an unpaved roadbed, the rebound becomes greater. On rough roads, therefore, or with a lightly loaded car, the driver by moving the ride control button, reduces the size of the escape valve openings within the shock absorbers and causes them to offer maximum resistance. When driving with a fully loaded car or on smooth boulevards where full spring action gives greatest comfort, another touch on the control button opens the shock absorber valves and reduces their resistance. Operation of the escape valve is through a rod and lever system similar to that used to apply the brakes of a car.

Pontiac's combination of ride control with complete rubber insulation of the chassis is regarded as an important contribution toward complete riding comfort. Large rubber pads—47 of them—cushion the engine from the frame and the frame from the body, absorbing minor driving shocks by preventing metal-to-metal contact. So complete is this rubber insulation that it extends even to the connecting links of the shock absorbers. They are attached to the axles through rubber, which permits a slight movement sufficient to permit the springs to absorb, without restraint, such minor shocks as are encountered in driving a car over the tarred joints of a concrete pavement. But the moment a larger bump is encountered the restraining force of the shock absorbers instantly becomes operative.

Long wheelbases in both the six and eight minimize the disturbing effect of bumps, as do the wide tires which cushion the cars more effectively from the road. Car springs are inclosed and permanently lubricated, an important factor in riding comfort.

Additional comfort results also from the new design and generous size of Pontiac's bodies. They provide ample leg room and have unusually wide seats. Seat springs are manufactured in the same manner as those used in the finest furniture, being of the "tied-down" type. Back cushions are higher and more yielding. Careful insulation throughout excludes heat, cold and rain, as well as engine sound. Summer driving is made comfortable by a new cowl ventilator and by a ventilating windshield which afford ample ingress for fresh air.

'Silver Streak' Engine for New Willys Models

Used in Both Six and Eight—Standard and De Luxe Willys-Knights.

Wholly new Willys sixes and eights with the "Silver Streak 100,000-mile motor," new Willys-Knight sleeve valve cars and a de luxe Willys-Knight line, are exhibited by the Southwest Willys Co., distributer.

Features on the new models include free-wheeling, safety glass, double acting shock eliminators, both front and rear; larger four-wheel brakes, ride-control on Willys-Knight 66-D, double-drop frame, smaller wheels and larger tires, Float-O oil device, finger-tip control, bodies insulated against noise, drafts and vibrations and engines mounted in rubber.

The Willys Six and Eight.

The ample wheelbase of the Willys Six makes possible the long and sweeping lines. From the trim, V-type grilled radiator to the long, sweeping hood and cowl, and thence back to the smartly contoured rear quarters, the modernity of the design is aided by a variety of color combinations which blend perfectly with the rich upholstery of velvet mohair and walnut trim strips. The body types include a five-passenger sedan, five-passenger coach, two-passenger coupe, four-passenger coupe, two-passenger roadster and four-passenger roadster.

The Willys-Overland eight appears with minor changes and refinements in engine and chassis. The bodies consist of sedan, custom sedan and de luxe roadster for four passengers, having a wheelbase of 121 inches.

The Willys-Knight Line.

The model 95 Willys-Knight mounted on a chassis with a wheelbase of 113 inches, is in four body models, a sedan, coach, two passenger coupe, and four passenger coupe. These bodies are ultra-modern, distinguished by fashionable lines, warm colors and luxurious interiors.

Luxury, quality and comfort reach a high degree in the new Willys-Knight 66-D, built only in the custom car class, consisting of a sedan and victoria, and driven by the most powerful twin sleeve engine ever built by this largest manufacturer of Knight-engined cars.

Free wheeling is available in this model as standard equipment. In addition to the hydraulic shock eliminators on all wheels, this car also is equipped with the modern Monroe ride selector, manually operated from a convenient control lever on the instrument panel.

The engine develops 87 horsepower, has a top speed of from 75 to 80 miles an hour.

New Process Holds Car Finish Firmly To Steel Surfaces

'Bonderizing' Prevents Rust and Corrosion From Affecting Paint or Lacquer.

"With the beauty appeal more dominant than ever in the brilliant new models just announced by motor car manufacturers, the matter of retaining these beautiful finishes in their original luster is no longer a problem or extra expense to those whose new cars come Bonderized," says G. E. Luke, sales manager of the Parker Rust Proof Co. of Detroit.

"Until very recently, the finish of a motor car soon after it went into use began to chip, crack, flake and peel off—first on fenders, splash guards, wire wheels and other sheet metal parts.

"This was due to many and varying causes, but chiefly to the ravages of the elements in the form of salt air, rain or snow. Mud, flying gravel, scratches in parking lots and on the streets, all play a part in exposing the metal surfaces and giving rust and corrosion the slight foothold they need to spread in every direction.

"Many of the more progressive manufacturers now produce cars in which this matter of beauty-maintenance will present no problems to the owner. For these makers use a new process known as Bonderizing, which so tightly secures the paint, enamel or lacquer to fenders and sheet metal parts that it is absolutely proof against the attacks of the elements.

"Even when those scratches occur that seem inevitable in the life of every motor car, the damage is confined to the area immediately affected.

"In production those parts that are to be Bonderized are first cleaned, then immersed in the Bonderizing solution. This changes the surface of the steel so that a microscopic crystalline coating entirely covers it. An ideal surface is thus formed for the enamel or lacquer, which is absorbed into the tiny pores, and upon drying is firmly and securely anchored to the steel. The lacquer or enamel now lies not merely upon the surface of the steel, but in truth penetrates into its very texture and structure.

"So, though a portion of the surface covering may be scratched off by violent means, the adjacent crystalline formation imposes an effectual barrier against the spread of rust and corrosion that ordinarily follows upon an abrasion.

"So far-reaching have been the results from this process that it is now used, not only in the motor car industry, but on electric refrigerators, bathroom cabinets, metal furniture and steel office equipment."

Both Rockne Six Lines, the '65' and '75' Are Exhibited

New Car Named for Famous Notre Dame Coach—Many Advanced Features.

Both lines of the new Rockne six—named for the late Notre Dame coach, the "65" and the "75"—are exhibited by the Rockne division of Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., the distributer. All models of both lines have improved free wheeling in all forward speeds plus full synchronized shifting, ultra quiet in all speeds and advantageous when the braking power of the engine is preferred to the economy of free wheeling. Engines are cushioned in live rubber at four points of suspension.

Switch-key starting, standard equipment in all models, simultaneously turns on the ignition and starts the engine. If the driver accidentally stalls his engine switch-key starting automatically and immediately starts it again.

Engine Details.

The Rockne six "65" has a 110-inch wheelbase and a 66 horsepower six-cylinder motor that delivers a smooth 70 miles an hour. The "75" line is mounted on 114-inch wheelbase, and has a 72 horsepower motor.

The "65" line includes a five-passenger, four door sedan; a five-passenger two-door coach; a five-passenger two-door convertible sedan; a convertible roadster with rumble seat; a two-passenger coupe with roomy storage compartment in the rear deck, and a four-passenger coupe with rumble seat.

The "75" group consists of five-passenger four-door sedan, a five-passenger two-door convertible sedan, a two-passenger coupe, a four-passenger coupe (with rumble seat) and a four-passenger convertible roadster, also with rumble seat.

Each body is molded from one-piece steel front fenders to tail light to reduce wind resistance and increase speed. Sloping radiators and windshields, outlined with chromium, visorless header-panels, streamlined tops and air-foil aprons at rear, which conceal fuel tanks and subdue the rear end wind resistance, are distinct contributions to the speed and the appearance of the cars. Bodies are swung low, yet have abundant room for the tallest motorist in the smartly appointed interiors.

All "65" bodies are of steel fused into a single piece of electric arc welding. The "75" bodies are of steel with steel and wood framework.

Detailed specifications of the "65" chassis serve as a key f both lines, the "75" being larg and stronger in proportion to grea er power and dimensions.

Pistons are of cast iron elect plated to a glass smoothness in th modern method which permi closer fitting pistons. Craukshaf are unusually sturdy and are su ported by four oversize bearing Valves are chrome nickel steel fo intake and silchrome steel for e haust. Connecting rods are drop forged from selected steel. Lubr cation is full pressure to all bea ings and front end chain.

Announcing the new

The New Five-Passenger Sedan, on Display at the Show.

WITH SILENT SYNCHRO-MESH TRANSMISSION

QUIET IN ALL THREE FORWARD SPEEDS

THE DESIRE for Packard quality is as great today as it ever was. Those who have always had fine cars continue to want first-class transportation. Other thousands still long to advance their standards.

But for two years many have felt they could not afford the cost of quality.

Now the new Packard Light Eight series cars overcome the price obstacle—answer the demand of the times! With these entirely new cars—designed expressly to fit today's economic conditions—Packard provides Packard quality at new low prices. The five-passenger Sedan, for example, at $1750.

For the first time in thirty-two years of fine car manufacture it becomes possible to offer a Packard at such a price. It means that thousands of motorists, who for years have admired and wanted the beauty, luxury and distinction of Packard transportation, can now enjoy it. For the new Packards cost no more to buy or to operate than do cars offering far less in size, performance, prestige and pride of ownership.

In announcing its remarkable new Light Eight, Packard is again deliberately expanding the scope of the fine car field, as it has done before in recent years. Packard is offering a heretofore impossible value. Only the expectation of a very substantial volume, plus advanced engineering, new manufacturing processes and prices on fine materials which touch pre-war levels, now make it possible. These facts will be borne out by your most minute examination of the new Packard Light Eight. You will find it a large, powerful, roomy car—with a 110 horsepower motor and a wheelbase of 128 inches. You will appreciate its modern grace and beauty of design—its low, handsome, unmistakably "Packard" sweep of lines.

Going deeper you will find: an entirely new frame of double-drop design, affording new strength and rigidity with lightness; a new and exclusive Angleset Rear Axle which permits a new, low body mounting and brings to hypoid gearing new operating advantages with worm drive effect; the straight-eight engine "floated" on live rubber; shatter-proof glass in windshield and all windows; bumpers and six-ply tires as standard equipment; complete body insulation, and newly luxurious appointments.

You will get the greatest thrill of all when you drive the new Light Eight. It provides surprising acceleration, achieved through the new high ratio of engine power to car weight—one horsepower to less than every forty pounds of car weight. It provides the new Packard Silent Synchro-mesh Transmission, quiet in all three speeds; new Finger Control Free-Wheeling; and Ride Control—shock absorbers instantly adjustable from the dash—just as found on the larger and more costly Packard cars.

We cordially invite you to come in and go over the new Packard Light Eight in detail. Four beautiful models are offered, on the same chassis. Compare them with any cars at any price for beauty, luxury, performance. We promise you that the Packard Light Eight is the car you will want and be proud to own.

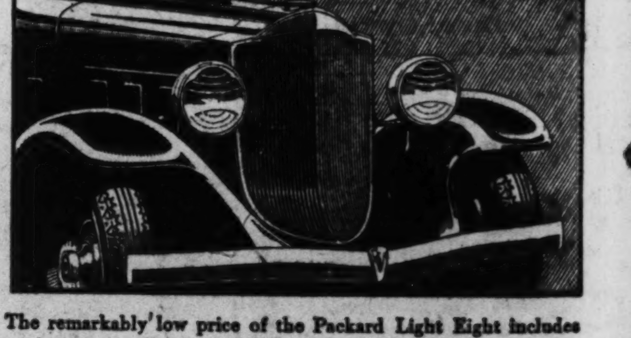
at the factory

The new Light Eight, like all Packard cars, is standard equipped with shatter-proof glass for the complete protection of passengers as well as the driver

Packard Ride Control is the original adjustable shock absorbing system, providing safety and riding ease regardless of the load, road or temperature

In the new Packard Light Eight you will find added pleasure in operating Packard's Synchro-mesh Transmission, quiet in all three speeds. Gear shifting, either up or down, is effortless

Unseen beneath the beautifully tailored interior luxury, but vastly important, is the thorough Packard body insulation. Squeaks and rattles, outside heat or cold cannot intrude



The remarkably low price of the Packard Light Eight includes equipment usually charged for as extras on other cars of similar price. In making comparisons be sure to credit the Light Eight with graceful, sturdy bumpers, front and rear, shatter-proof glass throughout and six-ply tires for which you pay nothing extra

Free Wheeling Refined in New Studebaker Cars

Pioneer in This Improvement Develops It With Synchronized Shifting.

Studebaker, pioneer in free wheeling, offers it now in all forward speeds plus synchronized shifting in the new Studebaker exhibited by Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., distributer.

In addition the new Studebakers have other refinements, which include increased wheelbases, increased body dimensions, new convertible body types, safety plate glass standard throughout, cushioned power, automatic starting, automatic ride control, full automatic spark control, efficient silencing of engine, chassis and body, "air-curve" body design and new empire colors.

Twenty-four Body Styles.

Twenty-two smart new models, completely redesigned as to appearance, are offered on four wheelbases—the President eight, the Commander eight, the Dictator eight and the Stduebaker six. Among these are eight of the new convertible body types—a sedan and a roadster on each wheelbase. In addition there are five passenger sedans, St. Regis broughams, two and four passenger coupes and a seven-passenger sedan and seven-passenger limousine on the President eight chassis only. There is a State or Regal model with extra equipment for each body type on all wheelbases.

The improved free wheeling of the new Studebakers operates in all forward speeds, making use of the clutch necessarily only in starting and stopping. A hand lever protruding from beneath the instrument board, and conveniently located below the steering wheel and slightly to the right of it, provides positive control instantly. A dial on the dash indicates clearly whether you are in free wheeling or conventional.

New Shock Absorbers.

Other new features include automatic starting—a turn of the switch key instantly starts the engine and keeps it running—and automatic ride control. This feature is the function of an entirely new type of shock absorber with which all President and Commander eights are equipped. These new absorbers are theormostatically controlled and automatically adjust themselves for maximum riding comfort regardless of temperature, speed or road surface.

In the Studebaker Six power has been increased to 80 horsepower.

The smoothness of both six and eight cylinder engine design has been materially bettered in the new models by the use of "cushioned power." Heavy live rubber mountings at all four points of suspension effectually absorb every remaining trace of engine vibration throughout the entire speed range.

Entirely new body lines which sweep back in a new "aircurve" streamline effect have been adopted. Sloping windshields melt into the new roof line which curves back gracefully to form a neatly molded rear quarter.

All 26 Models In Buick Line Have 'Wizard Control'

Automatic Clutch, Free Wheeling Syncromesh Transmission, and Ride Control.

Every one of the 26 models in the Buick line for 1932 has wizard control, resulting from the automatic clutch, free wheeling and silent second syncromesh transmission, according to R. N. Soule, zone manager. All of them have as standard equipment, or may be equipped with ride regulator, engine oil temperature regulator, the new instrument panel that groups all instruments to the left, under the driver's eye, and many other advancements. All are powered by the new Buick valve-in-head straight eight engine.

Four Series of Buicks.

The small cars of the Buick line are the 32-50 series, on 114-inch wheelbase. There are eight models in this series, including a new five-passenger victoria coupe and a five-passenger convertible phaeton of unusually smart lines. The Buick eight engine for this series develops 78½ horsepower with standard compression and 82½ with high compression.

In the 32-60 series, built on the 118-inch wheelbase, there are seven models. In design and finish these cars are almost identical with the bigger models and represent one of Buick's best values. The 32-60 series engine delivers 90 horsepower with standard compression, high compression increasing this to 96 horsepower.

The 32-80 and 32-90 de luxe models differ only in number of models and wheelbase length. There are two models in the 32-80 series, both on the 126-inch wheelbase—a roomy, finely appointed five-passenger sedan and a smart five-passenger traveler coupe with built-in trunk. The 32-90 series on the 134-inch wheelbase offers nine models. Both of these series have Buick's new 104-horsepower motor. By adopting the optional offer of high compression, this horsepower can be increased to 113.

The Automatic Clutch.

The automatic clutch feature of Buick control is operated by vacuum from the intake manifold. A floor button, located alongside the clutch pedal, is provided to turn on and shut off the vacuum. To shift gears it is only necessary to rest the weight of the foot on this button instead of using the clutch pedal to throw the clutch out. Left the foot and the clutch re-engages.

To free wheel the button is depressed and the foot removed from the accelerator. To come out of free wheeling reverse this process. With the automatic clutch and syncromesh transmission gears can be shifted from low to second, second to high and from high back to second without retarding car speed and without the effort of declutching.

By grouping the instruments to the left of the instrument panel Buick is enabled to build a commodious glove and parcel compartment into the right side of the panel. This compartment has a private key.

The body insulation dampens out mechanical and road noises, and in addition gives protection against both heat and cold. In the 1932 eights the inside of the cowl has a heavy layer of felt fitted from dash to doorpost. The doors and body panels are lined with sound-proofing material, deadening all drumming noises. All openings around the brake, clutch and starter pedals, transmission case and brake lever are fitted with heavy felt that keeps out heat and cold.

Auburn Shows 'Eight' and 'Twelve', Offers New Idea

'Dual Ratio' in All Custom Models Gives Wide Range of Performance.

Greatly improved eight-cylinder Auburn cars, and a wholly new 12-cylinder Auburn car with 160 h. p. engine, are exhibited by E. J. Johnson, Inc., the Auburn-Cord distributer.

All Auburn custom models have "dual ratio," through the use of which a driver has instant selection of two complete sets of gear ratios, merely by turning a control on the dash of the car. When hilly or mountainous country, sand or adverse road conditions are encountered, the driver selects greater power for the rear wheels by turning the dash control. On flat or level stretches of road, he can increase the speed of the rear wheels ,and hence the speed of his car, without increasing the speed of the engine.

For Smooth Operation.

The 12-160 engine is a departure in many ways from conventional practices. The "V" type design has been used, but the two cylinder banks have been cast en bloc. This makes for greater engine rigidity and increased accuracy of alignment in machining.

Combined with a flexible engine and advanced rear axle is a transmission that provides silent mesh synchronized gears and L. G. S. free wheeling unit. It is a similar combination to that used by Auburn in its 1931 models with the addition of certain refinements. L. G. S. type free wheeling provides free wheeling in all forward speeds.

A small lever at the left of the dash permits the driver to adjust the shock absorbers to any road condition immediately. Two other chassis features are the Startix ignition and automatic chassis lubrication.

The Auburn Eight.

Two distinct lines are offered in the 12-160, the standard models and the custom. While standard models are equipped with free wheeling, silent and constant mesh gears, they do not include dual ratio. On the standard models a 17x6 tire is used; a 17x6.50 on the custom models, wood wheels, and 17x7 on wire wheels. All tires are six ply.

The new series of Auburn straight eights has selective ride control shock absorbers, L. G. S. free wheeling, silent and constant mesh transmission gears, Startix ignition, automatic chassis lubrication, irreversible steering mechanism and X type braced frame, and dual ratio in the custom models.

In general outward appearance the 8-100 series follows closely the lines of the 8-98 series of 1931. The car is mounted on a 127-inch wheelbase (136-inch wheelbase for seven passenger models).

The engine is a Lycoming Straight Eight, developing 100 horse power at 3,400 r. p. m. A variety of new color combinations is available on the new models which are seven in both the standard and custom lines, including five and seven passenger sedans, two-door five-passenger brougham, two-passenger business man's coupe, five-passenger convertible phaeton, sedan, two-passenger cabriolet with rumble seat, and a two-passenger speedster.

Auto Show Opens Today

leading down to the first floor, for emergency use only.

The decorations for the show and scheme of lighting are the most beautiful and the most effective ever used in St. Louis at any show. E. C. Dillmann, who for 20 years has been the official decorator for the Veiled Prophet ball, has decorated the Automobile Show.

More than 6000 yards of velour have been used for draping all the walls of the fourth floor and each of the 196 posts on that floor has been covered with scarlet velour. A 14-inch valance of silver cloth extends around the entire wall at the top of the velour, and the same silver cloth valance is at the top or apex of each of the posts.

To relieve the brilliancy of the scarlet and silver, black velour panels have been inset 30 feet apart on the walls. The effect is unusual and very attractive.

In each of the bays, which means between each of the four posts, a 300-watt electric lamp has been installed and covered with a reflecting white globe which diffuses the light in every direction. It will be noticed that there is hardly any shadow anywhere in the building near these lights.

Parking facilities after 5:30 p. m. every day during the show will be ample in the vicinity of the building. Before that hour for daytime parkers, there are 10 parking lots and parking garages close to the Automobile Show building.

Unusual care has been given to the arrangement of the show and working out of its hundreds of details by the Show Committee in charge. Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary of the Milstrand Motor Co., is chairman of this committee. Schlecht has served on 11 previous Show Committees. He is at this time treasurer of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

Other members of the committee are: Guy W. Oliver, president, Oliver Cadillac Co.; Arthur R. Lindburg, president, Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc.; F. A. Atcheson, branch manager, Ford Motor Co.; A. W. L. Gilpin, regional manager, Chevrolet Motor Co. Ex-officio members of the committee are L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., who is president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, and Maj. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, who is general manager of the Automobile Show.

Maj. Lee has managed 24 of the 25 Automobile Shows that have been held in St. Louis during that number of years.

At the annual meeting in Chicago Tuesday of the International Association of Automobile Show Managers, Maj. Lee was re-elected president of the organization. Maj. Lee has served in this capacity for 11 consecutive years.

The association consists of managers of automobile shows from 34 cities including New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Brooklyn, Pittsburg and Philadelphia.

Pontiac V-Eight Line Is Added to An Improved Six

Longer Wheelbase, Syncromesh Transmission, Free Wheeling on 6-Cylinder Car.

Two cars, a six and a V-eight, each in six Fisher body types, make up the Pontiac presentation at the show, according to announcement by R. D. Williams, zone manager. All feature ride control, synchro-mesh transmission with quiet second gear and controlled free wheeling. The body models offered on both chassis are two-door and four-door sedans, custom sedan, coupe and convertible coupe.

In addition to the ride control mechanism, instantly adjustable from the instrument panel, the chassis of these cars are cushioned by rubber at 47 points. The wheelbase of the six has been lengthened to 114 inches, while the springs on both chassis are protected by covers and are permanently lubricated. The wheelbase of the V-eight is 117 inches.

Designed for Economy.

The engines of the six and V-eight develop 65 and 85 horsepower, respectively. Economy in oil and gas consumption marks the operation of both motors.

A three-jet graduated carburetor supplies exactly the amount of fuel needed at varying speeds, while a device known as an "economizer" carefully meters the gasoline from the fuel tank. The "economizer" releases added fuel only after road speed exceeds 50 miles per hour. Pontiac shares this year with two high-priced cars in offering the new millimeter AC spark plugs which improve efficiency and economy by preventing pre-ignition at high speeds or fouling at low speeds.

Matching well the performance of these new Pontiac cars is the distinctive design of the new Fisher bodies. Contours are smooth and lines are rakish, the windshield slanting at an angle of 10 degrees to meet the unvisored roof. The radiator front is sharply V-shaped and its impressive height is emphasized by the chrome-plated vertical bars of the built-in-grille.

Why wait for other cars to follow Studebaker?

On July 10, 1930, when no other cars in America had Free Wheeling, Studebaker introduced this epochal improvement, the greatest forward step in automotive engineering in 19 years.

In January, 1932, at the New York Automobile Show, 29 makes, comprising practically all the cars exhibited, had followed Studebaker to Free Wheeling.

On December 10, 1931, the Triumphant New Studebakers presented the public with Safety Plate Glass at no extra charge, in all windshields, in all windows, in all models.

Watch what happens before the end of 1932. Note the cars that will follow Studebaker with Safety Glass all around as standard equipment.

No cars in America could successfully resist public demand for Free Wheeling—and no cars will be able to withstand the pressure of public opinion in behalf of Safety Glass.

There is no disputing the ever-present need for Safety Glass in all motor cars. And Studebaker, with characteristic progressiveness, now provides you with that protection. Once an expensive "extra," Safety Plate Glass today comes to you in the Triumphant New Studebakers as the gift of this 80-year-old transportation institution.

It comes to you not in the windshields alone—for that is not protection enough—but in all windows of all models as well.

Studebaker presents Safety Plate Glass all around at no extra cost as one of 32 sensational betterments that make the Triumphant New Studebakers the "four great buys of 1932." And Studebaker's safety provisions go all the way. Armor-plated bodies, exceptionally low center of gravity, automatic starting, reflex tail lights, non-breakable steering wheels, extra large brakes, no-glare windshields, steel running boards, and vastly finer Free Wheeling plus new fast-action Synchronized Shifting round out the total of Studebaker safety features.

Accept no new car as your car unless it's as safe as a Studebaker. Your own safety—the safety of those who ride with you—demands this. Go to the nearest display room and see the Triumphant New Studebakers today.

STUDEBAKER—BUILDER OF CHAMPIONS—PIONEER OF FREE WHEELING

Powerful Eight Now Companion to Marmon 'Sixteen'

It Has 125 H. P. Engine—Larger Model Continued With Improvements of Details.

The 200-horsepower Marmon Sixteen, improved and refined, and the Marmon 8-125, a new straight eight in the moderate price field, are exhibited by the Archer-Mann Motor Co., distributers.

The engine which powers the Marmon Sixteen is the same that won for Howard Marmon the medal of the Metropolitan Section of the Society of Automotive Engineers for the most notable achievement of the year. It is constructed largely of aluminum and the cylinder surfaces are of case hardened steel, one of the hardest metal surfaces known.

Including equipment, this engine weighs but 930 pounds, which is several hundred pounds less than if cast iron were used instead of aluminum. The unusual ratio of one horsepower for each 4.65 pounds of engine weight is developed.

Marmon Sixteen Styles.

In exterior design the Marmon Sixteen is one of the most advanced cars on the road. It has clean, sweeping lines, with both front and rear end freed of unsightly chassis details. The line is continued with eight standard body styles, including a five-passenger sedan, five-passenger close coupled sedan, seven-passenger sedan, limousine, five-passenger convertible sedan, two-passenger coupe, two-passenger convertible coupe and five-passenger two-door coupe. In addition to these, a wide variety of custom-built body styles are offered.

The New Eight.

The 125 horsepower straight eight engine of the new Marmon 8-125, introduced at this show, is the result of more than six years of experience and experimentation. This engine has a piston displacement of 315.2 cubic inches. Its taxable horsepower is 33.8, but 125 actual horsepower is developed at 3400 revolutions per minute.

Mounted on the front end of the crankshaft of this engine is the patented Marmon high frequency, oscillating modulator which eliminates vibrations and produces an even, smooth flow of power. Aluminum alloy pistons are used, together with an accurately balanced crankshaft of Marmon design. Unnecessary weight has been eliminated throughout the engine, thus adding to its performance.

One of the new features of this engine as well as of the Sixteen is the "Float-O" variable level oil screen which makes it possible for the oil pump to draw clean, pure oil at all times from the top of the reservoir. Dirt, sediment and ofttentimes water that collects in the bottom of the crankcase are kept from the engine bearings and other vital parts by this device, which also filters the oil as it is drawn into pump.

Goodrich Develops Tires Colored to Match Color of Cars

Colored tires to match color schemes of motor cars, the latest innovation in the tire industry, were shown for the first time at the B. F. Goodrich Co.'s annual sales conferences in Atlanta, Ga., New York City, Chicago and Los Angeles, it is announced by S. B. Robertson, vice president of Goodrich.

The new tires, developed by Goodrich engineers after intensive experimentation, are effective in increasing the eye appeal of a motor car. They may be had in a wide variety of hues and color combinations.

Scientific study of colors adaptable to tire usage preceded the manufacture of the latest Goodrich tire.

New Pierce-Arrow Front End Design Still Characteristic

The new Pierce-Arrow front is a marked departure from the conventional type, being an exclusive adaptation of the V-type design. Although new in appearance, it still is distinctively Pierce-Arrow.

Oil fumes cannot penetrate the interior of one of the new Pierce-Arrow twelves and eights, because, through a specially designed vent, the carburetor suction removes oil fumes from the valve-lifter chamber and they are utilized to lubricate the valve stems and top piston ring.

Drivers used to try to regulate the temperature of the incoming explosive mixture by manipulating a dash control by guesswork. The new Pierce-Arrows have a thermostatic heat control to take care of this job scientifically and automatically. It has a decided effect upon the operating efficiency of the engine.

The air-cleaner—cold air intake—carburetor muffler of the new Pierce-Arrows is a three-in-one proposition. The air is cleaned, its hissing is silenced and, by means of the cold air intake, the cooler air outside the hood can be drawn in, providing a greater degree of expansion ,and adding as much as four-horsepower.

"Thumbing" Prohibited.

Ford Commercial Car and Truck Exposition Here

Value of Attractive Color Schemes in Finish Brought Out by Displays.

The value of the use of attractive color combinations in the finish of commercial car and truck fleets is demonstrated in the permanent Ford commercial exhibit at 3317 Locust boulevard.

As commercial units will not be included in the St. Louis Automobile Show proper, the Ford Motor Co. has made a special display of commercial cars and trucks for the thousands of visitors who will be in St. Louis.

All Ford commercial cars and trucks are finished in gay colors with definite eye-arresting values capable of being capitalized by transportation users. In other words, the units are designed in relation to their jobs not only from a mechanical standpoint but with consideration for aesthetic values.

Style for Delivery Service.

As a result, merchants who depend upon style as part of their stock in trade find delivery cars which, by reason of color and line, assist in carrying out this idea. On the other hand, a construction company has at its disposal a truck which in appearance denotes ruggedness. In all cases the body colors form an excellent background for strength in lettering.

Units at the exhibit exemplifying the use of the attractive colors now available include a Ford pickup delivery car in blue rock green; a Model A pickup delivery in white with nickle side rails; a drop floor panel delivery in vermillion; a Model A de luxe delivery in lawn green, and a 131½-inch panel delivery finished in rock moss green.

Colors for Heavy Trucks.

A heavy duty hydraulic dump truck on the 131½-inch chassis has Phoenix brown body and cab. A 157-inch house-top stake body is done in mountain brown, while a 131½-inch stake body with closed cab is in blue rock green. A 157-inch panel delivery has a vermilion finish, and a 157-inch express and a combination coal, coke and gravel truck are similarly painted.

A feature of the exhibit is a Standrive delivery in white, its snowy finish, simplicity of interior equipment and rust-proofed interior surfaces symbolizing complete sanitation. The exhibit also includes a cutaway chassis and various mechanical displays.

All units, from the smartest of the de luxe delivery bodies to the heavy dump body types, are built on the Ford model AA chassis which by reason of millions of miles of service has demonstrated reliability, endurance and economy under all conditions of commercial hauling.

Designed for Their Jobs.

Ford Motor Co. engineers design each body and its attendant equipment with an exact appreciation of the job that it is to perform. For example, in the combination dump body for coal and coke the double acting tail gate differs from the ordinary tail gate in that it has an ample coal door and a bagging chute. A swinging partition is mounted midway in the body for split deliveries and batch loads.

The control lever is mounted inside. When this lever is turned, the partition is raised slightly. As the locking pins are thus freed from the holes in the floor, the load trips the partition and passes to the rear. The load does part of the work.

Willys-Overland Leader With Knight Sleeve Valve Engine

More than 16 years ago the Willys-Overland Co. obtained American patent rights for the manufacture of automobiles using the Knight sleeve-valve engine. For years this engine had been used by a number of leading European car manufacturers and its success was established from the start.

The American public was quick to sense this engineering advancement when the principle of the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine was explained. Since that time nearly a half million of these cars have been purchased in this country.

Although numerous European manufacturers were producing this type of car long before Willys-Overland, the Toledo manufacturer today is the largest manufacturer of this type of engine in the world. While adhering to the original principles, each year found Willys-Overland engineers making definite improvements in the engine. Now, in the 1932 cars, it reaches its greatest efficiency in Willys-Knight history.

Until a short time ago buyers in the lower price ranges were unable to have Knight-engined cars, because it was impossible to produce them under $1000. However, introduction of the 1932 Model 95 Willys-Knight has overcome this difficulty with a base price of $745, making it the lowest priced Willys-Knight car ever offered to the public.

Willys-Overland also presents the Willys-Knight 66-D, driven by the most powerful engine ever built by the company. This engine develops 87-horsepower and has a top speed of 75 to 80 miles an hour.

Arrests for Parking in New York.

Of 60,389 person arraigned in the traffic courts of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, N. Y., in 1930, for violations of the anti-parking regulations, 48,905 were convicted and fined, 10,301 received suspended sentences, and only 1183 were discharged.

Supercharger Is Standard on All New Franklins

Smoother Performance Under and Conditions Effected by the Device.

New Franklin cars, with supercharged, air-cooled, airplane engine and lower streamlined bodies, are shown by Central States Motors, distributer. The Franklin is the first auto to include, as standard equipment, a supercharger that produces quicker, smoother acceleration in the lower speed ranges, and improves power under hard pulling conditions. Its effect is also noticeable in somewhat higher top speed. Over a wide range of road operating conditions the average power increase produced by all functions of the supercharger is seven horsepower, obtainable without adding to the cubic capacity of the engine.

Among the Franklin features is the latest developments in "spot temperature control," which approaches automatic regulation of temperature at every point of the cylinders and uniformly in all cylinders.

In addition to this feature the 1932 line also has a combination of free-wheeling and synchro-mesh, with selective ride-control and Startix.

The low-pressure supercharger of the 1932 Franklin airman, is, in principle, tied in very closely with the air-cooling system. It utilizes the pressure of the air current developed by the turbine fan and forces a charge of air directly from the cooling duct to the carburetor intake. Not a single additional moving part nor any extra drain on power is required to accomplish this function.

Close associated with the supercharger as an aid to engine efficiency are an air cleaner and intake silencer.

Ride Regulator.

A selective ride-regulator gives complete control of spring action and enables the driver to obtain a smooth and effortless ride regardless of road conditions.

Full elliptic suspension has always given the Franklin very easy riding qualities and the addition of these new manually regulated spring controls now improves its comfort still more. Leverage on the brake and clutch pedal has been increased, which provides easier clutch operation and more effective foot braking., the latter being especially desirable when free-wheeling is in use.

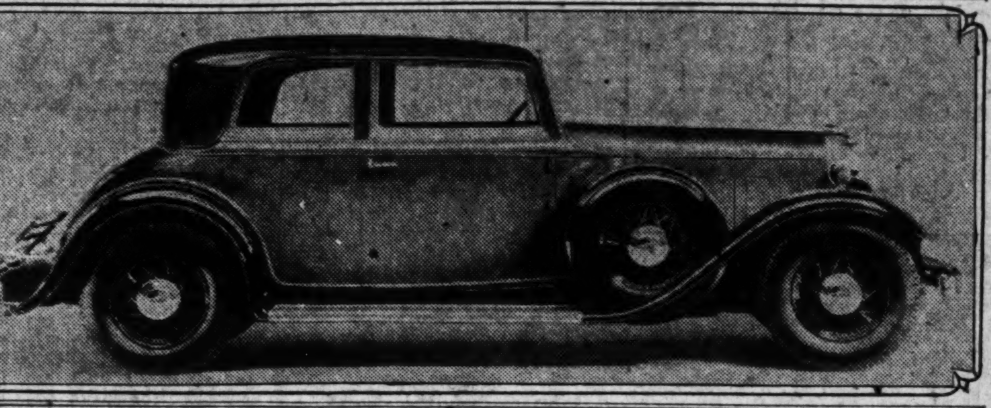
Lincoln Eight Five-Passenger Coupe



Lincoln 'Twelve' And 'Eight' Come In 32 Body Types

Wide Variety of Styles Both Standard and Custom in the 1932 Line.

The Lincoln appears at the Automobile Show in two distinct models—one on a new 12-cylinder chassis of 145-inch wheelbase, the other on an eight-cylinder chassis of 136-inch wheelbase and 32 body types.

Bodies on the two chassis have the same keynote. They are long and low, modern in every respect. Lines are graceful, contours sweeping. Their air-flow lines are emphasized by the slanting windshield and the pleasing downward curve of the coach-sill which is carried from radiator to rear fender.

Custom and Standard Bodies.

A sport phaeton and "doubletree" sport sedan, an all-weather brougham and all-weather cabriolet by Brunn, a coupe and a two-window berline by Judkins and a convertible roadster and town cabriolet by Le Baron are included in the custom group. Others are a sport berline, a coupe and a convertible sedan by Dietrich, a panel brougham and a limousine by Willoughby, a roadster by Murphy, a town car by Rollston and a victoria by Waterhouse.

The Lincoln standard bodies on the 12-cylinder chassis include sport touring, sport phaeton, five-passenger coupe, town sedan, five-passenger coupe, town sedan, five-passender sedan, seven-passenger sedan and limousine. There are both two and three window types of the town sedan. The sport phaeton is offered both with and without tonneau cowl.

The bodies on the Lincoln V-8 cylinder chassis include a sport phaeton, a two-passenger coupe, a five-passenger coupe, a two-window town sedan, a three-window five-passenger sedan, a seven-passenger sedan and a limousine.

Silent Gears, Free Wheeling.

Many improvements are incorporated in the two chasses, which, aside from wheel base length and the engines, are virtually identical. The transmission has synchronizing cones in second and high speed gears for quiet speed changing. An independent free-wheeling unit, mounted in the rear of the transmission, operates in all forward speeds and locks automatically when reverse gear is used. Free wheeling may be employed or not, as desired. A control on the dash may be operated to neutralize the unit and permit use of the conventional transmission.

Engines are mounted at three points in rubber. Engine temperature control is by thermostats, which operate automatically the radiator shutters and hood side ventilators and assist maximum engine performance. The engines are equipped with dual down-draft carburetors, fitted with intake silencers and air cleaners. The exhaust manifold of the 12-cylinder engine is carried forward and under to keep heat from the front compartment.

What 'Dual Ratio' Is, and Its Workings, Explained by Kublin

Engineer Tells How Lever on Dash Gives Motorist 'Two Cars in One.'

Following is an explanation of "dual ratio" by George H. Kublin, chief engineer of the Auburn Automobile Co.

"Dual ratio," says Kublin, "gives the motorist instant selection of two rear axle ratios by merely turning a control lever located on the instrument cluster. For hilly or mountainous country, sand or adverse road conditions where more power is desired, the driver simply selects the low ratio by letting up on the foot throttle, throwing out the clutch and turning the control lever. Again on the straight-away or level stretches, another turn of the lever to high ratio decreases the engine speed for the same car speed. For getting away in traffic, he has a choice of the conventional second speed of 'high,' second speed depending upon the acceleration desired or road conditions.

"In the conventional automobile, if the gear ratio is, say, 5 to 1, the crankshaft of the engine revolves five times to each revolution of the wheels in high gear; if the gear ratio is 4 to 1, then the crankshaft revolves four times to each revolution of the wheels. Naturally the faster the car is driven, the higher the engine speeds.

Standard Gear Compromise.

"In most conventional cars the standard gear ratio is necessarily a poor compromise and leaves much to be desired. Several factors are responsible for this. A car with a 5-to-1 gear ratio has more pulling power than one with a 4-to-1 ratio. Hence, in hilly country a low gear ratio is desirable and necessary for satisfactory performance. On the straight-away or flat level road, however, the low ratio becomes an obstacle, since the engine is turning over entirely too fast to attain speed. Furthermore, high engine speed is costly, since considerably more gas and oil are used and the engine, transmission, universal joints and all other moving parts are subjected to greater wear and tear.

"Automobile manufacturers, therefore, either compromise on a gear that is 'just between' or equip individual cars with a special gear ratio. This alternative ratio, however, is unsatisfactory at its best on account of varying road and driving conditions encountered in different territories.

"With dual ratio, all of these objections are overcome, hence, the driver really has two cars in one at his command. With the dual ratio used exclusively in the Auburn 1932 models, the low ratio on the 12-cylinder model is 4½ to 1 and the high ratio is 3 to 1. This low ratio with the engine turning 4½ revolutions for every one on the rear wheels makes possible extraordinary power, getaway and hill performance—the high ratio with the engine turning three revolutions for every one on the rear wheels provides smoother, quieter performance, longer life of running parts and increased fuel economy.

"For example, at a car speed of 40 m. p. h., in low ratio, the engine is turning over approximately 2000 r. p. m., while at this same car speed in high ratio the engine speed is reduced one-third, or to approximately 1300 r. p. m.—or if the same engine speed of 2000 r. p. m. is mantained after shifting from low to high ratio, the car speed is increased from 40 to 60 m. p. h., or 50 per cent.

"Mechanical effort for changing the position of the sliding dogs on the over-drive unit is supplied by vacuum operating a cylinder located on the rear axle housing and thereby eliminating the necessity for any effort on the part of the driver."

A TRULY MODERN MOTOR CAR

A new, 90 horsepower, 123-inch wheelbase Eight, styled for the modern trend, engineered for modern conditions and priced to meet 1932 standards of value.

1 DEEP BANJO FRAME . . . An entirely new and stronger type of frame, lowering both frame and body without affecting road clearance, increasing riding ease and reducing frame-weave and side-sway.

2 OUTBOARD SPRINGS . . . An equally new type of spring mounting, giving a spring spread 8 inches wider in front and 6 inches wider at rear—further reducing side-sway and increasing stability.

3 SILENCED CHASSIS AND BODY . . . New quietness, obtained by rubber mounting of engine and springs, new resonator type exhaust silencer, carburetor silencer, and the use of rubber dough and sound-deadening material throughout the body.

4 OIL TEMPERATURE CONTROL . . . Engine designed to automatically control oil temperature within the limits necessary for maximum life and efficiency.

5 DASH REGULATED SHOCK ABSORBERS . . . A new convenient button on the dash controls shock absorber action, stiffening or softening ride to suit any load or road.

6 DASH CONTROLLED FREE WHEELING . . . A new improved Free Wheeling control button, making possible instant shifting from Free Wheeling to conventional drive or back again. Use of the reverse gear does not affect Free Wheeling.

7 SUPER-HYDRAULIC BRAKES WITH NEW CENTRIFUSE DRUMS . . . Rigid shoe, self-equalizing brakes with fixed diameter ribbed steel drums, having centrifugally cast braking surfaces, provide much longer lining life and increased efficiency.

8 SYNCHRO-SILENT GEAR SHIFT . . . A new transmission, in which both gear shifting and driving are silent in second and third speeds. This silence is obtained by the use of gear synchronizers and helical gears.

Chevrolet Adds Free Wheeling And Syncromesh

Appearance Improved — Engine Made More Powerful—Interiors More Comfortable and Stylish.

The Chevrolet six exhibited at the show appears with more extensive changes in design than any annual Chevrolet model since the car was changed from four to six cylinders in 1928. It is offered in 12 standard Fisher body styles, three open and nine closed. In addition, there are eight models with de luxe equipment.

Improvements in the 1932 line over last year's models include down-draft carburetion, counterbalanced crankshaft, smaller wheels and larger tires, radically changed front end appearance, "finger touch" front seat adjustment, cowl ventilator on all models, hood doors instead of louvres, improved clutch and an additional cross member in the frame.

Of the mechanical changes, the most important is the new transmission unit, which combines syncromesh with simplified free wheeling as standard equipment.

Changes in Appearance.

The most striking change in exterior appearance is the new front end, which has been completely redesigned. The new "stabilized" front end mounting is an important feature of the new car. In conventional mounting, the radiator, fenders and head lamps are supported from the sides of the frame. In the new Chevrolet the fenders, radiator and head lamps are carried on a single fender support unit, which is anchored to the center of the front cross member of the frame. This pivotal anchorage enables the front end to sway with the body as a unit, thus reducing the weave.

Body interiors bring a new conception of luxury to the low-priced field. Mohair or broadcloth upholstery is now optional with all models, hardware is newly designed and improved, such fine car features as silk assist cords, robe rails, arm rests on both sides of the rear seat, dome light, side ash receptacles and many other improvements are standard with various models in the line, The instrument panel is beautified by the symmetrical grouping of the several new instruments added this year because of added mechanical features, All instrument dials have convex faces for easier reading.

Chevrolet Power Increased.

The 60-horsepower, overhead valve, six-cylinder engine is smoother, quieter and more powerful. The engine block is stiffened and strengthened by additional ribs and more metal at points of stress. Lubrication to the crankshaft and camshaft bearings, and the valve stem is positive pressure this year, instead of splash feed as formerly.

An ingenious automatic device enables the driver to forget about the free-wheeling control when shifting into reverse. Merely shifting the hand lever causes the reverse fork to move the clutch sleeve toward the rear, engaging both driving and driven members and providing positive drive in reverse. When the hand lever is again moved into a forward speed, the clutch sleeve is released automatically into its former free-wheeling position.

This relieves the driver of having to remember to shift into the conventional position before going into reverse and of having to shift into the coasting position again before changing to a forward speed.

Oldsmobile Reports Production Gain Warranted by Sales

A 60 per cent increase in production of 1932 Oldsmobiles over that of 1931 cars during the same period last year is reported by officials of Olds Motor Works. Retail sales are reported to be keeping pace with the increased production schedules.

"Since the start of production of the improved Oldsmobile Six and the new Oldsmobile Straight Eight about the middle of December, 7320 cars had been manufactured up to and including Jan. 31," says the official announcement. "This is 2751 cars more than were produced in the same period last year, showing a gain of 60 per cent.

"Part of the increase was made in December and part in January, the increase in the January production over that of last year amounting to 35 per cent, or more than a third.

"Production is controlled by retail sales and these, together with orders from dealers, fully warrant the present schedule."

General Manager Of U. S. Rubber Co. Tire Division Here

L. M. Simpson, general manager of the tire division of the United States Rubber Co., held a two-day conference here the past week with M. J. Herold, St. Louis branch manager in charge of tire sales. Merchandising and advertising policies for the coming year were formulated in detail.

With larger tire orders for original car equipment and replacement business booked in advance of the corresponding period of 1931, Simpson expressed decided optimism for a substantially improved sale of United States tires for the present year.

Twelve-Cylinder Pierce-Arrows And Larger Eight

Superinsulation Against Noise, Heat and Cold in Luxurious Models.

The new Pierce-Arrow twelves is in two groups and 17 body styles, are shown by the Western Automobile Co., distributer. The Pierce-Arrow display is completed by the new eight, in 12 body types, a larger and finer car than the corresponding eight of last year. The twelves are available with custom built bodies.

Though the external Pierce-Arrow design is new, carrying distinctiveness and lines of the ultramodern, the traditional prestige, dignity and individuality are retained.

Superinsulation of the dash, floor and sides of the bodies keeps out the heat of engine operation and the outside atmospheric temperature, and at all times creates a silence within the car which is a luxury in itself.

Improved Free-Wheeling.

The engines of the new twelves are of 140 and 150 horsepower, respectively, the model 52 engine having piston displacement of 429 cubic inches, with 398 cubic inches displacement for the model 53. Neither motor, though each has a high compression ratio, requires antiknock fuels.

The free-wheeling feature which has characterized Pierce-Arrow for more than a year is improved to operate in all forward speeds, and the transmission is also provided with silent synchro-mesh gear shifting. The engines are mounted on cushions of live rubber; the spring shackles are ball bearing, and proof against chatter; there is a double muffler system to stifle the sound of the exhaust, reaching from the exhaust manifold to the tail pipe.

Box Girder Chassis Frame.

An engineering departure is the box girder chassis frame, which prevents weaving and twisting. Another new sense of security is in powerful and larger brakes. Brake drums of a newly developed alloy steel are larger and are proof against both scoring and warping.

For the engines in all the twelves and in the eight there is automatic electric starting and also a non-stalling feature. When th eignition switch is turned, the automatic starting device goes into operation. In case the engine should stall, this device automatically and immediately restarts the engine. There is no starting pedal of course.

Instruments in the dash panel, with their clear airplane legibility, are a note of smartness, as is also the design and treatment of the panel. Moldings and panelings at all windows are of walnut instead of metal, with no screwheads visible. Center armrests are featured in rear seats, and front seats are adjustable to the requirements and comfort of their occupants. Fittings carry their own note of distinction in keeping with Pierce-Arrow, and the interior ensemble is one that spells today's ultimate in every practical provision for luxurious motoring.

Marmon Observes 30th Anniversary as Builder of Autos

The year 1932 is significant for Marmon since it marks the thirtieth anniversary of the company in the automotive field and its eighty-first as an industrial institution.

The first Marmon car was manufactured in 1902 and since that time the company has maintained a high place in the fine car field. The institution itself was founded in Richmond, Ind., in 1851, to manufacture milling machinery. A number of Marmon "firsts" continue to be an integral part of automotive design. Among these are side entrance tonneau, forced feed engine lubrication, selective type sliding gear transmission, straightline drive from engine to rear axle, pressed steel frame and steel running boards.

In the middle twenties Marmon pioneered and led in the development of the straight-eight engine. The new Marmon 8-125 just now being introduced at the automobile show is the result of six years of straight-eight production and a much longer period of experimentation and refinement.

Back in 1906, Marmon cars played an important part in the "Glidden Tours." In 1911, the Marmon Wasp took first honors in the first 500-mile race on the Indianapolis Speedway. Later the Marmon 34, marking the beginning of high cowl design and more extensive use of aluminum, was a transcontinental record-breaker. In 1918 the Marmon company was cited as champion builder of Liberty motors by the Government.

Last year two other achievements were recorded. The first was the recognition of the 200-horsepower, all-aluminum engine of the Marmon sixteen as an automotive accomplishment of prime importance. The Metropolitan section of the Society of Automotive Engineers awarded a medal to Howard Marmon for his design of this engine, voting it the most notable achievement of the year in the automotive field.

The second highlight of the year was the winning of the Stevens trophy by a Marmon sixteen on the Indian polis Speedway. Under the full supervision of the American Automobile Association, a standard Marmon sixteen sedan traveled 1834 miles in 24 continuous hours to win the cup emblematic of the fastest time ever made by a closed stock car of American manufacture in 24 hours on the Indianapolis track. The car exceeded the old record by 191 miles.

A new achievement in effortless action

THERE IS NOTHING in all previous motoring experience that will give you an idea of the hushed power, the silent, tremorless action of the new Dodge Six and Eight.

Floating Power, that remarkable new principle of engine suspension, gives them a responsiveness as alert and free and effortless as a yacht that takes its power from the wind.

The Automatic Clutch, coordinated with the Dodge separate free-wheeling unit, gives driving control that enables you to forget the clutch pedal.

When you wish to shift gears, you simply shift them ... you need not touch the clutch pedal or any other pedal. And the shifting lever moves so easily that it is literally true to say you can shift as easily as you turn the pages of a book.

For still further ease, the brakes are weatherproof Dodge Hydraulics—of increased size and with new cast drums. You have never known such effortless, positive braking.

Nor can you imagine how steadily these cars take difficult turns with their low center of gravity, Mono-Piece Steel Bodies and Bridge-type double-drop frames.

Packard Light Eight and Twin Six At St. Louis Show

These Are in Addition to the Standard and De Luxe Packard Lines.

A completely new Packard light eight, designed for a lower price field, and a new "Twin Six" are among the cars exhibited by the Berry Motor Car Co., distributer. These two new cars now give Packard four complete lines, with 41 body models, in addition to its custom cars. All four have a silent ynchromesh transmission, in which all three forward speeds are quiet.

Twin Six Typical Packard.

In appearance the twin six car is much the same as the De Luxe eight. The hood has the same long slim lines, made possible by the unusual design of the engine, which holds it to an overall width hardly greater than that of a straight eight motor. The radiator is somewhat different, with a more pronounced vee, vertical sides and a narrow strip of the radiator shell extending down the apex of the vee, which is painted as is the rest of the radiator. The automatic shutters of the radiator are chromium plated. The head lamps have the same stream-lined vee design as the radiator. The wheel bases of the twin sixes are 142 and 147 inches.

The light eight, with a wheel base of 128 inches, shows a striking new radiator and sweeping tream-line curves throughout. The ight eight radiator retains the characteristic Packard lines, but narrows down and sweeps forward at the bottom to merge into the front fenders.

The light eight is equipped throughout with shatter-proof glass and has bumpers both front and rear and six-ply tires.

Both the light eight and twin six have the Packard ride control, as o the standard eight and the de luxe eight. Throughout this device shock absorbers can be instantly adjusted to meet all driving, riding and weather conditions. It is operated by a push pull knob, conveniently located near the steering column.

New Packards All Powerful.

Engines in Packard cars now run 110 horsepower in the light eight to more than 150 horsepower in the twin six. The de luxe eight motor now develops 1353 horsepower and the lighter standard eight develops in excess of 110 horsepower.

All of the accessories have been taken from the sides of the engine where they are usually found and grouped at the front end to give maximum accessibility and clearance at the sides. They are all driven by a single triangular vee elt. The removable cylinder heads re so designed as to add to the engine's compact slimness. Spark plugs are as accessible as in an in-line engine.

Several new features of design are found in the oil circulating system, including a plunger pump type of pressure control valve and oil lines as large as five-eighths inch.

It is operated by a push pull knob, conveniently located near the steering column.

New Packards All Powerful.

Engines in Packard cars now run 110 horsepower in the light eight to more than 150 horsepower in the twin six. The de luxe eight motor now develops 1353 horsepower and the lighter standard eight develops in excess of 110 horsepower.

All of the accessories have been taken from the sides of the engine where they are usually found and grouped at the front end to give maximum accessibility and clearance at the sides. They are all driven by a single triangular vee belt. The removable cylinder heads are so designed as to add to the engine's compact slimness. Spark plugs are as accessible as in an in-line engine.

Several new features of design are found in the oil circulating system, including a plunger pump type of pressure control valve and oil lines as large as five-eighths inch.

Buick Car Sales Totaled $12,000,000 During December

In December more than $12,000,000 worth of Buick automobiles were bought by the American people, it is announced by C. W. Churchill, vice president in charge of sales of the Buick Motor Co.

From October to the end of December, Churchill says, Buick made a gain of slightly more than 20 per cent among all eight-cylinder cars selling in Buick's price range.

"Before the announcement of the 1932 models last November, the four Buick series of eights on different wheelbase lengths were accounting for 41.5 per cent of the total sales of eights in the Buick price range," Churchill says. "Following the introduction of the new models on Nov. 14, Buick's percentage of sales among these eights rose rapidly to 50.1, November closing with this gain."

In December this position continued to improve. With returns from two-thirds of the states in hand, the figures show that Buick sold 61.9 per cent of all the eights in its price range."

Motoring With Father Time.

Amos Ranck, aged 92, of Elverson, Pa., is one of the oldest automobile drivers in the United States. Everybody in the community feared for his safety when he took up motoring six years ago, but he is as capable a driver as any on the road, despite his years.

New Highway in Ontario.

A highway 70 miles long is to be constructed between Madoc and Perth, in Ontario, at a cost of $1,000,000. This new road will provide a through highway from Sarnia to Ottawa and shorten the distance to Toronto by 45 miles.

Maryland's New Motor Law.

Penalties for violation of the new traffic code of Maryland are drastic. Conviction for driving a car while one is under the influence of liquor, for running away from the scene of an accident without establishing one's identity, and for causing a fatality, may revoke one's license and suspend his registration. Similarly, a driver will be deprived of the use of a car in Maryland if he fails to satisfy a judgment within 30 days for personal injury or property damage in excess of $50.

'Floating Power' On All Dodge Six And Eight Models

Automatic Clutch, Free Wheeling and Silent Gear Selector on 1932 Cars.

The new Dodge cars exhibited by the Milstrand Motor Co., distributer, have automatic clutch, floating power, free wheeling, silent gear selector, double drop bridge type frame, oilite squeak-proof springs, silent second gear, mono-piece steel bodies, new brake drums and hydraulic four-wheel brakes.

The Dodge automatic clutch is vacuum operated through a control valve attached to the intake manifold and governed by the movement of the accelerator pedal. Being interconnected with the free wheeling unit located at the rear of the transmission, there are no extra pedals or buttons to push.

Details of the Eight.

The full automatic action of the clutch is controlled by the accelerator. The instant the accelerator pedal is released the clutch disengages ahead of the transmission and the free wheeling unit functions at the rear of the transmission, thus making the transmission completely dead and inert, it being disconnected at both ends. Any gear can be selected instantly and effortlessly at any speed or while standing still.

Floating power—the method of supporting an engine in a live rubber mounting at each end of the natural axis passing through its center of gravity—as applied to the Dodge six and eight cylinder engines—is said to produce a liquid smooth power comparable to the flow of electricity.

In creating the four body styles of the new eight—five-passenger sedan, five-passenger coupe, convertible coupe and two-passenger coupe with rumble seat—Dodge stylists and engineers have sought proportion, symmetry of line and harmony of color and appointments. A wheel-base of 122 inches and an over-all length of 194 inches supplies the necessary length for curve of fender, body line and roominess.

There has been no fundamental change in engine design or construction except the floating power method of mounting in the frame. Cylinders are of the L-head type, cast en bloc and integral with the crankcase.

The Dodge Six.

All new Dodge eights have a newly developed oilite spring which insures quiet spring action. Oilite disks made of a metal which is 40 per cent oil by volume, are placed between the leaves of the springs, thus keeping them separated except at the points where the disks are located. This construction prevents the leaves from sticking caused by dirt and rust, and does away with an initial break before the springs begin to function.

The engineers have followed closely in letter and spirit the new Dodge eight in almost every detail of the new six. Lines, contours, radiators, wheels, fenders, windshields, interiors all conform with the eight. Upholstery, fitments, body insulation are much the same. The mechanical innovations of the eight are an integral part of all new Dodge six models, including floating power, automatic clutch, free wheeling, silent gear selector and new type brake drums.

Two Chris-Craft Motor Boats Shown At Auto Exposition

Two Chris-Craft motorboats for 1932, embodying the most important improvement in motorboat construction—level-riding—are being displayed at the Auto Show this week by Schneider-Nash Sales & Service, distributers.

One model is 15½ feet long; has an average speed of 32 miles per hour and seats six passengers. The second model, 21 feet in length, seats nine passengers and develops the same speed. The complete 1932 line of nine Elto outboard motors also is displayed in this exhibit.

A. A. A. Contest Board Puts Hudson Engineer On Chief Committee

Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, the ruling body in the United States in charge of car tests, contests and other sanctioned affairs, has just appointed Stuart G. Baits, chief engineer of the Hudson Motor Car Co., to the national technical committee of the board.

The appointment of engineering executives from the representative automobile manufacturing plants to this body, which is in charge of racing in this country, is regarded as significant of the close attention that manufacturers are paying to racing. Commenting on his appointment, Baits says:

"No manufacturer of motor cars can afford to miss the lessons of the track and speedway. It must be remembered that stock cars today are capable of running at speeds that would have won such events as the earlier Indianapolis 500-mile classics, not so many years ago.

"Now that the new roads are making higher speeds practical and many states have removed speed restrictions in open country, cars must be designed not only to attain these high speeds readily, but to maintain them mile after mile and day after day. The great reserve horsepower that is being built into automobiles today is a direct result of the lessons learned on the track and the high factors of safety employed can be traced back to studies of racing machines that have survived the terrific grind of long-distance speedway racing."

New De Vaux To Reach St. Louis Late This Month

Speed of 80 M. P. H. Plus Claimed for Convertible Coupe Sport Model.

The new De Vaux "80," which was seen at the New York and Chicago automobile shows, will not be exhibited at the St. Louis Automobile Show because a special salon is being held in Grand Rapids, Mich., home of the De Vaux, and all available cars are to be used for the display there. Production of the new models will begin in the middle of February and late this month the first De Vaux 80 models to be seen in St. Louis will be shown by the Burgdorf Motors Co., distributer.

The De Vaux 80 is said to be one of the most beautiful cars ever built, regardless of price. Low, graceful, with "aero-line" bodies. Bodies are two inches wider than the previous model and an inch lower in overall height. Seventeen-inch wheels are used.

A new model has been added to the line—a convertible coupe, only 65 inches high. Speeds of over 80 miles an hour are said to be possible in this new model. Like the other De Vaux models, the convertible is finished in "pearlescent" lacquer. This paint, made from the scales of fish, brings out the ultra-modern lines of the car.

The Hall engine, which was used in the De Vaux 6-75, is the power plant of the "80." Slight changes and modifications have been made which makes the performance of the 1932 cars far superior to that of their predecessors. The De Vaux silent-second, constant-mesh transmission in connection with free wheeling in all forward speeds is standard equipment.

Gas Prices Low in 1931.

The average retail price of gasoline in 1931 throughout the United States, both including and excluding the state tax, was the lowest for any year since any reliable records have been kept. The service station price in 50 cities, including at least one city in each state, averaged 16.86 cents a gallon, including the state tax, or 26 per cent less than in the five-year period 1926 to 1930, both years inclusive. The price exclusive of the tax was 12.86 cents a gallon, or 29 per cent less than for the five-year period.

New Graham Six And 'Blue Streak' Eight Exhibited

Distinctive Body Lines Feature 8-Cylinder Models—Marked Roadability Attained.

There are two new Graham lines—an improved six and the Blue Streak eight, exhibited by the Gross Motor Co., distributer. The Graham Six comes in two models—a town sedan and a six-window sedan. There are seven body styles of the Blue Streak line—standard sedan, de luxe sedan, standard coupe, de luxe coupe, standard and de luxe rumble seat coupes, and de luxe convertible coupe.

The Blue Streak cars depart from the conventional in a very effective streamline design. In addition to free wheeling, synchro-silent gearshift and quiet second and first gears, Blue Streak features include a new banjo frame, outboard springing and cradle suspension that make for great stability at high speed and on curves, and an aluminum cylinder head.

All Flowing Contours.

Much of its difference in appearance is due to the studied omission of exterior accessories and to the systematic concealment of units that would detract from the smoothness of its flowing contours. There are no fender or headlight tie rods across the front, no parking lamps on fenders or cowl, no exterior radiator cap. Chromium is conspicuously absent; even the head lamps are in color. The radiator grill and the hub caps are the only units showing an extensive use of chromium plate.

The new type fenders, with their deep side valances, besides giving a pleasingly new line of grace, conceal the working parts of the under carriage, hiding from view the steering connections, springs, axles and the under surface of the mudguards themselves.

The Graham Six.

A new front and top body design makes a marked improvement in the appearance of the Graham Six. Lowering the car and increasing the tire size contribute to better riding qualities. Mohair upholstery is standard equipment, with cloth as an option without extra charge.

Free-wheeling, standard equipment, may be used in all forward speeds. The control, formerly a lever projecting through the floor boards, is now operated from the dash.

Other features of the finish and trim include the liberal use of striping, not only on the body mouldings but also on the hood louvres and the fenders! concealed hood latches, with only the handle showing outside; fender lights, which besides showing toward the front, also serve as warning markers when viewed from the side; a deck with chromium trim covering the gasoline tank at the rear; flush hood hinge; two cowl ventilators.

Adjustable brake and clutch pedals, in combination with the fully adjustable front seat, afford a wide variation in driving positions to fit the car to the driver.

The metal body panels are thickly padded with a sound-proof material, preventing drumming and vibration, and insulating the body from heat and cold.

The Graham six engine develops 70 horsepower.

F. S. Wiemeyer Co. Adds Departments To Service Divisions

F. S. Wiemeyer Co., Inc., 2625 Locust street, has added two new departments to its service divisions for the garageman, dealer and fleet owner.

A new specialized tool division will have the sale of the complete line of Plomb, Starrett, Ridgid, Greenfield, Krauster and Vacuum Grip specialized tools, comprising electric drills, boring bars, hones for cylinder blocks, valve refacers, compressors, brake testing and battery equipment. Paul Hamann, who has had eight years' experience in this field, has been placed in active charge of this new Wiemeyer division.

St. Louis distribution of Burd piston rings and Ohio pistons has been acquired by the Wiemeyer company for its auto parts division. In addition to stock, latest type shop equipment has been installed to perform piston grinding, valve-facing, rod aligning and complete motor reconstruction service to the trade.

Coupled with the new tool and parts divisions, the Wiemeyer company will continue to operate its complete electrical and carburetor divisions under authorized United Motors, Auto Lite, Stromberg and Marvel carburetor franchises, which have been renewed for 1932, according to Jean P. New Hupmobile Has Distinctive Front End Design

Torsional Stabilizer an Exclusive Feature—Free Wheeling With Silent Second.

Two Hupmobile sixes and five eights are shown by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., distributer. The common rounding and sloping radiator shell has been replaced by a striking perpendicular radiator, which gives the appearance of massiveness.

Inbuilt grilles, a new type of double bar bumpers of distinctive design, sloping front corner posts, as well as the rear hood lines, all enhance the appearance of these cars. The hood is long, with the radiator filler cap placed under the left side. Its usual place is taken by a smart appearang chromium radiator ornament.

Modern Styling.

Contributing to this modern styling are the new form fitting fenders, safety steel running-boards and new sheet metal tailoring. Neither front or rear fenders make contact with the running board, thus eliminating rattles and providing double water drainage at the front and rear, which prevent rust accumulation.

In the new eight-cylinder series Hupmobile introduces an entirely new sport body model—the cabriole roadster. In this model the top collapses to disappear within a specially constructed compartment at the back of the seat. Windows may be raised regardless of top position, while the windshield folds flat.

Torsional Stabilizer.

Among the features of the new series are included Hupmobile's own quadruply brazed X-frame, specially engineered safety features; Hupmobile's newly patented chassis torsional stabilizer; free wheeling with synchro-silent transmission; seven-point rubber engine mounting, including rubber mounted transmission; new types of seat cushions and spring construction; vibrationless performance, longer wheelbases, new performance standards, safety steel running boards, snug fitting fenders, new type of recessed instrument panels showing Hupmobile's interpretation of the aero idea of visible dials and large, luminous figures.

Hupmobile makes extensive use of rubber in 1932 in engine mounting and insulation to subdue noises and reduce vibration. Hupmobile continues in 1932 its composite bodies in which boxed steel construction is a feature.

There are 26 body types in Hupmobile's 1932 line. Standard equipment on all new sixes and eights includes five wire or demountable painted wood wheels with spare mounted in right front fender well. Automatically controlled, thermostatically compensated shock absorbers are standard on all new models, which require no driver attention for road or temperature changes.

Reo Aerodynamic Body Lines Still Further Refined

toe, the new device makes it possible for the driver to hold the clutch as long as desired at any intermediate position between the two extremes. The control is entirely independent of the accelerator pedal or of the engine speed.

Free Wheeling.

The button is located beside the clutch pedal. Its movement of a fraction of an inch under a pressure of only a few ounces does the same work formerly accomplished by moving the clutch pedal several inches under a pressure of quite a few pounds.

To free-wheel, the driver merely touches the control button. When the free-wheeling is to be ended all that is needed is to take the pressure from the button, making it easy to use the engine as a brake at any time, a safety feature that appeals to drivers. The automatic clutch, with its selective free-wheeling feature, is standard equipment of the Reo-Royale lines and on the Flying Cloud model 25.

Among the other features of the Reo for 1932 are adjustable front seats; cam and level steering with antibacklash, antishimmey shackling of springs; fully inclosed, two shoe, self-equalizing, internal, hydraulic brakes with self-replenishing master cylinder; twin-plate clutch in Reo-Royale; Reo patented, herringbone gear, silent-second transmission; semifloating rear axles and crankshafts fitted with vibration dampers and pressure lubricated through oil ducts entirely drilled or cored, eliminating all oil tubes inside the crankcase.

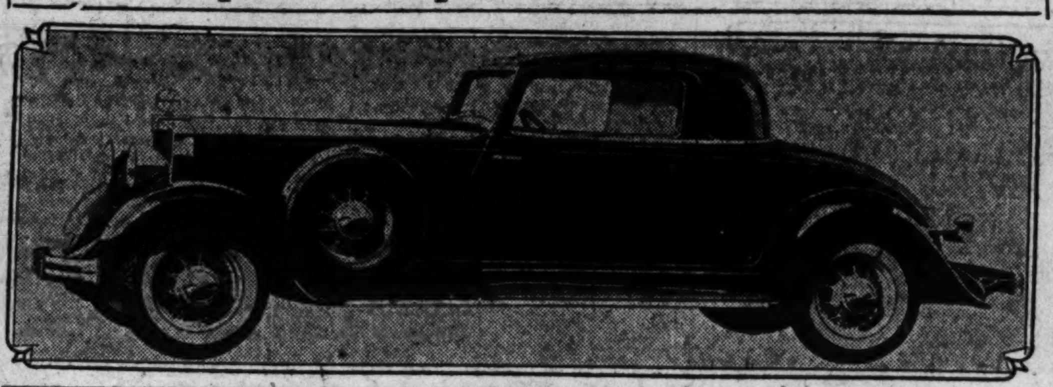
Sand Ejector Stops Skidding.

A sand ejector to prevent skidding and to enable braking over a very short distance, in any weather and on any kind of road, has been developed in Amsterdam, Holland.

Built for Laundry Service

Fleet of General Motors trucks with special oversize bodies delivered by the St. Louis branch of the General Motors Truck Co. to the Home Laundry Co. The four trucks will handle work that formerly required six smaller tricks. They are designed especially for laundry work.

Hupmobile Coupe With Distinctive Lines



New Cars Have Many Gadgets.

Among the new devices which are a form of standard and extra equipment of the 1932 models are: A "stick-on" wiper for the inside of the windshield, a defroster that clears windshields by the action of the infra-red rays generated from a light, a lighter that ignites a cigarette instantly and pushes it out of a slot, a thiefproof metal tire cover, a hindview mirror that can be mounted on a door hinge, an automatic starter operated by retarding the spark, a windshield heater operated from the battery, a spark plug tester that indicates by dial if plug is worn out, a wheel-puller for garage use, a "fumer" in which current vaporizes gas for quick starting, and others too numerous to mention.

Better Products Co. Moves Its Quarters Across Locust Blvd.

The new quarters, accessible by front and rear driveways, have been entirely remodeled and can service 20 cars at once. Latest hydraulic car-washing equipment and devices for specialized lubrication have been installed.

In addition to applying Lacquer Regenerator finish to privately owned cars, the new company will dispense the complete line of Bepco products to the retail trade. The line also includes metal polish, top dressing, furniture polish, chassis black, lacquer cleaner, radiator cleaner and other specialties shortly to be announced, according to L. F. CHRYSLER challenges with these questions

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S PATENTED

FLOATING POWER?

All of the finer, more beautiful new Chryslers have Floating Power*—an entirely new type of engine suspension—which takes first place among engineering developments of modern times. Revolutionary in principle. Completely* wipes out power tremor from both frame and body. Makes the flood of Chrysler power calm and quiet as a millpond. Creates an entirely different "feel" in performance. Yields a smoothness that is impossible to describe. Previously there had been nothing else like it—nothing nearly like it. Scientific minds regard it as the greatest single advantage a modern motor car could have.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
AUTOMATIC CLUTCH?

Completely Automatic. Makes driving supremely simple. Nothing for your left foot to do but be comfortable. You don't have to touch the clutch pedal when starting from a standstill, when changing gears, or even to use reverse. Makes driving easier for everybody. Women particularly enjoy it. The action of this Automatic Clutch is always soft and smooth, never jerky.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
SILENT GEAR SELECTOR?

It isn't gear-shifting in a Chrysler any more—it's gear-selecting. When you release the accelerator, you move the lever freely into place in any direction without touching the clutch pedal—with the car starting from a standstill or traveling at any speed, or when reversing. It's easy. It's effortless. A child could do it. There is no resistance, no sense of friction. You can move the lever as fast as you like or as slow as you like—backward or forward—the gears cannot clash.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
FREE WHEELING?

Chrysler's Free Wheeling is an entirely separate unit at the rear of the transmission. When you are free-wheeling in a Chrysler, the transmission gears are at a standstill, disconnected from both the engine and the rear wheels. This not only provides real Free Wheeling, but makes possible the new kind of effortless shifting you enjoy with the Silent Gear Selector.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
HYDRAULIC BRAKES?

Chrysler Hydraulic Brakes excel because they are simpler. They have fewer parts. They never need lubrication. They are always equalized because they equalize themselves. Quicker stops with greater ease. Safer stops because of absolutely equalized pressure on all four wheels. No "side-pull." No swerving. Hydraulic Brakes are used for safety on buses and big trucks. All new taxicabs in New York are required by city ordinance to have Hydraulic Brakes. Try Chrysler brakes and you will never want to go back to any other kind.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
CENTRIFUSE BRAKE DRUMS?

New and larger brake drums of combined steel and cast iron. New type of construction. A steel drum with cast-iron lining—the drum and the lining permanently fused together. The combination of steel and iron fused together makes brakes that last longer, remain cooler, retain uniform efficiency.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
ALL-STEEL BODY?

With today's congested traffic conditions, steel motor car bodies are as vital to safety as steel railway coaches. Chrysler steel bodies are of all-steel construction, rigidly reinforced and welded into one piece. Entire body is sound-insulated.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
DOUBLE-DROP GIRDER-TRUSS FRAME?

The modernizing of the motor car has imposed new demands upon automobile frames, as well as other units of the car. Chrysler engineers have developed a frame of entirely new design. By means of the new Girder-Truss construction, two extra steel members parallel the side channels at either side of the engine, giving twofold support and strength. Continuing, these members cross over diagonally and meet the opposite side channels at the rear, forming an amazingly rigid construction. The result is multiplied strength and a stable, distortion-proof foundation for the body.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
OILITE SQUEAK-PROOF SPRINGS?

Regardless of mud, snow, ice or dirt, these springs will not squeak. An entirely new patented spring construction. Springs that never need lubrication. The steel leaves of the springs are separated by Oilite—a patented metal that contains its own lubrication. These great springs are standard on all three new Chrysler Eights.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
SPEED AND PICK-UP?

You may never care to drive 75—85—90 miles an hour, but the great power that makes these speeds possible makes Chrysler performance, at any speed you choose to drive, the most enjoyable performance under the sun.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH CHRYSLER'S
EFFORTLESS STEERING?

The new Chryslers steer with a touch. Women especially enjoy Chrysler steering. It not only makes driving easier, but it is so much easier to get in and out of parking spaces. And Chrysler steering is protected from road-shock. You never "feel the road" through the steering wheel.

WHAT IS THERE TO MATCH ALL THESE OTHER FEATURES?

Besides all its new outstanding superiorities, Chrysler retains the following important basic features—pioneered or popularized by Chrysler and features of Chrysler cars for years: In the Eights, a 4-speed transmission with internal Dual High Gears; in the Six, a Silent-Second Easy-Shift Transmission; all have the high-compression engine; full force-feed lubrication; ventilated crankcase; aluminum alloy Invar Strut pistons; counterweighted crankshaft; modern fuel system with fuel pump; oil filter; air cleaner and intake silencer; noiseless spring shackles; cowl ventilators; small base wheels and large tires; adjustable front seat; interior sun visors; indirectly lighted instrument panel; treadle-type accelerator—and many other features that add to Chrysler efficiency and Chrysler value.

FOUR COMPLETE LINES—GREAT RANGE OF PRICES . . . 19 BODY MODELS

Total of 62 Body Styles in the Four Lines — 'Eights,' 'Twelves' and Sixteens.'

All four lines of the 1932 Cadilact-La Salle exhibited by the Oliver-Cadillac Co., are available in two wheel-base lengths as follows: La Salle V-8, 130 and 136 inches; Cadillac V-8 and Cadillac V112, 134 and 140 inches, and the Cadillac V-16, 143 and 149 inches. There is also a choice of the standard compression ratio or an optional compression ratio.

There is an unusually wide range of body style. La Salle is offered in a choice of seven Fisher bodies; the Cadillac V-8 presents 13 bodies by Fisher and seven Fleetwood bodies; the V-12 also is available with a choice of seven Fleetwood and 13 Fisher bodies, and the Cadillac V-16 can be selected from seven Fleetwood and eight Fisher bodies.

Triple Silent Transmission.

Among the many changes and refinements on the Cadillac-La Salle line is the new triple-silent synchromesh transmission, also a full-range ride regulator, controlled free-wheeling, six point rubber-cushioned engine suspension, the super-safe five-beam head lamp control on the Cadillacs, fixed adjustment, compression-type spring shackles, cast molydenum safety brakes, no-flex frames and air cooled fuel lines and generator.

On the Cadillac V-8 and the La Salle more than 15 per cent increase in horsepower has been achieved through improved manifolding, new carburetors and changes in the fuel intake and distribution.

All cars throughout the four lines are considerably lower, the reduction in height ranging from one to three inches. at the same time the interior head room has been increased.

Full Range Ride Control.

Cadillac engineers have added a notable contribution to driving pleasure and control this year in the development of the triple silent synchromesh transmission which offers complete quiet in all forward speeds. Ranking with the triple silent transmission, the new full range ride regulator, a mechanism which permits the driver to adjust the action of the hydraulic shock absorbers.

Another development, contributing to safer driving, is provided in the exclusive Cadillac. lighting equipment. The light control switch, located on the hub of the steering wheel, makes one parking and four headlamp positions available. "City driving" provides road illumination of exceptional intensity ahead of the car. "City passing" swings the light beam down and to the right, away from oncoming cars. "Country driving" not only plainly illuminates the road for more than a tenth of a mile ahead, but spreads, across the highway, making markers, road signs and pedestrians clearly visible. "Country passing" a third filament in the left-hand lamp into play. It also swings the beam off to the right, sparing the approaching motorist yet retaining the view ahead so necessary to safe driving.

Notable exterior improvements are the new Cadillac-designed fenders, smartly double beaded, sweeping daringly from the front; coach sill on all body styles, curved running boards of new design and contour, and new rear treatment which blends fenders and gas tank valance into a trim, neat ensemble.

Florida Leads in Taxing Cars.

Automobile owners in Florida pay more taxes on their cars than in any other state in the Union. The 327,801 motor vehicles have an approximate valuations of $67,487,669, on which are levied $19,968,670 in registration fees, personal property and gasoline taxes. This tax levy on motor vehicles is equivalent to 29.6 per cent of their valuation, and is 11.3 per cent higher than the national average of 18.3 per cent.

President of Norge Corporation Here For Dealer Meeting

Howard E. Blood, president of the Norge Corporation of Detroit, a division of the Borg-Warner Corporation, was in St. Louis Friday to attend a meeting of some 175 dealers at the Melbourne Hotel. Other Norge executives present included John H. Knapp, vice president; R. E. Densmore, regional sales director; W. C. Rowles, district manager; R. E. Caldwell, advertising director, and J. A. Sterling, sales promotion manager.

"Last year Norge had its most successful year, with sales 460 per cent of the total for 1930," said Alexander Crow, president of the Norge Co. of Missouri, distributer here. "Plans for this year include an unusually comprehensive merchandising and advertising campaign, a greatly enlarged newspaper campaign and increase of divisional and district sales managers personnel."

Blood said that he foresaw a big year ahead, and that already orders were far in excess of those a year ago. The plant in Detroit and that in Muskegon, Mich., he said, are operating with full forces.

Uniform Automobile Laws.

Cities in California are gradually working toward uniform motor vehicle laws. This tendency also is being followed in cities throughout the United States. A model ordinance, drafted by the conference on street and highway safety, has been adopted by 41 cities.

Drivers' Comfort Well Provided for In G. M. Truck Tractor

Carrying out the theory that highway safety is directly dependent upon the physical condition of drivers, the General Motors Truck Co. has just completed a new truck tractor with cab finished with a degree of luxury seldom approached even in fine passenger cars. Built for night driving, the cab has a large berth with an air spring mattress on which the drivers rest when relieved at the wheel.

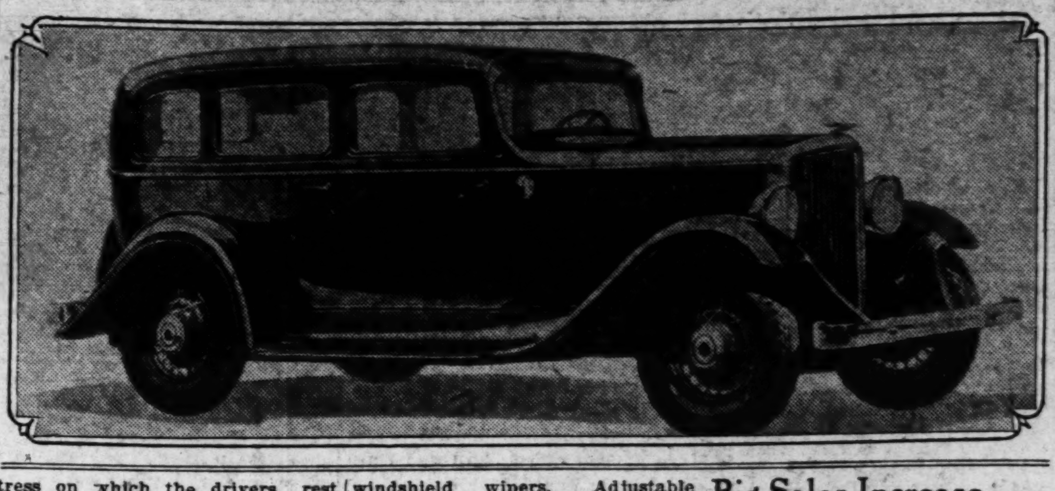
When on duty, the driver sits on a deep, specially designed cushion with tied down springs of the type found in the finest of furniture. He sits behind a wheel which is adjustable. and all controls can be reached without exertion. Ample ventilation is provided by two cowl ventilators, two side ventilators as well as by two combination light ventilators in the roof. In addition, two electric fans are provided.

There is shatter proof glass in the windshield and windows, and clear vision in bad weather is insured by two constant variable speed windshield wipers. Adjustable louvers in the top of the hood throw engine heat directly at the windshield, preventing ice and snow obscuring the vision in winter.

Auto Production in 1931.

According to recent registration figures, out of a total production of about 2,040,000 passenger cars in the United States in 1931, 1,800,000 are registered. This is the lowest year since 1921 when about 1,518,000 cars were built. Nineteen hundred and twenty-nine holds the production record of 4,795,000 passenger cars.

Essex Six Standard Four-Door Sedan



Big Sales Increase Reported by Graham

The Graham-Paige Motors Corporation reports shipments of 2537 cars in January,, an increase of 486, or 23½ per cent, over January, 1931, and the largest total for January since 1929.

Virtually all of the cars shipped were the new Blue Streak eight, bringing the total for this model since its introduction in December to 3658, as against 2200 new models shipped to the end of January a year ago, a gain of 60 per cent in units and 71 per cent in dollar value, which totals over $3,900,000.

Goodyear Airwheel Tire Now Ready for 15 Makes of Cars

Fifteen of the popular makes of automobiles can now be fitted with the new Goodyear Airwheel tires, those big, pillow-like balloons which make automobiles look and feel as though they were riding on comfortable rubber doughnuts.

The size range includes a choice of four sizes: 6.50-16, 7.50-15, 8.25-15 and 9.00-13. The tires are available with the new silent all-weather tread design which eliminates hum or rumble.

Air pressure in the new tires varies with the weight of the car and the size of the tire used. On the 6.50-16, which is the suggested tire for Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth cars, the pressure is 12 to 15 pounds of air. In the 9.00-13 the pressure ranges from eight to 12 pounds, with more air for heavier cars. Made up in complete units of Airwheel tire, tube and discs the new equipment is ready to slip on the axles of these 15 makes of cars.

Every Chrysler Model Now Has 'Floating Power'

Automatic Clutch, Free Wheeling, Silent Gear Selector Among Other Features.

There are 20 body models in the four new Chrysler lines shown by L. M. Stewart, Inc. They are the six with an 82 horsepower engine, 116-inch wheelbase and six body models; the eight with 100 horse power, 125-inch wheelbase and five bodies; the imperial eight with 125 horsepower, 135-inch wheelbase and three bodies, and the imperial custom eight with the same engine, 146-inch wheelbase and six body models.

Foremost among the new features is floating power—a Chrysler discovery and development which is patented. Other mechanical improvements are automatic clutch, free wheeling, silent gear selector, centrifuse brake drums, double-drop girder-trust frame, and the Chrysler patented oilite squeak-proof spring.

Other Chrysler Features.

Chrysler developments of other years—self-equalizing hydraulic brakes, all-steel unit-welded bodies, V-type radiators, four-speed transmission with internal dual-high gears on the eights, silent-second easy-shift transmission on the sixes, low center of gravity from double-drop frame, high compression engines, aluminum alloy Invar Strut pistons, downdraft carburetion, oil filter, air cleaner and intake silencer, noiseless spring shackles, cowl ventilators, small basewheels and large tires, adjustable front seats, double windshields, inside sun visors, indirectly lighted instrument panel, treadle-type accelerator, and others—continue as features of the 1932 line.

Automatic Clutch.

Of second importance to floating power is the new automatic clutch, which is inter-connected with the free-wheeling unit located at the rear of the transmission. The accelerator controls it all.

The centrifuse brake drums resist tremendous abuse, do not score, wear or warp from heat or pressure; they dissipate heat faster and give a quicker, "softer" and more positive brake action.

Chrysler engineers have a spring based upon the use of oilite metal, a Chrysler owned product, which is 40 per cent oil by volume. All leaves of the oilite squeakproof springs are held apart by placing oilite disk inserts between the ends. Thus the only places the leaves touch are at the center and at the ends. The oilite inserts provide constant lubrication at the ends of the leaves, preventing any "freezing" or sticking.

These mechanical features are contained in the new Chrysler six as well as the eight line.

Interior fittings and refinements of the sixes, eights and imperials are wholly in keeping with the mechanical perfection and beautiful lines in evidence throughout the line.

Berry Urges Fight To Prevent Congress From Taxing Autos

Discriminatory and inequitably levied taxes can become a serious obstacle in the path of returning prosperity, asserts G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co. Berry refers specifically to the proposed five per cent tax on automobiles. He called the proposed tax an unjust and additional burden on an industry already overburdened with taxation.

"The public generally believes the automobile industry can be the self starter for returning prosperity," said Berry. "Would you expect the self-starter of your automobile to function properly if you short circuited one of its energy giving electric cables? Then why short circuit automobile sales, the source of energy for this self-starter of business?

"More than 4,000,000 persons earn their living today from motor vehicle production and use. There is not a single state in the union which does does not provide something for the manufacture of motor vehicles. Return of normal activity in the automotive industry will spread renewed employment over the entire nation. It will aid practically every other industry in the Union.

"Because these are facts this proposed additional automobile tax will hit right home to us here in St. Louis. Every person in this city who does not want to see this self-starter of business in any way retarded ought to tell his Congressman and his Senator to vote against any additional automobile tax.

"If after a sincere effort to balance the national budget by economies, additional taxes are necessary, the motor industry is willing to pay its fair share. But this proposed tax is discriminatory and singles out one industry to pay much more than its fair portion of the tax burden.

"Even now the automobile is the highest taxed necessity used by the public. Gasoline, registration, driver's permit and other special taxes amounted to more than $1,000,000,000 in 1931. An owner now pays taxes amounting to 18 per cent annually on the average value of a motor vehicle during its lifetime."

Cord Front Drive Car Has Special 8-Cylinder Engine

Wheelbase Length Increased to 137 Inches—Dual Feed to the Motor.

The wheelbase of the Cord front-drive car has been increased to 137 inches in the models exhibited by E. J. Johnson, Inc., distributer.

The cars are powered with straight eight 125-horsepower Lycoming motors, developed especially for this vehicle, with the flywheel in front next to the transmission.

Pistons are Bohnalite of the Invar strut type. Five main bearings are used and the counterbalanced crankshaft is equipped with a Lanchester vibration damper. Camshaft and accessory drive are by a silent chain, which automatically adjusts itself. Lubribation is by pressure to main bearings, rod bearings, camshaft bearings and timing gears. Three compression rings and one oil ring, all above the wristpin, seal the pistons in the cylinders. Crankcase capacity is eight quarts.

Dual carburetion and dual manifolding insure fuel delivery at all times and carburetion under peak power loads. Transmission is directly in front of the engine and is operated by a short drive shaft. Three speeds forward and one reverse are provided.

The rear axle is of the I-beam type and weighs approximately the same as the ordinary front axle of rear-drive cars. Brakes are Lockheed, four-wheel internal expanding hydraulic, with a division of braking of 60 per cent in front and 40 per cent in rear. The gear shift lever extends through the instrument board and operates by a thrust turn. The chassis frame is made of 7-32-inch stock and includes the Auburn X-cross bracing.

Front springs are of double-quarter elliptic type resting in rubber blocks. Rear springs are semi-elliptic, 62 inches long. Bijur lubrication system reaches the four points in the rear spring shackles, fan bearing, water pump, clutch throwout bearing and the fan-drive pulley bearing.

Gasoline tank in the rear carries 20 gallons. Tires are 18x7.00, standard, with a spare carried on each side in a fender well. Hood is 46 inches long, while fenders in front have an overall length of 80 inches.

New Supercharged Franklin Finishes 7000-Mile Test Run

A supercharged Franklin Airman car has just been returned to Syracuse, N. Y., by John L. Burns and F. W. Drexel after a 7000-mile run across the continent and back via St. Louis, Kansas City, Salina, Fort Dodge and Flagstaff.

In Arizona snow bothered for 100 miles. In one stretch low and second gear were used at high engine speeds for more than six miles. A day in Western Kansas where a sleet storm permitted a mere peephole in the windshield, yet an average of 40 miles an hour was chalked up for the day. Imperial Valley offered almost tropical temperature for a two-day test and additional time was taken for speed runs at El Centro.

On one stretch of good road 96 miles was made in 88 minutes while the fastest day's average was 480 miles in nine hours, an average of 53.4 miles per hour. Gasoline consumption was unusually low, running 13.8 miles per gallon.

Dodge Increases Overall Efficiency Of Its Truck Plant

Taking advantage of curtailed production schedules to install new machinery and to make necessary rearrangements in various manufacturing operations, Dodge Brothers have increased the overall efficiancy of the Detroit truck plant 30 per cent during the past few months, officials say.

Completely revamped, and without interferring in the slightest with production, the plant is called a model of its kind.

One major improvement that resulted in a 60 per cent saving in the handling of materials, was relocating the final assembly line.

The first operation in building a Dodge truck, that of riveting together the chassis frame, has been improved and speeded up with the installation of portable cold-yoke riveting equipment to replace the system of hot riveting.

For Hauling Building Materials

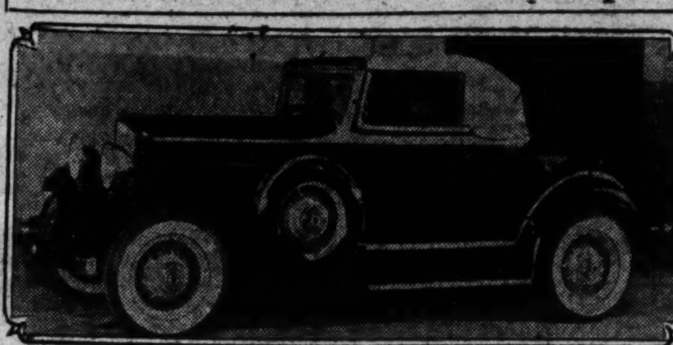
De Vaux '80' Convertible Coupe



Parking as a Nuisance.

The appellate division of the New York Supreme Court has determined that the owner or occupant of a house or store has a right to an injunction restraining the parking of a motor car in front of his premises.

Worth Remembering.

It is against the law in most states to move a parked car to make room for one's own automobile. Most regulations prohibit the touching of another car with the hand or with the bumper of a machine.

Designer Tells How The New Rockne Six Bodies Were Styled

The age old conflict between art and utility, the problem of many an ambitious coach builder, was singularly absent from the designing of the Rockne six, America's newest automobile, according to James R. Hughes, famous body designer who took part in preparing the car for production.

"A chassis of the car was studied," he says. "From the chassis the designer learns the location of motor, radiator core, fan, wheels and other basic features of the car. That's where every designer starts. If he knows where the motor, fan, radiator core and frame are located, he knows all he needs.

"The first step is the making of a color drawing. Into this goes all the genius a designer has, for it is this small drawing that determined the ultimate appearance of the car. When this drawing is finished, engineers scale it up to actual size. In the scaling, some changes have to be made for size, but generally the design remains the same.

"Then wooden models are built. This is most interesting work. The models are built full size of thousands of small pieces of wood glued together. This work is done by highly skillled cabinet makers. When the general lines of the car have been executed in 'the wood,' the whole body is sanded, painted and polished to a high finish. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to distinguish between the surfaces of the wooden models and the steel counterparts that come along later.

"The wooden models show the manufacturer exactly what the final appearance of his new car will be. If the complete ensemble is satisfactory, templates are made from the models and dies and tools for the car are prepared."

During the preparation of the new car, Rockne Motors Corporation had the assistance of Count Alexis de Sakhnoffsky, famous Russian designer.

Count de Sakhnoffsky says that color schemes of the new cars are so advanced that women's clothes will reflect the same blending of colors next summer.

Strict Antifreeze Law.

All antifreeze mixtures sold in Maryland containing more than 10 per cent of wood alcohol must be distinctly colored. They must contain a substance which will produce vomiting. All containers of antifreeze mixtures in less than tank car lots must be marked with the skull and crossbones symbol in red ink.

J. & R. Supply Co. Moves Main Store To No. Grand Blvd.

The J. & R. Motor Supply Co., which operates five auto accessory stores in Greater St. Louis, has moved its main store from 1126 Locust street, to 3105 North Grand boulevard, near Sportsman's Park.

Desire to be nearer to the center of residential population was the chief reason for the change, according to Ford Haworth, St. Louis stores manager.

HERE'S THE THRILLING STORY OF THE NEW DESOTO SIX TOLD BY FLOYD GIBBONS, RIPLEY, AND JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG

● "FLOYD GIBBONS speaking: Hello, everybody! The big news is out. Walter P. Chrysler has presented his new DeSoto Six. It's Front Page News—from coast to coast.

"First . . . what does it look like? Everybody's asking. I'll tell you. It's like the Champs Elysees on Sunday afternoon. Piccadilly during Ascot Week. Park Avenue, outside the Waldorf. All of them, in one. And listen! That's only the beginning.

"Wait till you drive it. What a thrill! No vibration . . . absolutely none at all. Floating Power is correct all right. It floats!

"And that's not half the story. This new DeSoto has an Automatic Clutch with Silent Gear Selector. It's optional at a slight extra cost. Now your left foot is free. No buttons to press. No pedals to operate. It's completely automatic.

"You've seen Free Wheeling before? Not this kind! Not as DeSoto perfected it.

"And Brakes! On the new DeSoto they're Hydraulic. Built specially for Free Wheeling. Almost strong enough to stop a battleship with the slightest foot pressure. Smooth as velvet.

"My guess was $1,200. Hold your breath. It's less than $700. That's no bargain, folks. It's a miracle. Take it from this old Headline Hunter Walter P. Chrysler has scored again!"

ABSOLUTELY NO VIBRATION

ROBERT L. RIPLEY says: "I stood a full glass of water on the front fender. Started the motor...opened the throttle... wider and wider. 3,400 revolutions a minute. Not a quiver! Not a single drop of water spilled! That's Floating Power.

"And the price! That's the incredible end of an unbelievable story . . . less than $700!"

James Montgomery Flagg says: "I have judged plenty of Beauty Competitions. The new DeSoto stands out like a planet among stars.

"Look at that proud radiator. Where else could you find grace and speed so well combined in gleaming metal? Walter P. Chrysler is a great artist as well as a daring engineer." DeSoto Motor Corporation, Division of Chrysler Motors.

School Patrols Save Lives of Many Children

Credited With 56 Per Cent Reduction in Auto Deaths Among Pupils.

There was a reduction of 56 per cent in St. Louis motor car deaths of children of school age in 1931, as compared with 1928, according to P. F. Drury, safety director for the Automobile Club of Missouri, who has analyzed statistics compiled in the last four years by the St. Louis Safety Council.

Credit for this decrease in deaths of children of 6 to 16 years is assigned by Drury to the operation of the school boy patrols, which were established in St. Louis schools in 1929. Today approximately 2500 boys in St. Louis public and parochial schols wear the white Sam Browne belts and silver badges furnished by the Auto Club and protect the lives of younger pupils around 200 schools.

"School authorities, with this army of boys who have sacrificed their play-time, deserve the highest praise it is possible for us to render them for this remarkable showing, especially in an hour darkened by the remainder of the record," Drury declared.

"It has been possible to obtain accurate information in St. Louis which tends to prove beyond doubt the effectiveness of the boy patrol activity. I am convinced this same record of efficiency extends to the 1000 additional boys who have been performing a similar duty in cities all over Missouri where the patrol has been organized."

Largest Auto Tunnel.

The Mersey tunnel, said to be the largest vehicular tube in the world, is near completion. This underwater roadway, connecting Liverpool with Cheshire, is three miles long, 44 feet in diameter, and has cost $25,000,000 thus far. It is estimated that 2,000,000 vehicles will use it the first year of its operation.

R. H. White Now Advertising Manager For Pontiac Factory

W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car Co., announces the appointment of Robert Hugh White as advertising manager for Pontiac six and V-eight cars, succeeding P. Wesley Combs, who recently resigned.

White goes to Pontiac from the General Motors Radio Corporation, Dayton, O., where he had served for two years as advertising and sales promotion manager.

For Higher Gasoline Tax.

The Massachusetts Tax Association has recommended that the 3-cent gasoline tax of that State be raised to 4 cents, half of the income to be turned over to cities and towns for traffic supervision, police protection and highways.

Oldsmobile Device Removes Carbon From New Engines

Carbon removed while one sleeps, at practically no expense. That is one of the features of a new Oldsmobile Six or Eight. A decarbonizer attachment is standard equipment on all Oldsmobile models and is an exclusive Oldsmobile feature.

When car performance indicates that carbon has collected in the engine the Oldsmobile owner, before leaving his car in the home garage for the night, speeds up the engine to an equivalent of about 50 miles an hour, presses his foot against a plunger just above the starter pedal and at the same time shuts off his engine ignition. The following morning he starts his car as usual, noticing two things: First, that a cloud of black smoke is coming from his exhaust—that is the carbon leaving; second, that his engine is running much better—that is the result of the carbon removal.

The decarbonizer consists of a holder for the can of chemical solvent and a glass bowl, both mounted on the engine side of the dash, and a flexible copper pipe leading to the carburetor throat just above the intake manifold. When the can of solvent is placed in the holder it is automatically punctured and the solvent flows into the glass bowl. It remains there until the foot plunger is pushed, opening a valve in the pipe leading to the carburetor. Suction from the engine draws the fluid into the combustion chambers where it remains over night, dissolving the binder which holds the carbon to the walls. When the engine is started in the morning the carbon, in loose, flaky form, is blown out through the exhaust.

The solvent also removes the gummy substance that forms around valve stems as well as the carbon from the upper piston ring.

Profits in Paved Highways.

Paved highways pay for themselves in three years, figures presented by the United States Bureau of Public Highways indicate. The bureau finds it costs 1.6 cents a mile less to run a car on a hard-surfaced road than on a gravel or sandy highway. On roads over which an average of 1000 cars travel daily, which the bureau declares is a conservative estimate, the saving to car owners would pay for the road in three years and then continue to pay dividends in more savings thereafter. To this saving must be added the increased value of lands tapped by modern highways.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM . . . PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

"I'M THROUGH GAMBLING"

"I've owned a total of fifteen cars. I've had a lot of fun, a lot of pleasure. And I've had pretty good service. But somehow or other I was never fully satisfied—until I got a Buick. Maybe that's because I'm a drastic driver. I give a car plenty of hard usage. I need a car that is not only good, but one that gives extra service. Several years ago I bought my first Buick. This year I've chosen Buick again. It's my experience that Buick stands up under the hardest kind of driving. It takes all the punishment I can give it and asks for more. Now I realize why so many motorists say, 'What's a hundred thousand miles to a Buick.' For sturdy reliability and downright stamina it can't be matched. And this year's Buick is the finest of all. The Buick Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine is even more spirited, more powerful. There are even more features that make for easy driving . . . such as Wizard Control. In every way it's the finest car that Buick ever built . . . and that's saying a lot. I can understand why Buick outsells every other car in its price class by more than three to one. It's because Buick is so sound, sturdy, dependable. Yes, I'm through gambling. Fifteen cars have shown me that the way to real motoring satisfaction is at the wheel of a Buick."

'Floating Power' Is Standard on Plymouth Cars

Free Wheeling, Easy Shift, Silent Second, Hydraulic Brakes Features.

Floating power was first introduced in the Plymouth last July. Free wheeling easy-shift transmission, all-steel bodies, double-drop frame and self-equalized hydraulic brakes were also brought to the lowest priced field by this car.

All these featufes are standard in the new Plymouth models at the show.

Quells Engine Vibration.

There are eight body styles, all with wire wheels as standard equipment roadster, coupe, sport roadster, sport phaeton, coupe with rumble seat, convertible coupe, two-door sedan and four-door sedan.

The term floating power describes the method of engine mounting by which the entire power plant is free to rock on its natural axis and by which vibration is nonexistent.

Quells Engine Vibration.

Since the early days of the motor car, engineers had sought to eliminate or absorb the roughness and vibration of a four-cylinder engine. Under the direction of Chrysler engineers floating power was developed to eliminate engine vibration from body and frame by literally floating the complete power plant in the chassis and thus completely absorbing the vibration in the "float."

The riding comfort afforded by floating power is further enhanced through the introduction of free wheeling, which also permits increased economy even in the low-cost four-cylinder car. The Plymouth has an efficient easy-shift transmission of constant mesh type, permitting quiet, easy gear shifting at all speeds independent of free wheeling.

Plymouth continues as the only car in the lowest price field with self-equalizing internal hydraulic brakes.

Mechanical Features.

Mechanically the car is powered by a four-cylinder engine which develops 56 horsepower. The engine is cooled by a large capacity cellular radiator with pump circulation. Heat indicator is located on the instrument panel. Carburetor is equipped with an intake silencer, accelerating pump and air cleaner. Engine lubrication is by pressure from ventilated crankshaft to all crankshaft, connecting rod and camshaft bearings.

Springs are of the long semi-elliptic type with rubber-cored shackles at the front end of the rear springs, with hydraulic shock absorbers to provide greater riding ease. Steering is the semireversible worm and sector type with a three-spoke 17-inch steel reinforced composition steering wheel. Clutch is a 9-inch single plate twin-disk type with spring center.

California Expects Millions.

Because of the Olympic Games in California, it is estimated that a million automobiles from east of the Rocky Mountains will be driven to the Pacific Coast this year. These cross-country motorists will spend approximately $500,000,000 in the cities and towns and along the roadside on the main highways to the coast.

Arabian Products Co. Is Formed to Make Automobile Finish

The Arabian Products Co., a new company shortly to be incorporated, has started business at 5251 Delmar boulevard. The concern manufactures and distributes Arabian Treatment, a preparation which is said to give a new and durable luster to dull-surfaced automobiles in one short, time-saving operation.

The new product is manufactured at the Delmar address and will be sold through jobbers and the retail trade.

Safety System at Cross Roads.

"strip" system of signaling is to be used on country cross-roads in England. By this method, cars give their own warning signals. As a car passes over an electric strip inlet into the roadway, it establishes contact with a signal that goes against traffic on the other cross-road.

Deferred Payment Plan for Repairs by Hudson-Frampton Co.

R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Co., announces that the company has inaugurated a service plan whereby an owner of a car can have car repairs made on the same basis as in purchasing a new automobile.

Frampton feels that, in keeping with the present day conditions, every effort should be made by an automobile dealer to make it a point that the particular make of car he is selling is kept in first-class running condition. Sometimes this cannot be done owing to the cost of necessary repairs.

For this reason Frampton has worked out a deferred payment plan for repairs on automobiles in his superservice station. Carrying charges are very low.

Since Frampton inaugurated this plan he has had marked increase of service business. Hudson-Essex owners especially have taken advantage of it.

It's Rust Proof if it's BONDERIZED

See that your next car comes Bonderized! Write us for list of Bonderized cars and full explanation of the magic chemical that prevents rust

Until recently it was only a matter of a very short time before the beautiful new finish of your automobile started to chip or peel off in infinitesimal spots on all sheet metal parts. Damaging elements in the form of salt air, rain, snow, mud or flying gravel bit and ate right into the enameled surface and corrosion spread like wild fire. Result—rusty fenders—rusty wire spokes and a state of general dilapidation throughout.

Then came Bonderite—a new magic chemical which "Holds paint to Steel". A coat of Bonderite is applied to the sheet metal parts which has the effect of creating millions of microscopic crystals on the surface. When enamel or lacquer is sprayed on it penetrates into the small pores between these tiny crystals and when dry will not chip, peel or rust for the life of the car. Should a careless scratch occur rust cannot spread.

So if you want your new car to retain its brilliant sparkling newness for its entire life see that its wire wheels, fenders and other sheet metal parts come Bonderized. This is a new and exclusive process used by the foremost car manufacturers. Remember Bonderizing means rustproofing. Also watch this in selecting your new electric refrigerator, metal furniture and bathroom cabinets. The most modern ones are Bonderized.

Write us today for list of automobile manufacturers and other makers who Bonderize—also ask for interesting literature.

Never Such Values In Motor Cars, Fisher Declares

President of Great Body Building Concern Discusses Autos From Buyer's Viewpoint.

By W. A. FISHER,
President of the Fisher Body Corporation.

We shall doubtless hear the verdict on the Automobile Show expressed in various way, but its general drift is pretty likely to boil down to this. Value certainly is the keynote of the entire display.

It was into a greatly changed setting that the automotive industry had to plan the introduction of its offering for 1932. Always in close contact with the economic pulse of the country, motor car manufacturers, months ago, fell into step with the times. Several of the new lines, reflecting these builders' convictions on the appropriate thing for these times, have now been out for some weeks.

Buick and Chevrolet, to mention two with whose problems I am familiar, have thoroughly outdone themselves in the matter of value referred to, and their achievements may be regarded as more or less typical of the industry at large.

Greater Values Everywhere.

Greater values are apparent from one end of the car to the other. There is an array of mechanical innovations seldom matched in any one year. But even nearer home, from the body manufacturer's standpoint, are the many body advancements in these new lines of cars.

Here again it will be found that the effort to give more for the money has dictated every change. Fisher Bodies, for instance, incorporate dozens of improvements this year. There is the new adjustable interior glare-windshild, replacing the outside fixed visor; newly designed and refined body fittings; better upholstery, insulation and ventilation; new refinements of the door locks, seat regulators, window mechanism, to name the more concrete examples. In addition, there are any number of improvements which do not show on the surface, but which bear vitally on the body's capacity to stand up under use.

Finally, there is style. An intangible thing at best, and difficult to define; but a thing which a car either has or has not, and a thing we have stressed at all times. Always an important factor, style means more now than ever, perhaps, because the average buyer is keeping his car longer than heretofore. And it is reasonable to suppose that he is going to select the car which—all other factors being equal—stands the best chance of looking up-to-date among the cars of the year after next.

Careful streamlining has been the dominant change in the style of bodies this year. Even here there is apparent the same caution against anything faddish or freaky. Possibly styles this year might have been a good deal more radical but for changed business conditions, which imposed a new conception of thrift upon the public at large. At any rate, the new liens display style with a pleasing restraint which is certainly in step with the times.

Here, of course, is where the buyer finally "gets a break." He is getting rock-bottom prices on a type of automotive values such as has never before been seen. At Fisher Body, for instance, the tremendous purchasing power born of massed resources has reached out into the wool market, the steel market, the timber forests and the many other sources of the raw material from which "Bodies by Fisher" are built. It has gathered these materials at prices not only in keeping with the times, but actually lower than would be available to purchasers of lesser quantities. Such purchasing has placed at the disposal of the buying public a double advantage; it has given today's automobile buyer the benefit of vast quantity purchasing at a time when all commodities are at the lowest price levels in years.

As these prices stand today, they surely entitle the automobile to a place among those necessities of life which have undergone revision to fit the public purse. Authorities throughout the industry naturally hesitate to predict, but there are grounds to believe that prices are now at the very bottom.

Auto Service Show Conducted This Week By Firestone Stores

Motorists Can See Improved Methods of Lubricating Their Motor Cars.

Concurrently with the St. Louis Automobile Show this week a new automobile service show is being conducted at the Firestone Service Stores, Inc., Hamilton and Delmar boulevard. This is the first automobile service show to be held in St. Louis and second of its kind to be held anywhere in the world, the first one having operated in Detroit during the recent automobile show there.

Car owners visiting this service show can see their cars lubricated with seven different kinds of grease, their brakes adjusted, wheels checked for proper alignment. All this work is done in the latest and most improved scientific manner by factory-trained operators.

Few motorists realize the importance of proper servicing of their cars or that more money is spent on an average car's maintenance during its life than the purchase price.

Formerly, lubricating an automobile chassis consisted of putting hard, soaplike grease in a few grease cups, whereas today specialized lubrication of an automobile chassis consists of many distinct types of greases in the proper places. For instance, a grease that will resist action of hot water for the water pump shaft, another grease for shock absorbers, waterproof grease for shackles, special penetrating lubrication for springs, gear lubrication, semifluid lubricant for try-on shackles.

The specific lubricants used in the special jobs are as follows: Chassis, wheel bearing, water pump, gear lubricant, try-on shackle lubricant, universal joint lubricant, free-wheeling lubricant.

This automobile service show is under the direction of A. G. Ridgley, manager of the Firestone Service Stores, Inc. The public is invited any time during the week.

Goodyear Engineers Develop and Produce Silent Non-Skid Tire

Designing it to meet the demand of automobile factories for tires that are silent when running on the road as well as safe, Goodyear has developed a new silent, nonskid tire.

Goodyear's characteristic tire tread design has always been noted for its grip on the road whether on muddy dirt, or rough brick or smooth concrete. Now the Goodyear tread design has been engineered so as to provide silent operation while at the same time retaining all of its nonskid qualities.

The tread is as massive as ever and has fully as many antiskid blocks. But noise and vibration on the highway have been eliminated by merely shifting of a fraction of an inch of the tread blocks.

These new sielnt Goodyear tires, of course, are available to any motorist as well as for "factory equipment" on automobiles.

Automatic Ride Control

Archer-Mann Co. Reports Business Gain of 102 Per Cent

The Archer Mann Motor Co., distributer of Marmon cars in St. Louis, had a 102 per cent increase in business in 1931 over 1930, according to R. B. Mann. Mann remarks that this increase was made in a so-called depressed market, and says that, so far as Marmon is concerned, things look very encouraging for 1932.

The firm's 1931 record was unusual on account of the curtailment in production of automobiles. But by doubling efforts in 1931, Mann says, and considerable special effort in the St. Louis market, together with the product that Marmon has brought out, it was enabled to show this increase. Mann holds that it all indicates there are buyers in the market ready to spend when they are given value for their money.

"There Ought to Be a Law!"

More than 7500 bills relating to the ownership and operation of motor vehicles and highway construction were introduced in 48 state Legislatures of the Union in 1931. Of these measures, approximately 1500 were enacted.

Chanter Points Out Some Advantages Of the Luxury Cars

Quality Often Brings Over-Plus of Value, Pierce-Arrow Executive Says.

By A. J. CHANTER,
Vice President and General Manager of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. a

Necessity is usually spoken of as a hard master; but the motor car shows of 1932 will demonstrate that today, at least, necessity has singled out the car buyer as a beneficiary of engineering and manufacturing thought and action. Competitive conditions have spurred the individual manufacturers to excel and surpass the finest things they have achieved in times past.

Any thoughtful survey of the new offerings as displayed at the automobile show brings the observer to the conclusion that the motor car dollar of this year is a mightier dollar in buying power than at any previous period. It would not do for the industry to take to itself undue credit for what it has accomplished during the last few years and the climactic effect now revealed. But it can claim credit for laboring ceaselessly to build better quality and better value into its products.

All of these efforts have their beginning in engineering, of course. Every principle of internal combustion engines, and of all the other factors which the motor car embraces, is open to all engineers and all manufacturers. But it does not follow that one engineering group develops the same set of principles in the same way, or secures identical results from the same principles. The quality of engineering brains and ingenuity is the first limiting and defining factor.

Volume production exerts a powerful influence. The matter of building to a price does likewise, and there are other governing elements which step in before the final engineering work is approved for release to the manufacturing department.

So far as manufacturing is concerned, one man or group can duplicate the plant facilities and methods of any other man or group, provided the necessary funds are available.

Essentially, the great deciding difference between this car and that car of a given type is the kind and quality of engineering thinking applied to the conception and working out of the mechanical design.

Limitations grow wider as the price ranges of cars approach the upper levels. Here there is a wider latitude for what might be termed engineering and manufacturing elaboration. The buyers of such cars are as eager for the last word as those buying in the lower price classifications, to be sure. While it can never be truthfully said of any manufacturing enterprise like the motor car that costs are no object, it is nevertheless true that they do become less of an object.

So here is the opportunity for the finer kind of engineering to come closer to achieving perfection.

The point is that the buyer whose means enable him to choose among the higher price cars is getting more of quality in engineering, in manufacturing, in materials and so on. In some notable instances, this overplus is in such proportion, however, that he actually receives more in dollar-value than it is possible for the shrewdest of management to produce at the lowest prices and this is made plain in the exhibition now going on.

Chevrolet Six Lacks Hardly Any Feature Found on Costly Cars

The great array of fine-car features incorporated in the 1932 Chevrolet Six offers convincing proof that few things remain exclusive to cars of the high priced field, according to W. E. Holler, assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Volume production has made possible such tremendous purchasing advantages that scarcely has a worthwhile new feature been introduced on a costly car before a means has been found to adopt it to the low priced volume field, the Chevrolet executive explained.

"In the new Chevrolet Six," says Holler, "are features of appearance such as streamlined bodies, built-in radiator screen grille, bead fenders, chromium plated lamps and horn, hood doors with chromium wind-splits, slanting windshield, deeper doors, smaller wheels with larger tires. Compare these features with those of expensive cars and see if they are not almost identical. Some of them were first introduced by costly cars and soon converted to Chevrolet. Others are new to all cars this year, regardless of their price class.

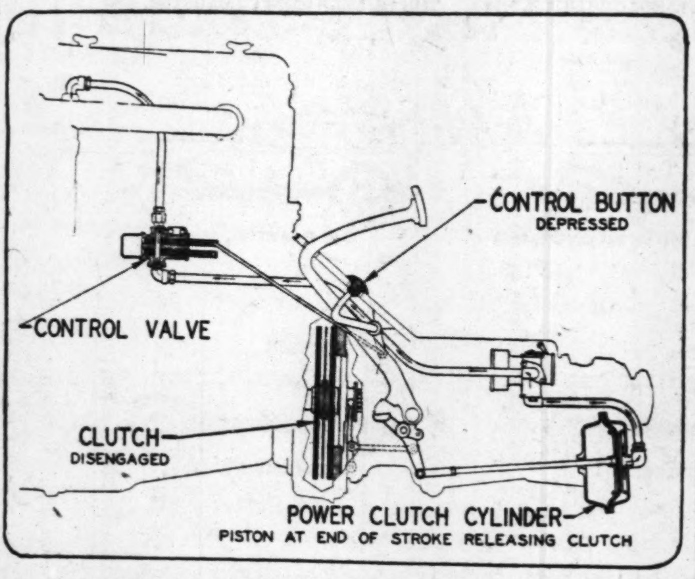
"From a mechanical viewpoint, the new Chevrolet offers practically every outstanding feature known to the high priced car. Among these are synchro-mesh transmission and free-wheeling, rubber engine mounting, down-draft carburetion, counter-weighted crankshaft, combined air cleaner and intake silencer, harmonic balancer, positive pressure lubrication, and many other features of proven merit.

"This trend of fine-car features to the low priced field developed only within the last few years. Feminine influence gave impetus to the trend. But the thing that makes it possible is the saving effected on large purchases of materials by the large manufacturer, which in turn enables him to put those savings back into the car in the interest of greater comfort, performance and smartness."

Simple and Easy Control

A slight movement of the ride control on the Pontiac instrument panel instantly adjusts shock absorber action. A similar knob on the other side of the steering post locks free wheeling "in or out." Direct and indirect lighting of the "dial type" instruments is controlled by a separate button. The inside sun visor may be swung down into any position.

Buick Automatic Clutch



Simplified Free Wheeling

Free wheeling, as provided in the new Chevrolet, is as simple in its operation as the turning of a calendar in a cardboard tube.

If one inserts his first two fingers in a rolled calendar and turns in one direction, he will unwind the calendar, tighten it against the tube, and cause it to turn the tube. If he turns his fingers in the opposite direction, he will wind the calendar, decrease its size, and cause it to turn freely in the tube.

The calendar experiment involves the use of three operating parts—tube, calendar and fingers. Similarly, Chevrolet's free wheeling device requires the use of only three major operating parts—front driving member, multi-coiled driving spring and rear driven member. The cardboard tube corresponds to the front driving member, the calendar to the spring, and the fingers to the rear driven member.

The front driven member is splined to the transmission main shaft; the rear driven member is splined to the front yoke of the universal joint, through which it is connected to the propeller shaft; the multi-coiled driving spring is attached to the rear driven member by an integral prong at its end. The outside diameter of the spring is confined within cups in both the driving and driven members with a very slight clearance, permitting free and independent rotation of either member.

As the power is applied, the spring expands tightly into the cups of both members, locking the two together with a force equal to the power transmitted, and the drive is conventional. This compares to turning the fingers so that the calendar unwinds against the tube and causes the tube to revolve.

When the driving force is removed, by removing the foot from the accelerator, the driving spring contracts, and the rear member is free to rotate with the propeller shaft and rear wheels. This free rotation of the wheels independent of engine and transmission constitutes free wheeling. This action is comparable to turning the fingers in the calendar so that the calendar winds and rotates freely in the tube.

Franklin Prepares To Offer 12-Cylinder Added Line in March

Production of a 12-Cylinder, Air-Cooled Car in March Is Part of the Expansion Program of the Franklin Motor Car Co.

This larger Franklin, which will sell in a bracket just above the Franklin Airman class, has been under the development for years. It has a definite place in the fine car market, as that discriminating class of buyers has learned that air-cooling, both in planes and motor cars, possesses a decided luxury appeal, the Franklin Co. says.

The outlook for further extension of the air-cooling principle has been stated recently by a prominent automotive engineering authority. He maintains that everything which air-cooling is responsible for in aviation is equally applicable to the automobile, and that the day is on the way when all cars will be air-cooled.

The 1932 development of air-cooling brought about the Franklin supercharger, which is standard equipment on the Airman line.

No More Noisy Cars.

The war on noise throughout the United States has spread to the field of automobile manufacture, with many of the 1932 models featuring noise-proof construction. Free wheeling and silent transmissions have served to accentuate body noises. As a result, manufacturers have devised various methods of body-silencing. This has brought the all-steel, welded body into greater prominence. These bodies are welded into a single unit. With no joints to squeak, they are surprisingly quiet.

Interest in Auto Salon.

Buying interest in the Chicago Auto Salon is reported as greater that custom builders had expected. Visitors show keen apprciation of mechanical and body improvements.

Oil Protects Truck Radiator.

The cooling system of one Dodge truck is protected from rust and made more effective by use of an expensive soluble oil that is mixed with the cooling water. The oil also assists in lubricating the water pump shaft.

First Disc Wheels on Taxis.

Steel disc wheels were first used in taxicabs because of the safety factor. Taxi manufacturers were the first to use balloon tires.

Automatic "Shaker" Now Standard on the New Anthony Pipeless Hydraulic Dump Bodies

Now the unusually efficient Anthony Heavy Duty Hydraulic Hoist offers another great advancement—the Automatic Shaker—fully protected by patents. Anthony is the only hoist that has this unit that shakes the body to dislodge load without shaking the whole chassis and without damage to clutch, transmission, etc. The Shaker is built within the cylinder—is easily controlled and is standard or optional on every Anthony hoist—either horizontal or slant type—at no extra cost.

A complete line of bodies are available with the Anthony Hoist—and all constructed of 10-gauge, heavy duty steel.

General Truck Tires Show Slight Wear On 14,600-Mile Run

On the Indianapolis speedway, where he has been a leader in Memorial day classics, Dave Evans. famous auto racer, recently established a new world record for a nonstop run by a vehicle of any kind.

Instead of a trim, racing mcahine, Evans this time was at the wheel of a Diesel-motored truck of 22,700 pounds. For two weeks, night and day, Evans, with several relief drivers, drove this truck round and round the big speedway oval 5840 times until a total nonstop mileage of 14,600 miles had been piled up.

Charles Merz, chief of the staff of A. A. A. representatives, who checked the run, night and day, reported the result to Washington for official record. When Merz examined the General truck balloon tires, on the track, he found that although they had been heavily overloaded and had been driven constantly for two weeks at an average speed of 43.41 miles an hour on a steeply-banked brick and concrete surface they were not damaged in any way and showed only slight tread wear.

"No one expected that we would finish on the original tires," remarked Evans. "The performance of the General tires was one of the outstanding features of the run."

Four of the six stock General tires showed the same air pressure at the end of the run as they started with. One had lost four pounds and the sixth tire had lost two pounds of air in the two weeks they were run without stopping.

"Officials of the A. A. A. and others who witnessed this run consider the performance of the General tires under this test unbelievable, considering that the run covered 5840 laps of the speedway, with four steeply-banked sharp turns per lap, on the worst scuffing surface imaginable," said Evans.

A. A. A. Not Affected By Dissolution of Club in New York

The AAA (American Automobile Association) with which the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, is affiliated, should in no way be confused with the Automobile Club of America which, according to recent news dispatches, has just been ordered dissolved and its assets liquidated by its board of governors in New York City, according to Matt. F. Morse, secretary and general manager of the Missouri organization.

The New York City club, which has been operated as a social organization, was forced to quit because of loss in membership. The AAA is composed of 1000 motor clubs throughout the United States and Canada

Packard Brings Out New Model Of Its 'Twin Six'

"Since July, 1915, when the first twin six was announced, the Packard Motor Car Co. has never ceased to build twin six motors," says J. G. Vincent, vice president of engineering. "It is completely logical, therefore, that Packard should again produce a twin six to meet an apparent, although somewhat limited, demand for this type of automobile.

"Packard was the original maker of the twin six in this country. The twin six principle was carried into the war period with the Packard aircraft engine which became a pattern for the famous Liberty motor. After the war it was developed further, resulting in the most powerful aircraft and speedboat engines in the world. Twin six engines built by Packard at one time have held more world records than any other one kind of engine in existence.

The Packard twin six engines which power Gar Wood's latest marine speedboat were built in 1926. They have been raced by Wood ever since and established many world records. They were the first to carry a man 100 miles an hour in a boat. How many hours they have been run no one knows. Twice, once in salt water and once in fresh water, they have been plunged to the bottom when the boats under them were smashed. They are still running as well as when new.

"The original Packard twin six car was a sensation when it was announced in July, 1915. Until that time six cylinders were the standard for fine motor cars. Packard doubled the standard. However, because of the stress and strain of war perhaps, the twin six was somewhat ahead of its time. At any rate, immediately following the war the motoring public seemed to demand lighter automobiles and motor car engines of greater simplicity. Packard, for this reason, adopted the straight eight engine for its cars.

But to a public which has now expressed to us an interest in 12-cylinder automobiles, Packard now presents a new, modern interpretation of the twin six. The new engine is the same in principle, but vastly different in design, performance and power."

Packard Reports Heavy Consumer Orders at the Show

The volume of actual sales made in the New York Automobile Show was such as to strike a real note of optimism for general business. Attendance records for the show also add encouragement, for they were large.

It is announced by the Packard Motor Car Cc. that sales of Packard cars at the show in the first two days exceeded the total volume of Packard sales during the whole period of last year's show. It was added that these were sales to individuals and did not include orders from dealers and distributers.

Orders for the Packard light eight and the twin six, Packard's two new cars, were heavy. Packard officials were jubilant over the general receptiono of the new cars and the concrete evidence, in the form of orders, of acceptance by the public.

Model of De Soto Factory 'Produces' Cars at Auto Show

A $25,000 model of the De Soto factory in Detroit is on view at the St. Louis Automobile Show.

Like the plant it represents, the model factory "produces" miniature automobiles at the rate of 140 every hour. The small automobiles run out, seemingly under their own power, and onto a shipping platform, ready to be packed into waiting box cars.

The model is 20 feet long and four wide and is mounted on mahogany base. It is a perfect reproduction of the large Detroit plant, scaled down approximately 125 times. The Detroit plant is 2500 feet long and 550 feet wide. The miniature is in constant operation.

Peter De Paolo. speedway champion and holder of the 500-mile record at the Indianapolis track, explains the operation of the model, which duplicates assembly procedure at the Detroit factory.

This toy is the realization of a dream of Walter P. Chrysler—to tell the public a visual story of the care and efficiency with which automobiles are built today—especially in the De Soto plant. Chrysler felt that because not one person in 10,000 ever gets to see an automobile plant, millions of people would be interested in observing the production methods which have done so much to improve the quality and reduce the cost to the present minimum.

In the De Soto plant at Detroit everything is on one floor level and all in one room without a partition—the largest single room in the world. This room is 23 acres in area and is so well lighted that it is only on extremely dark days that any artificial light is needed.

Every working day there are eight carloads of tires consumed; three carloads of storage batteries; 10 carloads of wheels and more than 100 truck loads of bodies, in addition to the millions of small parts required—for there are some 2750 individual parts in the average automobile.

Dual Ratio Specified In Most Orders for The New Auburn Cars

An increase of 81 per cent in the retail sales of Auburn cars in the first five days at the New York National Automobile Show compared with the same period of the 1931 exhibit, is announced by N. E. McDarby, vice president in charge of sales.

Of the total number of orders for the new Auburn straight eight and 12-cylinder cars, 93 per cent have been for models with dual ratio, McDarby said.

"Sales of the new 160 horsepower 12-cylinder models," McDarby went on, "are far ahead of our expectations. We believe that this is an indication of how the public will accept our products in 1932. No major engineering development has ever received such complete indorsement from the public as 'dual ratio,' as indicated in the percentage of cars embodying this feature which customers have ordered. Reports from the Los Angeles and San Francisco shows indicate a similar acceptance of our products."

Dealer interest has been greater at the 1932 show than in any of the past few years.

Dierl Motor Sales Appointed Willys and Willys-Knight Dealer

The Dierl Motor Sales, 1333-35 South Seventh boulevard, has been appointed a dealer for Willys six, Willys eight and Willys-Knight cars, it is announced by the Southwest Willys Co.

The firm, of which H. W. Dierl is president, has occupied its present quarters for six years, its building having floor space 100 to 150 feet and full service facilities.

Hupp Comet Racer, Entered in 500-Mile Race, Here This Week

Russell Snowberger, fourth ranking automobile racing driver in 1931, will bring to St. Louis this week the Hupp Comet, which he has entered the 500-mile Indianapolis race next May 30.

This car—a Hupmobile straight eight—is the first that the Hupp Motor Car Corporation has ever put into racing. The car and Snowberger will make headquarters while in St. Louis at the Weber Implement & Automobile Co., Locust and Nineteenth street.

The Hupp Comet will be held here for several days to permit racing enthusiasts to examine its construction. It is painted a vivid blue and carries its driver's numeral, No. 4, in large cream-colored letters on hood and tail.

It is said more closely to approach stock car specifications than any other car entered in the Memorial day race in recent years. The engine is the regular 133-horsepower straight eight that has powered two Hupmobile stock models for more than two and one-half years. A standard block, pistons, rings, valves, crankshaft and camshaft are used, although four carburetors and a special high compression head are included.

LUBRITE ANNOUNCES

A NEW

Mobilgas ETHYL

for the high compression motors of 1932!

THE new cars at the St. Louis Automobile Show this year offer the greatest values in automotive history. Most important of many radical improvements are their high compression motors, offered either as standard equipment or through optional engine heads.

High compression is here, and Lubrite welcomes it this month with a new Mobilgas Ethyl — a new motor fuel with a new and higher anti-knock standard!

When Mobilgas Ethyl was first placed on the market, its anti-knock standard was higher than necessary for the motors of the time. Now it is to be higher still. Instead of keeping abreast of the demands of automotive engineers, the Lubrite Refining Corporation has kept ahead of them. As a result, Mobilgas Ethyl will eliminate destructive knocking even in the highest compression motors offered in 1932 cars!

The new Mobilgas Ethyl will be on sale within a few days. It is a "double checked" motor fuel.

First, we make Mobilgas with Climatic-Control — the gasoline that is pre-adjusted to all changes in "engine heat" caused by variations in weather and temperature.

Then samples are sent to the laboratories of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation. There the quality of Mobilgas is checked and tests made to determine how much Ethyl fluid is needed for the still higher anti-knock standard.

When this is known, the Ethyl fluid is added, after which the finished product, Mobilgas Ethyl, must again pass the rigid requirements of the Ethyl and Lubrite engineers. Not until then can it be offered at Lubrite stations.

The new high compression motors, plus the new Mobilgas Ethyl with Climatic-Control, will give you thrilling performance — lightning acceleration, high speed and low fuel consumption. Older cars, too, will reach new peaks of performance with the new Mobilgas Ethyl.

Aluminum Cylinder Head on 'Blue Streaks' For High Efficiency

The most distinctive features of the Graham special Blue Streak engine are the most inconspicuous; they are its aluminum cylinder head and its full length water jackets.

Graham engines have always been designed expressly to operate at their highest efficiency on ordinary grades of fuel; that is, they do not require premium gasoline, either high test or doped, to obtain the maximum power, economy and quiet operation.

The aluminum cylinder head is the latest advance in Graham design to give increased performance powers and better economy. This it achieves by permitting higher compression without pinging or knocking. The increased compression means greater horsepower output with no increase in fuel consumption—which is synonymous for more economy.

Chrysler Dealer Organization Ranks Third in Car Industry

The dealer organization of Chrysler Sales Corporation ranks third among the dealer organizations of the motor car industry, according to the latest information furnished to J. W. Frazer, general sales manager of the corporation, by the statistical bureau of one of the industry's leading trade publications.

Listing the first 15 manufacturers of American automobiles, the figures compiled by this publication show Chrysler topping the list of dealer organizations selling cars for more than $700. First and second places are filled by dealers handling cars in the lowest price bracket.

Of the 15 manufacturers' dealer bodies who figure in the count, only four show a gain in dealers in 1931, according to the report.

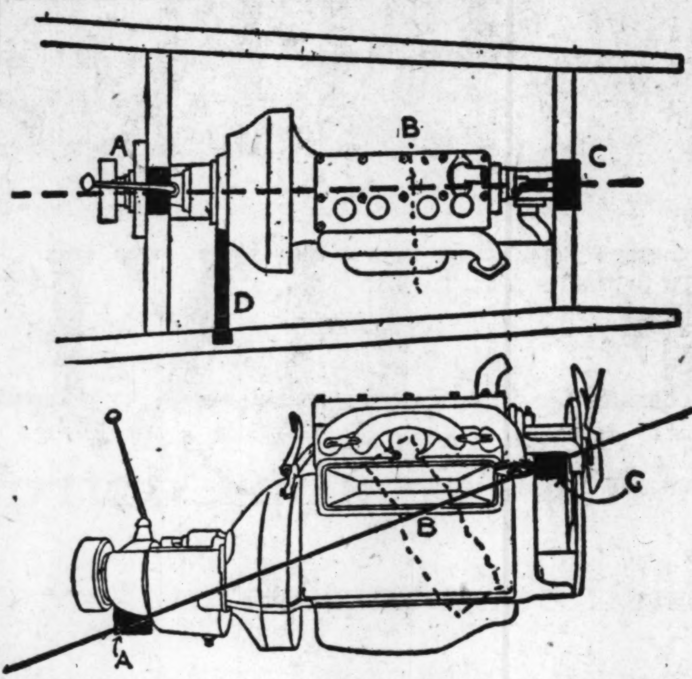
"The ranking which the Chrysler dealer body has attained in the past year," said Frazer in commenting on this report, "is a tribute not only to the splendid business ability and fortitude displayed by the dealers themselves, but to the unusual values offered by the various models of Chrysler six and eight cylinder cars this year.

"Not to be passed over, either, is the phenomenal success of the new floating power Plymouth. Since the announcement of this last July, we have had hundreds of inquiries from dealers handling other lines who are anxious to get the Chrysler franchise not only for the sales possibilities of the Chrysler lines, but the Plymouth also, as all Chrysler dealers handle the Plymouth."

Cars for Everyone.

Every man, woman and child in the United States could be placed in the automobiles now in operation and transported simultaneously. Today one automobile is registered for each 4.6 persons in the country. Although many cars are designed to carry only two passengers, the number which will seat more than five offsets the limitations of the smaller vehicles.

How Floating Power Works



The principle underlying floating power motor mountings is so simple that automotive engineers should have thought of it years ago, according to its inventor, R. K. Lee, director of engineering research of Chrysler Corporation.

"The idea underlying floating power engine mounting," says Lee, "is just one of those simple fundamental things. Fastening an engine in an automobile with rigid engine mountings is against the nature of things, against the law of physics that we studied in high school.

"With rigid mountings a reaction must take place in the crankcase exactly equal to and opposite to the energy imparted to the crankshaft and flywheel by the force of the pistons and connecting rods. Therefore, this energy is transmitted to the frame and from the frame to the body of the car and on into the bodies of the passengers. When the engine is bolted to the chassis frame, the frame as well as the lower half of the engine acts like a single rigid pendulum, the whole of which swings sideways and then returns to its normal position after each cylinder explosion. For this reason the chassis, the body and all occupants of the body vibrate with every power impulse of the engine.

"You can compare the old and this new method of engine mounting by taking a rod or stick. Hold it at the bottom and move from one side to another and your hand must move through space, but hold it at the center and wiggle from one side to the other and your hand hardly moves. Right there is the simple principle of floating power.

"As if the hands were holding it at the middle, so to speak, we mount the engine at the ends of its axis—points 'A' and 'C' on the accompanying sketch—one at the rear of the transmission and the other in front below the center of gravity—an imaginary mass as indicated by point 'B'—and the rear mounting.

"Balanced on its own axis, the engine is free to swing slightly in a pendulum motion. To prevent too large a movement of the power plant about its axis a stabilizing spring is attached to the lower side of the axis—point 'D.'

"To take care of the vibrations from the inner mechanism—that is, from the cylinder explosions—the mountings, at the two points of suspension and at the one point where the spring comes in contact with the frame—A B C and D—are of live rubber, treated so that it will last longer than the life of the car and bonded to steel by means of a special process which prevents it ever working loose."

Diamond T Truck Sales' Gain Over 1931 Is Reported by Tilt

Diamond T truck sales in 1931 exceeded those in the previous year by a slight margin, it is announced by C. A. Tilt, president of the Diamond T. Motor Car Co. Especially conspicuous in this showing, he adds, was the record made in the final seven months, during which a 32 per cent increase was scored over the corresponding period in 1930.

In the opinion of Tilt, the number of orders during the final seven months of the year "indicates definitely that business is now on the upgrade."

The Diamond T executive states that 1931 will stand as an important year in the company's history for a number of reasons, including the launching of a new, low-priced 1½-ton model of heavy-duty construction which met with immediate popularity; the introduction later of a two-ton unit with the same result, and the strengthening of the distributing organization in the United States and abroad through addition of more than 105 new dealers.

Busses to and From Automobile Show In Downtown District

Large, de luxe motor coaches will cruise around the downtown district between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m. this week furnishing free transportation to and from the Automobile Show in the Mart Building.

Anyone can take advantage of this convenience, which is supplied by the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

Rusting Prevented By Process Used on Dodge Car Bodies

Rust has been eliminated in the Dodge six and eight by a process known as parcolite, which also forms a base for and protects the final lustrous lacquer finish of the completed body.

In preparing the mono-piece body for rustproofing, the production is first immersed into a cecolene acid vapor bath that chemically cleans it of excess grease and grit. It is then sprayed with the Parcolite mixture that literally becomes a part of the metal of the body. The production then passes through a drying oven heated to a temperature of 250 degrees for about 10 minutes, during which time the chemical action of the rustproofing mixture is hastened and completed.

As the body emerges from the drying oven, the sprayed solution is found to have become baked to a fine powdery substance that clings lightly to the body and which has completely absorbed all surface rust and grease. The production then passes between two electrically-driven brushes that are shaped to fit the exact contours of the mono-piece body. These brushes completely clean the body after which it passes on to hand wipers, who, with the aid of steel wool and an air hose, complete the cleaning job. The production is then ready for its first coat of prime, completely and for all time sealed against the inroads of rush.

U. S. Car Sales Figures.

Total car sales in December were 77,553. For the whole of 1931 they were 1,908,016 as compared with 2,626,068 in 1930, R. L. Polk, statistician, announces.

Troop Notes

North District.

Scoutmaster J. P. Simons of Troop 3, Grace Holy Cross Church, received a Beaver award at the annual banquet of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council at Hotel Chase Jan. 25. An inspection was held at the regular troop meeting last week. The meeting was attended by eight scouts, four officers and three troop committeemen.

A troop Court of Honor will be conducted by Troop 88 of Salem Evangelical Church, Feb. 25, Scoutmaster Stumpf announced at the troop meeting last week. An investiture ceremony will also be held, and an inter-patrol contest.

A troop Court of Honor and a parents' night will be held Feb. 26.

Central District.

Troop 57 of Wyman School entertained the school Parent-Teacher Association and parents of the scouts a week ago Friday evening. "A Day in Camp" was shown, the different events being arranged according to a camp schedule. Activities Director Charles H. Mills of the St. Louis Council made the principal address. He was introduced by Field Executive L. J. Case.

Scouts and fathers of Troop 155 of McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church attended a fathers' and sons' overnight camp at the Scoutmasters' Lodge on the Meramec River last week-end.

The Wolf Patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest conducted by Troop 242 of St. Francis de Sales Church. The troop obtained more than the number of points needed to qualify in the January part of the 1932 achievement roundup.

RETAILERS TO OPEN MEETING TOMORROW

2500 Merchants Expected to Attend Convention, to Continue Through Week.

The seventeenth semiannual convention of the American Retailers' Association, which opens tomorrow at Hotel Statler, is expected to attract about 2500 merchants from throughout the country. The association, organized in 1923, now has more than 5500 members.

The convention will continue through the week, with educational sessions Tuesday and Wednesday night and a theater party Thursday night.

Speakers Tuesday night include M. M. Zimmerman, merchandise counsel, New York; G. W. Allison, field manager of the National Electric Light Association, New York, and Julius du Pont, general manager of A. M. & J. C. du Pont Co., Houma, La. Zimmerman's topic is chain store competition; Allison will speak of modern merchandising methods, and du Pont on "How to Meet Today's Problems."

An investiture ceremony to admit new members will be held by Troop 121, St. Rita's Catholic Church, today, as part of an open meeting for parents and friends of the troop. The investiture will be conducted by the troop committee. The troop will give a scouting demonstration and Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss will talk.

A new troop, Troop 135, is being organized by the University Methodist Church, under leadership of Norwood Markham, who has been a scout and officer of Troop 77 for the last nine years. The troop committee will consist of Harry A. Lewis, chairman, Roy Ash, E. R. Hill, W. A. Pickerel and J. C. Stock. A meeting was held last Tuesday to plan a program for the next six months.

336 MILLION MILES

By 100,000 new Owners

SINCE the Plymouth with Floating Power was introduced last July, 100,000 owners have driven it more than 336,000,000 miles.

This great owner test has covered every section of the country... all kinds of roads... all kinds of weather... all degrees of driving expertness.

The result is that Plymouth in the hands of the public has proved an even greater car than Chrysler Motors engineers dared predict, even after their own tests had established its worth.

Today the public has proved that Plymouth's Floating Power truly gives the only really vibrationless ride in the lowest-price field.

The public has proved that Plymouth has the smoothness not of a six but a fine eight with the economy of a four.

The public has proved that Floating Power is as durable as it is efficient. This great engineering advancement has since been adopted by Chrysler, DeSoto and Dodge—all higher-priced Chrysler Motors products.

The public has proved that Plymouth's combination of Floating Power, Free Wheeling and an Easy-Shift Transmission gives it a performance and driving ease never before known in lowest-priced cars.

The public has proved that Plymouth's weatherproof hydraulic brakes, Safety-Steel body and double-drop frame give it unsurpassed safety.

Learn for yourself what 100,000 Plymouth owners have proved and are proving every day. Your nearest Chrysler, DeSoto or Dodge dealer will be glad to arrange a demonstration.

PRICES—Roadster $535, Sport Roadster $595, Sport Phaeton $595, Coupe $565, Coupe (with rumble seat) $610, Convertible Coupe $645, Sedan (2-door) $575, Sedan (4-door, 6-window) $635, f. o. b. factory. Low delivered prices. Convenient time-payments.

Duplate Safety Plate Glass is available on all models at small extra cost. All enclosed models wired for Philco-Transitone radio without extra cost.

See Plymouth at the Automobile Show this week, or at Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge dealers' showrooms.

TRACT ON SKINKER TO BE OFFERED TO HIGHEST BIDDER

Frontage of 330 Feet Opposite Forest Park Advertised to Satisfy $88,000 Deed of Trust.

FRANKLIN-AMERICAN CORNER ON MARKET

Seven-Story Structure With Former Bank Quarters Put on Sale for Liquidation Company.

By Berry Moore.

Speculative interest is growing in the vacant tract on the west side of Skinker boulevard, extending from Rosebury drive to Northwood avenue in De Mun Park, now advertised under foreclosure provisions of a first deed of trust of $88,000, plus accrued interest, etc., held by interests represented by Harry Koplar, owner of motion picture theater and building interests.

The title to the tract, covering the entire Skinker boulevard frontage of this block, was vested in Nathan Frank, attorney, at the time of his death. He had acquired it under a second deed of trust subject to the first deed of trust. The Better Built Home & Mortgage Co. was the original owner of the tract.

As advertised in the Daily Record, the property will be sold to the highest bidder on Tuesday, Feb. 16, on the floor of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange in the Wainwright Building at Seventh and Chestnut streets, in pursuance of the conditions in the first deed of trust in which Thomas F. Stephens is trustee. Both the principal and interest notes are in default.

Figured in Plans Before Crash.

The tract has a frontage of 330 feet on Skinker, with a depth on both Rosebury and Northwood, of 200 feet. Facing Forest Park, it forms one of the most eligible sites in the city for apartment building projects on a pretentious scale. Just before the 1929 crash, this tract figured in plans for twin apartments, 20 stories in height, one for the Northwood and the other for the Rosebury corner.

A 16-story apartment building known as 625 Skinker, one of the newest of its type in the city, stands at the northwest corner of Northwood and the Versailles, a 10-story apartment structure, is on the southwest corner of Rosebury and Skinker. The Wiltshire, an eight-story structure, occupies the northwest corner of Skinker boulevard and Southwood. The southwest corner of Skinker and Southwood avenue is the only other remaining vacant site in DeMun Park opposite Forest Park, available for apartments, under the building restrictions of this addition.

The Better Built Home & Mortgage Co. laid out the DeMun Park subdivision, which extends from Skinker boulevard on the east to De Mun avenue on the west, embracing Southwood, Rosebury and Northwood.

Bank Corner for Sale.

Attention is also focused on the building formerly occupied by the Franklin-American Trust Co. at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, which has been placed on sale through the real estate department of the First National Co. for the liquidation company of the Franklin-American Trust Co., which was taken over by the First National Bank.

The building is of seven stories and basement, constructed of brick, skeleton steel and concrete, rendering it absolutely fireproof. The first floor and basement formed the quarters of the Franklin-American Trust Co., which was taken over by First National Bank.

The first floor is equipped with offices and banking cages. It has marble floors and paneled ceiling. The basement has a large safe deposit department, consisting of two vaults with individual private booths, and adjoining committee rooms. The interior of the committee rooms, finished in brick, is reached from the first floor by marble staircase and electric elevator.

The second floor, formerly occupied by an investment and banking corporation, is equipped with four cages, and the lobby floor is finished in brick and white synthetic marble. The entire third floor is occupied by Maschmeyer-Richardson Silver Co. The New York Life Insurance Co. has the entire sixth floor. The fourth, fifth and seventh floors are given over entirely to office space under leases to various tenants. William-McRee & Co., investment bankers, have large quarters on the fifth floor.

Facilities of Structure.

Two high-speed Otis passenger and one electric freight elevator serve the building. Heat is obtained from the Union Electric Light and Power Co. Elevator machinery and water supply tanks are installed in a penthouse above the roof of the building. General

Facilities of Structure.

Two high-speed Otis passenger and one electric freight elevator serve the building. Heat is obtained from the Union Electric Light and Power Co. Elevator machinery and water supply tanks are installed in a penthouse above the roof of the building. General lighting and equipment, hot-water apparatus, steam control of heating system and ventilating plant are in the basement, as is a large air-duct system which ventilates the banking quarters.

The property has a frontage of 127 feet 9 inches on Locust and 91 feet on Seventh. The offering includes the fee to the site, which was purchased by the Franklin-American Trust Co. several years ago from the Henry Shaw estate. The transaction was not reported.

The building was erected by the old Mercantile Club, with the site taken under a 99-year lease from the Shaw estate, at a relatively low rental contrasted with ground rentals now prevailing in this center. The building was refinanced in 1924 with a loan of $900,000 at 5½ per cent. The unpaid balance amounts of $840,000.

There is much speculation as to the valuation likely to be established in the sale of this property. The building stands at one of the most important intersections in the downtown district. It is directly opposite the Famous-Barr block. The Ambassador Theater occupies the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets.

Received Handsome Profit.

The First National Bank formerly owned the site of the Ambassador Theater Building, embracing a quarter of a block, which it had acquired with plans for a lofty bank and office structure, but which it resold to the Ambassador Theater Co. when a handsome profit was offered.

The first floor and basement of the former Franklin-American Building forms attractive quarters for either a large store or a banking establishment. With alterations the main floor could be made available in connection with the upper floors.

CAPITAL FOR REAL ESTATE SOUGHT IN 70 PCT. OF CITIES

Survey by National Association Shows "Doubling Up" Counterbalances Cessation of Construction.

Effect of present money conditions in hampering real estate transfers or other transactions involving any new financing is reflected in the eighteenth semiannual survey of the real estate market made public by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The findings are based on confidential reports made by member real estate boards in 318 principal cities.

In measuring the present supply of residential space the survey shows that "doubling" of two or more families in units intended for a single family is practically counterbalancing the effect of the present practical cessation of residential construction. It is thus masking what under other conditions would in many cities be an undersupply of desirable single-family dwellings. With this counterbalance, 84 per cent of the cities report the supply normal or short, 71 per cent showing an equilibrium of supply and demand, 13 per cent an actual present shortage, and 16 per cent an oversupply.

In every one of the nine geographical sections of the United States the money supply for real estate mortgage loans is insufficient for the demand, the survey shows. In 70 per cent of the cities loans are seeking capital, in 22 per cent there is a balanced situation as between supply and demand, and in only 8 per cent of the cities is there a condition where capital is seeking investment.

The East North Central and West South Central sections show greatest prevalence of loans seeking capital. Most pronounced shortage of mortgage money is shown in cities under 200,000 population. Of the smaller cities only 2 per cent show capital seeking loans. But in cities of the largest population group 60 per cent report loans seeking capital and only 20 per cent have capital seeking outlet.

Interest Rates Surveyed.

Interest rates are rising in 21 per cent of the cities reporting, steady in 75 per cent, falling in only 4 per cent of the cities.

Financing costs as well as money supply show a decided change from conditions of six months ago, when only 53 per cent of the cities reported a dearth of mortgage funds. In the survey of a year ago 40 per cent of the cities stated loans were seeking capital.

Practical effect of general loan stringency on real estate movement is indicated in comments of the reporting real estate boards:

"Banks not making loans. Local building and loan associations in good shape but loaning only on new building. Makes it hard to transfer real estate where financing is involved, which is nearly always." "Loaning agencies will loan only when a house is completed and sold." "No sales can be made where it is necessary to secure any

THIRD WEEK OF DISPLAY OF MODEL SOUTHWEST HOME

The model home, constructed by the Stealey Manufacturing Co., 6515 Page avenue, in the style of the Early American New England Colonial style, begins its third weed of display at 5351 Mardel avenue today. On the opening day two weeks ago, a record number visited and inspected the premises. Every day since then there has been a steady flow of visitors which has, in the aggregate, about doubled the number of the opening day.

This house is very different from what the public has seen in small homes. It was expected that many people would not be prepared for a departure from the "four walls and a roof" type of building in the lower price range.

The home is erected in Northampton Park, a development of David P. Leahy and Stedelin Bros., three blocks west of Kingshighway, two blocks north of Chippewa boulevard.

BUILDERS REPORT 10 SALES OF HOMES SINCE JAN. 1

The N. J. Smith Construction Co. reports 10 sales since Jan. 1 and contends there is an existing market for homes in moderate price range. An attractive, well-built five-room bungalow is offered for less than $5000.

Smith, taking advantage of low costs in building, has given the purchaser the benefits derived therefrom and expects to continue with this policy. A new development will be announced shortly.

$200,000 LOANED ON APARTMENT BUILDING

Love & Co. Makes Deal at 5 1-2 Pct. on Structure Appraised at $400,000.

Love & Co. has announced it has made a loan for $200,000 for 10 years at 5½ per cent on the nine-story fireproof Maryland-Manor apartment building at the northwest corner of Taylor and Maryland avenues. The transaction was made in connection with the Laclede Bond and Mortgage Co.

The building consists of 64 apartments, two stores and built-in garage.

The appraised value is $480,000, as reported by Love & Co., the comparatively low rate being made in consideration of the large margin of security. The loan is the largest so far made this year on buildings in the apartment house category.

HOUSE BUILDING COST DECLINES 25 PER CENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—It costs about 25 per cent less to build an average house today than it did two and a half years ago. L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, made this estimate, based on extensive study of prices of land, labor and materials.

This week the Building Trades Employers' Association, whose members employ 115,000 workers in New York and Long Island, adopted a wage scale carrying reductions of 25 to 30 per cent for workers. The lower wages will be effective when present contracts with organized labor expire on April 30.

Chief effects of this cut and similar ones elsewhere, Schnitman explained, will be in the metropolitan building field, especially in unionized cities. Wages actually being paid in the building of small or medium-sized houses now are very largely below union scales, he said, and labor is plentiful.

In building materials, lumber has taken probably the longest price tumble, while brick has not fallen so far. Countless varying factors had to be considered in arriving at the rough estimate of a 25 per cent cost reduction, the statistician pointed out. For instance, an importation of brick from Europe here about 18 months ago, at prices as low as $7.50 and $9 a thousand, had an immediate effect on the local market where they were being sold for as much as $18 to $22.

"The quoted price here now is about $14.50," he said, "but that doesn't mean it is always paid. Prices these days are fixed pretty largely on the basis of what the seller can get."

Edward A. MacDougall, builder in Queensborough and chairman of the newly-appointed Housing Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, sees two stumbling blocks to be removed before proper impetus can be given the construction industry.

One is the question of real estate taxes, disproportionately high, economists say, and formidable for the potential house owner to contemplate.

Legislatures of 16 states already are struggling with the problem. Those who favor lowering real estate taxes are handicapped by State deficits, which call for increased tax burdens in general, but even the consideration of tax revision plans is evidence of favorable sentiment, the builders believe.

MacDougall sees the financing question as the other stumbling block. His suggested remedy is the long-term mortgage, "for at least 15 years, with reasonable amortization payments after the first five years."

CAPITAL FOR REAL ESTATE SOUGHT IN 70 PCT. OF THE CITIES

loan from the banks. This has completely tied up the real estate market." "There is a statistical shortage of 5000 single family homes in this community and an actual market supply that is daily growing more inadequate. Builders and architects have several million dollars worth of projects awaiting financing." "Capital is extremely timid on account of the unemployment situation and fear. There are very few loans being made, and it would appear that the lenders of money are waiting to see what effect the new fund proposed by President Hoover will have in stabilizing values." "No mortgage money here. Outside money needed. Ample security is offered." "There is difficulty in refinancing homes in old districts." "Practically no mortgage money available except special funds at very high rates."

Views in Other Cities.

On the other hand other cities say:

"Banks and building associations are putting the best foot forward, and confidence is being renewed." "The life insurance companies doing business here have raised their requirements, making it difficult to handle refinancing, but there is some private money available." "A dividend of 20 per cent by a bank closed a year ago released $400,000, which had a good effect." "Most mortgagees are refunding old loans for customers who are meeting interest payments." "Shortage of money for conservative first mortgages. Trust some relief from Mr. Hoover's new plan." "Tax relief and a good supply of capital for loans at a reasonable rate would induce considerable building in this section."

Many real estate boards report a general feeling, quite apart from statistical proof, that a turn to a better situation is under way.

Selling prices reflect general business abnormality, and are lower than they were a year ago in 85 per cent of the cities reporting. While 31 per cent of the cities report market activity approximately the same as a year ago, 57 per cent report a less active market and 12 per cent a more active situation.

In recording the nationwide downward movement in rents which has accompanied general cost reductions some reporting cities indicate that the bottom seems to have been reached. Apartment rents, however, are the only group showing any indication toward rising rates. Business property rents show the most pronounced effect of present uncertainties. Office building space is indicated as being in a somewhat more stabilized condition both in regard to rent levels and occupancy than is apartment space. Both show greater present stabilization than does business space.

Central business districts are more generally stable than are outlying subcenters in regard to rents for business space, and to an even greater degree in regard to office rents. The larger cities as a group show this differentiation most strongly.

Cities under 500,000 population show a much larger degree of stabilization in the matter of rents for structures of every type than do cities above this population line.

Contraction of general business activity is reflected in the fact that despite the practical cessation of building during the last year 63 per cent of the cities state that they have a normal supply of business property, 36 per cent of them that they have an oversupply. In apartment structures 64 per cent report a normal supply, 23 per cent an oversupply and 13 per cent an actual shortage. In regard to the present need of residential construction the cities comment as follows:

"Many residential units are now housing two or more families who, when times get better, will unquestionably need accommodations of their own." "Families, running into the thousands, have doubled up. Under normal conditions we could just about supply the demand." "In this area we would undoubtedly have no vacant home units if it were not necessary for families to double up due to reduced income." "If our steel plants should begin operations at a normal or near normal stage there probably would be a shortage of single family homes here."

A count by the Kansas City Postoffice through its carriers, made as of Jan. 1 of the present year, found in that city 5059 such excess families. It discovered that of all occupied single family homes in the city, 6.2 per cent are now housing one or more excess families. If all these were to move at the same time into individual quarters the percentage of vacancy would be decidedly below normal.

DERISIVE SERENADES FOR U. S. WITNESSES

Metropolis Residents Celebrate Acquittal of Sheriff and Aid With Parade.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

METROPOLIS, Ill., Feb. 6.—Residents of Metropolis who sided with Sheriff George Krueger of Massac County, Fred Reisinger, his chief deputy, and 14 other defendants tried in the Federal Court at East St. Louis on the charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, celebrated the acquittal of Krueger and Reisinger and 12 of the other defendants with a demonstration last night that lasted four hours and included derisive serenades in front of the homes of Government witnesses.

The demonstrators, parading through the principal streets in about 65 automobiles, headed by a band on a truck, were led by Mayor W. H. Carr, Chief of Police Lloyd Rice, State Highway Patrolman Bass and Deputy United States Marshal Leitsch. Chief Rice said he organized the parade. Krueger and Reisinger did not accompany the celebrants and Reisinger expressed disapproval of the serenading of Government witnesses.

The paraders visited the homes of the Rev. H. Etter, Baptist minister; Constable Ivy Covington, W. P. Baynes and Ben Littlemeyer, Government witnesses, in front of which the band played and the crowd sang "How Dry I Am."

Later the paraders went to Joppa and serenaded Chris Walbright, a druggist, who had assisted in the prosecution.

PLANS for broadcasting from Shanghai have been delayed because of lack of transmitting facilities. XGL, the only transmitter at Shanghai available, is designed to use 20,000 to 40 000 watts power, but was built for code broadcasting only on 37.6 meters. Engineers, are confident that equipment for broadcasting voices can easily be installed. This equipment is available in China, but the rush of business and news messages from Shanghai is an obstacle.

As a result of lottery broadcasts, U. S. Postal Department fraud orders have been issued against XED, Reynosa, Mexico, and CMK, Havana, Cuba. Postal authorities refuse to deliver mail addressed to those conducting the lotteries, Martin Codel reports.

Little is known about the Mexican station, which is licensed to one Hernandez, a Mexican citizen. But it is suspected that it is backed by American capital. Its obvious purpose is to reach the American audience in the Southwestern States.

In the case of the Cuban lottery, the postal fraud citation is against the "International Broadcasting Co." which is supposed to be the name of the party or parties purchasing time over the Havana station for the lottery broadcasts.

The lottery incidents are awakening a new interest in the growing use of radio stations in Mexico and Cuba to circumvent the United States radio law. American capital is known to be backing certain stations and building new ones, or planning to build them, with the obvious intent of reaching the American ear and promoting the sale of commodities or services otherwise barred in this country.

As a tribute to George Washington on his birthday, musicians representing five European countries will play music of those lands in an afternoon program on Feb. 22. The artists to participate were born and educated overseas, in Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland. The program is to be carried by the WEAF chain, originating in the New York studios. A short wave rebroadcast is planned.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the WEAF chain will carry a program celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Jacksonville, Fla. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan and Congresswoman from Florida, will be one of the speakers.

A NEW four-manual organ that is being installed in the KMOX studios in the Mart Building is said to be the largest in any broadcasting station in the world. It is of the concert type with diapson and reed choral, full complement of strings and wood wind instruments, solo stops such as French horn, orchestral oboe, tuba mirabilis and solo violin for concert ensemble effects. The organ will have a large section of pedal pipes 16 feet and more long, as tests have shown that the deepest organ tones can be broadcast from the new KMOX amplifiers. This is the third organ of successively larger size installed for KMOX.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, will speak on "The Navy" in the first of a series of weekly broadcasts over the WJZ chain, at 1 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. The National Security League is the sponsor.

Starting Feb. 16 a series of "Stories of the Living Great" will be broadcast over the CBS chain, with Ida Bailey Allen in charge of the programs.

In an effort to avoid objectionable commercial announcements, introductions in the Raising Junior series on the WJZ network are being dramatized.

When the NBC Artists' Service concerts change on Wednesday to the 9:30 p. m. period on the WEAF chain, Countess Olga Albani will be the soloist. Cesare Sodero's orchestra will support her. Nellie Revell will not continue as mistress of ceremonies as she will be on another program.

Harry Sosnik, pianist-composer, will lead an orchestra in a new "Parade" program at 7 o'clock Sunday nights, starting Feb. 14. A quartet specializing in rapid changes from vocal to instrumental harmony also will be featured.

Richardson Wright, editor of a magazine devoted to home and gardening interests, will talk about gardens at 4 o'clock Wednesdays, starting this week. The broadcasts are scheduled for the WEAF chain.

New Bosch Receivers Shown at Dealer Meeting.

A Bosch automobile receiver with 20 major developments and a wholly new line of six, seven, eight and 10 tube receivers, were displayed Tuesday at a meeting of dealers at the headquarters of James C. Gordon, Inc.

The Bosch auto set has automatic volume control, full dynamic speaker, steering post control and the new "magmotor," a device which makes use of B batteries on all cars having adequate generator and battery reserve to furnish the slight additional current required to drive the magmotor. The set also operates with standard B batteries.

The Bosch personal set, which occupies a very small space, is now a six-tube superheterodyne, powerful and very selective and of unusually good tone. It weighs only 21 pounds.

There are six-tube Bosch superheterodynes in full-sized cabinet models with improved speakers.

The seven-tube receivers also come in lowboy cabinets, and have automatic volume control and pentode output tubes.

The eight-tube and 10-tube Bosch sets have duo diode detection, automatic volume control, full dynamic speakers, tone control, pentode output tubes and richly designed cabinets. The duo diode detector is designed for better tone quality than can be obtained from a power detector, and also is virtually impossible to overload.

Executives of the United American Bosch Corporation of Springfield, Mass., who attended the meeting, included L. H. Mingins, assistant general sales manager for radio; Roy H. Butts, district manager for radio, and Edward A. Lynch, district manager for the automotive division.

SALESMEN WANTED

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WILL BE PAID IN 1932 TO ELECTROLUX MEN WHO QUALIFY TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY. A FEW ADDITIONAL POSITIONS ARE OPEN IN OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH OFFICE.

Additional permanent positions paying qualified men $4,000.00 to $10,000.00 and up per year regularly, are available with Electrolux, Inc., due to the amazing saleability of our product.

So real and natural is this saleability, that W. H. Gibbons, who just started in our St. Louis office, showed this product four times and made more than $20.00. A. T. Hill, a former real estate operator showed it 16 times and made $185.00 for the week. C. R. Davis, a former bookkeeper, made twelve showings and earned $90.00 for the week and over $300.00 for the month. Miller, who joined our organization on January 2d, earned over $175.00 his first month, while Harry Hieken, also of our St. Louis Branch, made 17 showings and earned more than $160.00 for the week; during January and December, he made well over $1200.00. These cite but a few.

Today a man must have something of tremendous value to sell—and for such men there is tremendous uncontested opportunity. Just ordinary products and ordinary work do not make money today. Sales success requires a product that meets an urgent need and a man who appreciates the power of PROOF. This combination made January another record sales month for us. 1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year.

The men who make $5,000.00, $7,500.00, $10,000.00 and $12,000.00 regularly in our company learned how to do the necessary things for success in our business. They acquired sufficient self-management and self-assurance to face and master the obstacles and difficulties that must perforce be met by enterprising business men in taking advantage of any substantial opportunity.

All of them did not make one hundred dollars per week the first month, although some made more than that. Some had to get along on $125.00 to $200.00 a month while learning and adapting themselves to the work. This work is not something for nothing, but something real for the man who can learn and has the self-control to consistently and courageously go ahead and do things—things which in and of themselves are simple and easy to do, but which must be pursued and performed with purpose, determination and self-confidence.

If you can learn from men who prove it with pay checks, and will put effort and character into your work, come in for a personal interview with an executive of this company, Monday morning, 9 to 12. Also 1 to 4.

TENNIS HEADS POINT FOR DAVIS CUP, WILL PASS UP WIMBLEDON

By Davison Obear.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 6.—Prospects for the United States winning back the Davis cup, international tennis prize, donated by Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, in 1932, were made brighter by the action of the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association here today.

The recommendations of the Davic Cup Committee to change the travel arrangements for the team met with unanimous approval.

According to the program outlined, the United States team, if successful in winning the American zone finals, will reach France the first week in July and start practice immediately on hard courts instead of going through the strain of two weeks' play on grass courts in the British championship at Wimbledon as heretofore. The players will have from 10 days to two weeks to prepare for the European zone finals, the winner of which will oppose France in the challenge later in July.

Will Send Four Players.

The National Executive Committee authorized the Davis Cup Committee to send a team of four players and a captain to France. As in the past, Davis Cup selection committee will probably name a squad of eight to 12 players for practice sessions in April or May and from this squad pick enough players to form a team to compete in the North American zone matches, which will start about May 15.

With the possible exception of Australia, the United States team should have no difficulty in winning the American zone matches. In the first match United States meets Canada, while Australia opposes Cuba. Mexico meets the winner of the United States-Canada match and the ultimate winner opposes the victor in the Australia vs. Cuba match.

South America may send a team to this country to oppose the North American zone winner. While the Australian players have not been announced it appears quite likely that the Anzacs will fight it out with the United States in the North American zone finals.

VINES NO. 1 IN NATIONAL RANKING

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—Tennis rankings as chosen by the Selection Committee were confirmed today at the annual convention of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, after representatives of the Eastern Association had been defeated in their attempt to have Frank Shields placed below John Van Ryn and John Doeg.

The action permanently ranked the first 10 players in this order:

Ellsworth Vines, George Lott, Frank Shields, John Van Ryn, John Doeg, Clifford Sutter, Sidney Wood.

That Dempsey Comeback.

WHAT one great fighter thinks of another is always interesting. An example is found in a recent statement by Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express," a popular fighting man if ever there was one, to the effect that Jack Dempsey is fit and ready to come back against the modern crop of heavyweights, with two exceptions.

DEMPSEY.

"There are only two men against whom I would not like to see Dempsey matched — Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling." Petrolle recently said, while advancing the view that Dempsey had returned sufficiently to beat all others.

That view has weight, because Dempsey is Petrolle's idol and also because Billy's rough-and-ready style of milling is something after Dempsey's own idea of what a ring battle should be like.

According to history, any tough, experienced and fairly young fighter ought to beat Dempsey. At his age and following his long absence from the ring, Jack's reactions are bound to be slow. Sharkey all but had Dempsey out in their first meeting nearly six

Dempsey's 'Comeback' Still in the Buildup, He Tells Post-Dispatch

By W. J. McGoogan.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Jack Dempsey, neat as usual in his street clothes and apparently in fine physical condition, arrived here today to carry on his effort to regain the world's heavyweight boxing title, which he lost to Gene Tunney several years ago.

For the present Jack is devoting himself to meeting the better class of heavyweights, the second step in his journey on the comeback trail, which is expected to tell him in a few more months whether he has any real hope of going into a battle for the title.

Dempsey's manager, Leonard Sacks, has repeatedly stated that Dempsey would box for the championship and possibly would fight one other bout of major importance this year, but Dempsey is not so sure about that. He refuses to state definitely that he will do so.

"It is foolish for me to say that I will or I will not make a title fight this year," said Dempsey as he waited around the offices of the Illinois Athletic Commission for the hearing into the charges of the Mississippi Commission to begin.

"If I can get over King Levinsky and some of the other good boys, then I will know that I have a chance to regain my top form, but I may be knocked out any time, which would, of course, destroy any hope I might have of regaining the championship.

"I have suffered quite a few misfortunes since I resumed boxing. First, I hurt an ankle, then my eyes were cut in the bout with Angus Snyder, and later I suffered an attack of intestinal influenza which pulled down my general health a little.

"Timing Not Always Good."

"But in training recently, which has included road work, punching the bag and other work, I have felt good. My legs seem to be all right and my heart action apparently is perfect. I am just about the same, otherwise, as formerly. I weigh about 192 pounds now.

"There is this big difference, however—my timing and co-ordination are not good. Sometimes I'm all right and then again I'm pretty bad. And every time I go into the ring I'm expected to knock out my opponent in two or four rounds.

"When I don't do so, everybody throws up their hands and says 'He's through.' But I have met some fair fighters recently and knocked them out. Not that they were stars but they had never been counted out before. On those occasions I felt the old power in my arms and the old thrill when I saw my mark and hit it. Again I have seen an opening, but my muscles haven't responded quickly enough to take advantage of it.

"Now I am going into a more serious class of boxing. The weight of the gloves is to be reduced and while I feel that I will come through all right, you never can tell and the only fair thing, it seems to me, is to wait awhile and then make a decision as to bouts with top-notchers, including of course, Max Schmeling."

Faces Strenuous Schedule.

Right now Dempsey is facing a pretty strenuous schedule. He is to box Buck Everett and Jack Roper two rounds each at Milwaukee Monday night. Then he jumps to Cleveland for a bout with K. O. Christner on Feb. 11, thence to Flint, Mich., for an appearance against two opponents, who have not been named, and then comes an important test on Feb. 18 against King Levinsky at Chicago.

There is plenty of heat about that scrap, and Sacks is showing some concern over its possible outcome.

St. Louis fans who remember the Kingfish from his one appearance in St. Louis about two years ago when he lost in 10 rounds to Al Stillman and was on the floor for a nine count from one of Stillman's punches, find it hard to conceive of the Kingfish as a top-notcher. But his recent victory over Tommy Loughran has brought him the respect of the boxing trade.

Dempsey regards Levinsky as a tough egg and a man with a punch, so perhaps the fans who are expected to jam the Stadium, until they are hanging on the paint, will see something.

The St. Louis Appearance.

As to Jack's appearance in St. Louis, Sacks expects to make that about March 31 and while no opponent has been selected so far as he knows, he is only hoping that it will be somebody who will make a good showing against Dempsey. In this regard he thinks John Schwake is worthy of consideration.

Funny thing how they regard our John in Chicago. Those closely connected with the fight game

SPURT BY SHEA GIVES BILLIKENS VICTORY, 37-28

By James M. Gould.

St. Louis University ran against a basketball tartar in the Illinois College team last night and only a last-minute burst of speed featured by some wonderful work by Jim Shea, enabled the Billikens to earn a 37-28 victory over the boys from Jacksonville, Ill.

Illinois led by a point, 17 to 16, at the end of the half and after St. Louis had spurted ahead soon after the second period started, again assumed a lead which, however, never was more than two points. St. Louis tied it at 21-all, jumped ahead and the score then was tied at 25 points each. A free throw put Illinois one point to the good but Shea commenced his fine work at this point and with a free throw and two field goals put the Billikens in front and they never again were headed.

Shea was the big point-getter of the evening, his seven field goals

Where Sharkey Failed.

HOWEVER, few would be willing to wager that Mickey Walker could stand 10 rounds before Dempsey and almost anybody will bet you today that Jack would flatten Primo Carnera. Still, Sharkey could not stop either one.

On his record we expect to see the myth of Jack Sharkey exploded next June when he faces Schmeling. What Dempsey would be able to do against Max is something else. For whereas Sharkey can stop only weaklings, Max is a much harder puncher.

Sharkey could not stop Dempsey, although he hit him with everything he had. Dempsey probably could not stand the same punishment at Schmeling's hands.

However, a Dempsey comeback is still in the laps of the gods. Friends of the old mauler hope he doesn't attempt to beat anything faster than Carnera.

LAYTON DEFEATS KIECKHEFER IN 3-CUSHION TITLE TOURNEY MATCH

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., closed his schedule in the world three cushion billiards championship tournament tonight by defeating Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, 50 to 38 in 49 innings. The defeat left Kieckhefer tied for first place with Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia.

In an afternoon match Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago defeated Reiselt, 50 to 38 in 49 innings.

Layton finished in a tie for fourth place with Frank Scoville, Buffalo, N. Y., and Gus Copulos of Eugene, Ore., with six victories and five defeats, and a playoff for the position will be necessary.

Kieckhefer and Reiselt, each with seven victories and three defeats, will fight it out for the title Monday night.

RE-RUNNING OF TRIALS AT LAKE PLACID BRINGS SAME QUALIFIERS

By the Associated Press.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The master minds of the 1932 winter Olympics breathed deep sighs of relief tonight, for the preliminaries of the 10,000-meter speed skating championship, with international complications, ended today after being raced once, the results canceled, and then raced again.

And, like the second game of a double-header that ends like the first in a scoreless tie, 18 distance blademen of Norway, Sweden, Finland, Canada and the United States had nothing to show for an extra 6.2 miles of strenuous skating, except enough material for another flock of arguments, charges and counter charges and bitterness.

Exactly the same eight men—Irving Jaffee, new 5000-meter Olympic champion; Valentine Bialis, Edwin Wedge and Eddie Schroeder, all of the United States teams; Alex Hurd and Frank Stack of Canada and the Norwegians—Bernt Evensen and Ivar Ballangrud—qualified today for the final of the last men's speed skating championship. And exactly the same contenders who could not make the grade yesterday, among them the champions of Finland and Sweden, once more fell by the wayside.

Same Trial, Same Qualifiers.

Alex Hurd, Canadian champion, who has been skating in sensational fashion, came back in the first heat to whip the field again, with Ballangrud second, Bialis third and Wedge fourth. All that proved was that second, third and fourth places in a heat could be shuffled around a bit in two days of racing, for Bialis took second yesterday, Wedge third and Ballangrud fourth.

Those who trailed before trailed again, but more so this time. Neither Michael Staksrud of Norway nor Ossie Blomquist of Finland, champion of Europe at 10,000 meters, could get within striking distance of the leading four in the final dash through the stretch.

Second Heat the Same.

Again in the second heat it seemed as if there were only four men racing—the four who landed on top to provide the second half of the qualifiers for the final now scheduled for Monday.

This time Irving Jaffee flashed down in front, with Stack second, Evensen third and Ed Schroeder fourth. Yesterday they split it up a bit differently, Schroeder, a Chicago boy, winning the heat, with Stack second, Jaffee third and Evensen fourth.

Furthermore, the first time they did it the times were much faster, although one of the chief reasons for the Scandinavian protests and the resulting disqualifications of Hurd, Wedge and Stack that were canceled later and the races ordered run over, was that the Americans, by their jockeying and refusal to set a pace, had treated the Scandinavians unfairly. It seems that the Norsemen, when they set out to race 10,000 meters, get someone to stand by with a clock

Flyers, With Three New Players in Lineup, Meet Chicago Shamrocks Today

If the St. Louis Flyers are strictly a "home ice hockey team" they won't have to worry for a few days as their next three contests will be played at the Arena, starting with a game with the Chicago Shamrocks at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The other contests of the week will be against the Chicago team Tuesday and the Kansas City Pla-Mors Wednesday.

Thus far the Flyers have engaged in 11 struggles at The Arena and they never have suffered a defeat there. The worst they have had to take as their portion of the at-home competition has been a tie, two of the 11 contests having ended with the score deadlocked.

On the other hand, Dick Carroll's men have been trounced a eleven times when fighting on the ice of the enemy, and have chalked up only five victories on the road. They have managed to gain two ties in the enemy's country.

As a result of the defeat at the hands of the Shamrocks at Chicago Friday night, the Flyers and the Shamrocks are tied for second place, each with 28 points, four points behind the leading Kansas City six.

The Flyers returned to St. Louis with three new players, Eddie Bouchard, Ralph Rennie and Billy De Pauf, who made their debut in Flyer uniforms in the game at Chicago. The two puck chasers were signed to St. Louis contracts after the Buffalo Majors crashed against the financial wall.

Of more importance was the fact that the Flyers still had the services of Burr Williams. For a time it seemed that he might be lost as a result of a threatened National League raid, but when it developed that Burr had been signed to a new contract the covetous Chicago Blackhawks decided not to have any further negotiations with the player.

"Shrimp" McPherson and Red Jackson suffered minor injuries in Chicago, but both expect to play this afternoon.

Tony Christello has looked good in goal on occasions, but the club needs Rheaume in the net, and he hopes to get back in the game this week.

MISSOURI BEATS OKLAHOMA, LEADS BIG SIX RACE

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 6.—The Missouri U. Tigers beat Oklahoma U. in a closely contested basketball game here tonight, 27 to 20, and took undisputed possession of first place in the Big Six conference race.

The victory was earned without the legal "super-stall" with which Missouri defeated the champion Kansas Jayhawkers here last Saturday night.

The Sooners fell before a late Tiger rally after Harold Lecone, center, and Percy Main, sophomore guard, retired from their ranks because of excessive fouling.

Johnny Cooper, Tiger sophomore forward, was the leading scorer with nine points, just three more than Andy Beck, Oklahoma forward.

First Playground Soccer Title Test Won by Columbus

Columbus Playground defeated Sherman Playground, 2 goals to 0, yesterday afternoon at Murphy Playground in the first of a three-game series for the Municipal Playground soccer championship.

Todd, inside right, and Genaro, outside right, scored the goals, both being registered in the first half.

These are the same teams that played a total of 11 games last season in deciding the title, with Sherman finally winning. After dividing the first two games, the teams played eight tie games.

The second game of the current title series will be played next Saturday afternoon, also at Murphy Playground.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 6. Wales defeated Scotland, 6 points to 0, today in an international rugby match here.

VENZKE IS CLOCKED IN 4:11 1-5 ON INDOOR TRACK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Gene Venzke, a 23-year-old Swedish-American youth who has just decided to go back and finish high school at Pottstown, Pa., startled the athletic world tonight by wiping out the classic indoor mile records of Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray.

Venzke ran the distance in 4 minutes, 11 1-5 seconds in the Wanamaker mile, feature of the twenty-fifth Millrose A. A., carnival at the Madison Square Garden, before a cheering capacity crowd of 13,000 spectators.

It was the fastest mile ever run in America, the speediest ever registered anywhere outside of Europe and the third fastest of all time, indoors or out. It surpassed the former world indoor record of 4:12, set in 1925 by Nurmi and equalled the same season by Ray.

Only Two Faster Miles Ran.

The only two faster miles ever run have been recorded on outdoor tracks. Uaavo Nurmi's official record is 4:10 2-5, but this was lowered to 4:09 1-5 by Jules Ladoumegue of France last summer.

Venzke went out to lower the record and ran the greatest race of his career with an ease and brilliance equal to anything the great Nurmi ever exhibited in the country. He led four notable rivals throughout the 11-lap journey around the New Garden track, beat the redoubtable Leo Lermond of the New York A. C. by a good ten yards in a smashing finish and left the three-time winner of the event, Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., far in the rear. Frank Crowley of Manhattan was third, Conger fourth and Orval Martin of the Los Angeles A. C., last.

Four Watches Agree on Time.

Four of the five watches caught Venzke in 4:11 1-5. The fifth clocked him in 4:11. To make it all the more impressive, the youngster raced on a track that was found to measure slightly over the required distance. Actually he covered a foot and a half more than the mile before hitting the tape.

His fractional times, by quarters, were 59 4-5 seconds, 2:03 1-5, 3:09 2-5, 4:11 1-5.

Venzke, little known until a year ago, when he won an indoor race in 4:14 3-5, has come along like a house afire. He has beautiful action, is a superb judge of pace and posseses remarkable endurance. He was born in Leaf Valley, Minn., of sturdy Scandinavian stock. Recently he decided to go back to high school at Pottstown, Pa., to prepare for college.

Toppino Equals Wold Record.

His performance overshadowed other features of the season's most exciting track and field program, including a sweeping triumph in the sprints by Emmett Toppino, chunky star of Loyola University, New Orleans. Toppino, after equalling the world indoor record of 6.2 seconds in the 60-yard preliminary, romped off with the final at 50 yards in 5.5 seconds, beating Al Kelly of Georgetown, Eastern intercollegiate champion, and Ira Singer of the Millrose A. A., National Indoor A. A. U., titleholder.

The meet was brought to a brilliant climex when George Spitz, young New York University high jumper, broke his own world indoor record with a leap of 6 feet, 7⅝ inches. He set the previous mark of 6 feet 7 inches, in last year's Millrose meet.

Alex Wilson, slim Canadian star wearing the colors of Notre Dame, captured the classic Millrose 600-yard invitation race for the second straight year in a five-man race in which the Hungarian champion, Laszlo Barsi, was a bad last.

Wilson was clocked in the good time of 1:12 3-5, nearly a full second faster than his winning time last winter.

Wilson Captures Wanamaker Cup.

Wilson's second straight victory gave him outright possession of the Millrose 600 trophy, donated by John Wanamaker Jr.

Mary Carew of the Medford (Mass.) Girls' Club captured the girls' international 50-yard sprint, beating Mary Ladewig of the Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia, by inches in the final heat in 6.2 seconds. The Canadian entries failed to place.

Monty Wells of the Boston A. A., ex-Dartmouth ace, sprang something of an upset by beating the two crack mid-Western hurdlers, James Hatfield of the Illinois A. C. and Jack Keller of Ohio State, in the final of the 50-yard high hurdles. Wells hit the tape a foot in front of Hatfield in 6.5 seconds, with Keller a yard behind.

Princeton scored a last-lap victory over Ohio State in a one-mile relay race, in which Columbia was third and last.

MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS SCHEDULE 303 SPRING EXHIBITIONS

CHICAGO CUBS FIRST TO DEPART FOR CAMP; WHITE SOX, DODGERS AND PIRATES HAVE NEW PILOTS

By Herman Wecke.

Within the next three weeks, a majority of the major league clubs will be in the spring training camps. Several of the teams, those which go to California, will start for camp the middle of February. The Cardinals get down to work at Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 22, while the Browns will be one of the last teams to get down to work. Bill Killefer's battery men will not report at West Palm Beach, Fla., until March 1.

Eight of the teams will get into condition for the 1932 pennant campaigns in Florida, while California this season will have four teams, the Giants being the latest to invade the West Coast. Texas, which formerly was the training grounds for a majority of the clubs this season has only one — the White Sox. Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana each have one major league team training in the State.

Many Exhibitions.

The 16 teams will be busy indeed in exhibition games, following of the first games on March 5, when the world champion Cardinals play the Athletics and the Indians oppose New Orleans.

All told a total of 303 exhibition contests will be decided before the clubs swing into action in the flag races on April 12. Of this number, 100 games, or practically one-third will be between major league teams. Following the start of the spring battles, there is not an open date on the schedule before the opening of the regular campaigns. Some new rivalries have been added to the exhibition schedule, with the Giants, Cubs, Pirates and Tigers playing games against each other in California.

Although the Browns have only two games in the South against major league competition, those with the Phillies, the White Sox do not meet a single major league rival until the Browns are played in the opening game of the season at Chicago. Washington does not face major league opposition until April 7, while the Red Sox have but three games with big tent rivals, one with the Reds and two with the Braves. The game with the Braves, April 7, at Washington is the only game for the Senators against a major league rival.

In addition to the games with the Phillies, the Browns tackle the Cardinals in two spring series contests at Sportsman's Park, April 9 and 10.

Three of the teams, the Pirates, Brooklyn and White Sox, will start the campaign under new managers. George Gibson comes back to handle the Corsairs; Max Carey will make his debut as a big league leader at Brooklyn, while Lew Fonseca faces the task of trying to make a winner of the Chicago Americans.

Other Managers.

The other leaders who will again hold forth are as follows: National League—Gabby Street, Dan Howley, Rogers Hornsby, John McGraw, Bill McKechnie and Burt Shotton. American League — Bill Killefer, Roger Peckinpaugh, Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson, Connie Mack, Joe McCarthy and Shano Collins.

There will be the usual trek of new players to the various camps. However, fewer than ever will be chosen for the 1932 season, since the major leagues at the annual meeting held last December in Chicago voted to cut the player limit to 23 players instead of 25. This will send at least 32 more players to the minors than was the case in previous campaigns.

Training Camps of Major Clubs for 1932 Season

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Cardinals at Bradenton, Fla.
Reds at Tampa, Fla.
Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla.

SUGAR CREEKS OPPOSE SPRINGFIELD, TODAY

The Sugar Creeks of the Missouri Valley Basketball League will go to Springfield, Ill., where they will play a return engagement with the strong Empires this afternoon. The locals defeated the Empires here, 20—18.

Several strong clubs are negotiating for next Sunday night's date here. Included are the Wichita Henrys, national A. A. U. champions, who nosed out the Sugar Creeks, 27—25, in two overtime periods, last Sunday. Other teams after the date are the Dr. Peppers of Dallas, Texas; the South Kansas Stage Lines of Wichita; the Browns of Louisville, Ky., and the Kansas City Athletic Club.

McKendree Downs Concordia, 38-30

Virgil Church, forward of McKendree College, was in a scoring mood last night and the basketball five from the little school at Lebanon, Ill., handed Concordia Seminary a 38-30 trimming in their game at Washington U. Field House.

Church started the game with three field goals and when Scherer and Rueter came back to make it 4-6, Concordia was as close as it ever got to a lead. Church made four more field goals and three free tosses before the end, for high total of 17 points.

McKendree led by 21-12 at the half and Concordia had a one-point advantage in point-making in the second half, but was unable to stave off its sixth defeat of the season, against two victories.

FOUR U. S. OLYMPIC SKATERS IN FINAL

Shea and Jaffee Upset Works.

They agreed to race the American way, however, when the subject of staging the Olympic games in America first was brought up. But the sight of young Jack Shea, flitting dizzily past their champions to win both the 500 and 1500 meter titles, while Irving Jaffee a New York kid who learned his skating two flights up on the corner of Fifty-second and Broadway, easily captured the 5000-meter final, apparently changed the Scandinavian minds. One of their demands on officials last night was that the 10,000-meter be skated off, each man competing against time.

With each man pledged today to lead for at least three laps, and an official order out for a speed of at least a lap every 45 seconds, the boys were able to make a winning time of only 17 minutes, 56 2-10 seconds in the first heat and 18:05 4-10 in the second. Yesterday Hurd won the first heat in 17:41 3-10 and Schroeder grabbed the second in 17:52 8-10. The world's record is 17:17 4-10.

Peterson and Ribas Meet Tomorrow Night in First Block of Fancy Shot Match

The first international fancy shot billiard championship ever held will get under way tomorrow night when Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis, and Isidro Ribas of Barcelona, Spain, meet at the St. Louis University gymnasium, hostilities starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Peterson and Ribas last night finished intensive training grinds. "Pete" has been working out afternoon and evening since New Year's day and he appears to be on his game, though he is not at all satisfied with the way he has been making masse shots. Ribas began his serious practicing about two months ago and until a few days ago he toiled daily in a Chicago cue academy. He states he is playing the best billiards of his career. He has been playing in fast company for about 15 years.

For more than a decade Peterson has been looked upon as the holder of the fancy shot title. He has excelled an array of players in fancy shot exhibitions and has been successful in making every kind of a shot put before him for a long time.

However, Ribas, well known in Europe for his skill with the cue, has made such progress and gained so much recognition that his challenge for a title match was finally honored.

The opening night's program is expected to be thrilling, for the billiard masters have submitted 34 shots which they rate as their most difficult and most colorful. Masses of all sorts, long draws, around-the-table shots, shots counting on eight to 11 cushions, cushion caroms, rail shots and numerous trick shots will be attempted.

The match, experts state, will be a combined billiard tournament, featuring shots that are made in the various cue games. Fans who are seeing their first match and veteran followers of the game should enjoy the match, for it will be a series of brilliant shot-making efforts, shots which the stars in other cue games would not dare attempt in championship competition.

The championship will be decided in five matches, with three blocks to each match. The program is made up of 100 shots, 50 furnished by each player. The championship will be decided on the point total. It has been agreed that the players will be limited to four tries on each shot.

After the block at the Billiken gymnasium, the players will move over to Peterson's billiard academy for games Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Then the road series begins, with blocks in Chicago, Feb. 15, 16 and 17; in Washington, Feb. 19 and 20; in New York, Feb. 22, 23 and 24, and Havana, Cuba, Feb. 28 and 29 and March 1.

Tickets for the Peterson-Ribas matches are on sale at Peterson's, 218 North Seventh street, and the St. Louis U. gymnasium. The prices are $1.50, $1 and 50 cents.

and a free throw netting him 15 points. No other player on either team reached double figures. Wood, Illinois guard was top man for his club with eight points and Grandone, for St. Louis, was credited with the same number.

Few Fouls in Game.

The game was singularly free from rough play and fouls were few. St. Louis converted only three free throws while Illinois, with six points scored on these opportunities, was better from the foul-line.

Neither team substituted in the first half and the first Billiken change came when Owen McCarthy went out in the second half on four personal fouls.

Tomorrow night, St. Louis takes to the road. The Billikens play the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, Kansas, Tuesday night and engage the Nebraska Cornhuskers at Lincoln Wednesday.

Last night's victory was the eighth in 11 games for the Billikens.

In a preliminary game the undefeated Billiken freshmen defeated the Y. M. H. A. quintet, 30 to 26 for its fifth straight victory.

After voting to disqualify Bruce Barnes, Texas player, from intercollegiate rankings, because he turned professional, the association adopted an amendment to the constitution specifying that only amateurs after Oct. 15 shall be included in the rankings, except collegians whose amateur status has been confirmed at the date of the tournament.

On motion of Julian S. Myrick, who pointed out that Barnes had turned professional after the annual tournament, the association voted to rescind its previous action and restore Barnes to his No. 2 collegiate ranking in singles and with Karl Kamrath as No. 1 in the doubles. That left the collegiate standing as they had been before the convention.

Carruthers Again President.

Louis J. Carruthers of New York was re-elected president of the association without opposition, along with Harry S. Knox of Chicago as first vice president and Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City as second vice president.

Lawrence Baker of Washington was elected secretary over Paul W. Gibbons of Philadelphia by 32,837 votes to 28,062. Walter Hall of New York was re-elected treasurer without opposition.

Confirmation of the nominating committee's selections on the women's rankings leaves the players in this order:

think he is a tough heavyweight with a punch, but the Illinois Commission, supervisors of boxing, were so incensed at Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, for using John against Salvatore Ruggirello some time ago that they ordered him not to do so again and not to use any other boxers of a non-athletic appearance. In fact, it is said, but not confirmed officially, that Ruggirello was fined for pulling his punches in the bout with John and permitting him to win. Tie that! Lewis thinks Schwake is interesting and would like to use him again, but the castigation he suffered after Schwake's fight in Chicago has kept him from doing so.

Nate is by nature an optimist, of course, or he wouldn't be a boxing matchmaker, but he believes that the Stadium will do $72,000 worth of business on the Dempsey-Levinsky show at prices ranging from $1 to $5.

That Dempsey still retains his personal popularity is shown by the fact that there was a crowd to greet him at the station when he arrived and there was a general air of expectancy around the hotel where he was to stop.

A bystander remarked to Dempsey as he greeted many acquaintances at the station that Levinsky had been boasting what he would do with his "scale" hand against Jack; in other words, what he would do with the hand which he used to put on the scale when he was weighing fish in his peddler days. Jack laughed and said: "Well, they call Levinsky a Kingfish and I hope to land him with a lotta hooks."

Dempsey Hearing in Mississippi Case Goes Over to April 15.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Jack Dempsey was given a long count in his battle with the Mississippi State Boxing Commission today.

The former world's heavyweight champion, charged with being a partner in an exhibition fiasco in Columbus, Miss., more than a year ago, was given until April 15 to produce evidence to show he was not connected with the promotion of the show, which resulted, according to the Mississipians, in unpaid bills of $2804.97.

Meanwhile, Dempsey is free to continue his exhibition tour and to roam the National Boxing Association territory without being interrupted.

The former champion appeared to face two Mississippi commissioners, Harry J. Landry of Friars Point, and Luther W. Mapes of Gulfport, at a hearing conducted by Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the N. B. A.

Dempsey declared he was engaged as a referee of the bouts. He further said he lost $1000 himself in making the trip to Columbus, by passing up other dates and that he was not even reimbursed for his railroad fare.

The promoter, Dempsey said, was Ned Persons, whom he had never met until he arrived in Columbus on the day of the exhibition. If Persons had advertised that Dempsey was a partner, he did so without authority, the former champion declared.

Wray's COLUMN

group." In a letter to this writer he says:

My dear Mr. Wray:

Notwithstanding the fact that Ed Lewis has recently won back the world's heavyweight wrestling championship and belt emblematic of same, certain unscrupulous people are for various and sundry reasons trying to convey to the public the idea that Lewis has come to some sort of an agreement with the so-called 'Londos group.'

What would Lewis have to gain by so doing? Isn't it a fact he would lose whatever prestige he has built up if he were to do as these people are trying to say he has done? I wish at this time to emphatically deny such ridiculous stories. There is no truth to them! As we have consistently tried to clean up the heavyweight championship claims and prove to the public just who the champion is, so we will continue to do until Londos is forced into a ring with Lewis to decide who is entitled to be called champion.

It is true that Ed Lewis will wrestle anyone anywhere, at any time, to uphold his claim that he has and is wrestling for so-called "Londos promoters," but you may rest assured that it is for one reason and one reason alone.

We wish to prove to the man that pays the freight that we are sincere and honest in our effort to have only one champion of the world and not 10.

Yours very truly,
B. PESHMALYAN.

Well, well. So Ed has won back the wrestling championship of the world! He must have done that when he beat poor old bald-headed Wladek Zbyszko in Chicago. That event was for the world's championship of the Illinois State Commission. If that sort of title is any help to Ed, we will concede the point.

Actions Louder Than Words.

As to Ed's objection to popular report that he has come to some sort of agreement with the Curley-Londos group it is Lewis' word against the facts.

The facts show that for years Ed wrestled only members of the Sandow-Bowser "circus." Now Ed is wrestling on programs exclusively against Curley wrestlers. He is charged with jumping two agreements to wrestle men of the group he formerly teamed with.

Ed's career is so clouded with unexplained mysteries such as the Wayne Munn affair, the defeat by Sonnenberg, the unexpected turnover of Don George, the biting contest with Deglane, and the Stecher match in St. Louis that one can be excused for indulging in a few private thoughts not altogether complimentary to this overstuffed athlete.

Costly, but Accurate.

Florida may not be enjoying a banner racing season, but followers of the horses there are having no such difficulties as have occurred at New Orleans and Agua Caliente. At those two tracks horses have gone to the post with the approximate odds at even money or less but after winning were found to be 8 and 10 to 1 when the pay-off refund was posted, a few moments later.

At parimutuel ticket tracks where the play is light it is possible to change a 1 to 2 shot at post time to a pay-off price of 10 to 1 by investing a few thousands of dollars, just before the windows close, on every other horse but the favorite. The real money, however, already had been wagered in handbooks.

A couple of "killings" were engineered in this way at the two tracks named, recently. The procedure is called "building up the mutuels" and is based on the fact that the unloading of the build-up money is timed so that it cannot be returned as comeback money from the bookmakers, who are the targets for the coup.

At Miami the splendid equipment at Hialeah Park includes the modernized Australian "totalizator," which enables everybody to know exactly the odds against any horse at any time up to the moment the "tote" officially closes.

The pay-off is at the last displayed odds. It is infallible and there is no chance for coups, as the betting closes with an ample margin to spare. In any case the unloading of any considerable sum at a late moment would be reflected on the board, where thermometer like tubes show by the rise and fall of their levels the exact odds against each candidate in each race at all times.

Cost Is Prohibitive.

This is the ideal plan for parimutuel betting. Unfortunately, it is not likely to become universal because of the high cost. This electrical calculating marvel cost the Hialeah company $350,000, and it is said that the machine at Longchamps, France, cost almost $1,000,000.

England has a modified "tote" in operation at Newmarket, but the only track game enough to try it out in this country is Hialeah. Until some form of this machine is in general use there will always be carping at the discrepancy between the approximate odds and the actual refund. It's up to the world's inventors to simplify the machine and bring it within the pocketbooks of the smaller tracks. That will not be soon, engineers say.

LIGHTNING BOLT SETS MIAMI RECORD FOR ONE MILE AND A FURLONG

SCORES FIRST FLORIDA VICTORY SINCE THE DERBY OF LAST SEASON

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6.—Winning his first race over the Hialeah Park oval since his Florida Derby triumph last year, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Lightning Bolt today hung up a new track record for one and one-eighth miles as he carried off the honors in the Hialeah Park Handicap.

Twelve thousand fans, the majority of them backing Mrs. Whitney's silks at odds-on quotations, saw Lightning Bolt swing around the strip in 1:50 3-5, two-fifths of a second faster than the record time made by the Belair Stud's Impish early in the season. Impish also was in today's race, but finished far back among the also rans.

Jockey Alfred Robertson gave Lightning Bolt one of his perfect rides to bring the four-year-old son of Wrack home a length and a half in front of F. A. Carreaud's consistent mare, Kincsen. Another two lengths to the rear in third place trailed F. Grossman's Waterway, with D. Breckenridge's Royal Ruffin fourth.

With Lady Broadcast, the high weight of the eligibles, and Don Leon scratched, the crowd rallied to the support of Lightning Bolt, almost to the exclusion of the other starters. As the result Lightning Bolt paid only $3.90 for a $2 straight ticket.

The Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon set the early pace with Waterway, and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Escinaca in close pursuit. The Robertson-Lightning Bolt combination was never far away, however, and rounding the bend, Lightning Bolt made his move. When the field straightened out for the run home, Mrs. Whitney's color-bearer was out in front, running clear.

Meanwhile Kincsen, which got away slow, had moved into a contending position and took up the task of chasing the leader. She was not equal to the task, however, Lightning Bolt having plenty of speed in reserve as Robertson swung him past the judges' stand in record time.

In nationwide balloting at the cigar case, White Owl with the New Year polled a victory vote of cigars bought and smoked. Its last six months of 1931 more than doubled consumption in same six months of 1930—the only cigar last year month by month doubling and tripling its popularity.

What should result in one of the most interesting soccer programs of the season will be played at Sportsman's Park this afternoon when both the municipal and professional brand of play will be on exhibition. The program, of which 50 per cent of the net receipts will go to the Soccer Players' Protective Association, starts at 2 o'clock.

The first game will be a finish battle between the Andersons and Russells to decide the championship of the Fairground No. 2 division of the Municipal League, while in the second, the Stix eleven, St. Louis' only survivor in national title competition, will face an all-star club picked from the other three clubs in the professional circuit. Interest will center in the Stix team, since it will be the first time that Joe Hennessy, Tom Erbe and Elmer Benoist will be seen in action with the eleven.

Experience vs. Speed.

The winner of the opening contest will go into the elimination play for the Municipal championship, which starts next Sunday. It will be experience, on the side of the Anderson club, against the speed of the Russells. The Russells have been coached by a capable man, Harry Ratican, one of the greatest players ever developed in this city. One of the team's players, Bart Connors, center forward, will receive a tryout with the Ben Millers of the professional circuit next season. The Andersons have quite a few athletes who have had tryouts in professional company. In this list are George Schweppe, Mike Delaney, Bonny Hartigan, Joe O'Mara, Runge, Budo and O'Shaughnessy.

That these clubs are evenly matched is evinced from the records of the regular league matches. The teams have battled five teams. Each owns two victories, while the fifth, played last Sunday, resulted in a 1—1 draw. In the match today the elevens will play two regulation 30-minute halves and in case of a tie at the end of that time, four extra periods of 16 minutes each will be played before a halt is called.

Hennessy at Center Forward.

When the Stix play the All-Stars, Hennessy will be at center forward for the first time, paired with McLean, Hart, Ahrens and Pastor, while Erbe will pair with Gregg at fullback. Benoist will be at the left halfback position. The Stix, with 20 players on their roster, will probably use as many men as possible to gain a line on the best combination for the next cup match.

The club will have no easy task in trying to defeat the picked eleven. This combination has a fine halfback line in Tracy, Heidenry and Egan, while there is speed and punch on the forward line composed of McAuliffe, Worden, Flavin, Nash and Grenon. The two clubs will play 45 minute halves. In the event it gets too dark to complete the second period. Referee Ribby Murphy will be empowered to call off the match.

Nick Reidy, who has developed into a fine referee, will be in charge of the Muny title contest with Johnny Cradock and Dick Wall as linesmen.

The admission price will be 50 cents for men and 25 cents for women and children. Gates will be opened at 1 o'clock.

McQUAY-NORRIS AND RALSTON QUINTETS TO MEET ON WEDNESDAY

Five games will be played in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League at the Armory Wednesday night. In Division No. 1 the championship has already been won by the International Shoes. Ralstons are in a tie with McQuay-Norris for second place and will meet to decide which team shall be entered in the play-off against Fouke Fur, winners of second place in Division No. 2. The International Shoes will tackle the "B's," winners of the Wednesday Night League at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., in the second game of Division No. 1.

In Division No. 2 Rawlings meets John Deere Plow in the first game, Fouke Fur plays Procter & Gamble in the second and Quick Meal Stove meets J. C. Penney, the division leaders, in the final. No admission will be charged.

Joe Ghnouly to Get Real Test In Bout With Freddie Miller At the Coliseum Tuesday Night

Joe Ghnouly, flashy South St. Louis junior lightweight, who is being groomed by his manager, Gus Wilson, for the championship of his division, will receive another hometown test Tuesday night at the Coliseum when he meets Freddie Miller, Cincinnati southpaw, one of the leading contenders for the featherweight title.

Ghnouly was scheduled to fight Eddie Shea in the main bout of Kid Bandy's boxing show, but Shea's nose was broken in a bout with Paul Wangley at Minneapolis last week, and he withdrew from the card.

After hours of persuasion, Bandy induced Ghnouly to box Miller, who had been signed to fight Howard Scott in one of the preliminaries on the Coliseum card. Wilson was reluctant about Ghnouly meeting Miller because his protege had never battled a real good southpaw. It was pointed out to Ghnouly and Wilson that the little South Side boxer, if he ever expected to reach the top of his division, would have to meet some good left-handers, and that he might as well learn to box southpaws now as later. So Ghnouly and Wilson took the bout.

Miller and Ghnouly will come in at 130 pounds.

Exonerated in Battalino Bout.

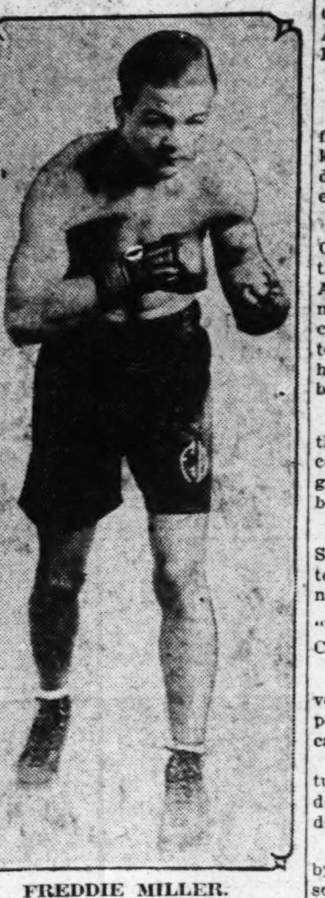
The Cincinnati boxer 10 days ago thought he had the featherweight title in his grasp when he fought Battling Battalino, the titleholder, at Cincinnati. When Battalino weighed in he tipped the beam at 129½ pounds, and being overweight for the featherweight class, he was deprived of his title. The bout was allowed to go on. Miller in the third round sent Battalino to the floor with a right to the chin. Miller was ready to claim the title, but Referee Lou Bauman ruled the blow didn't have enough power to bowl over a fighter, and the contest was stopped and declared a "no contest." Miller again claimed the title, but his claim was disallowed. He, however, was held blameless for the "no contest," but it costs Battalino $5000 and his title.

Miller, who is 22 years old and has done most of his fighting around Cincinnati, holds a decision over Eddie Shea. He defeated Rogers Bernard of Flint, Mich., Mike McNulty's good featherweight, on New Year's day, 1931. He lost a 10-rounder to Battalino on July 23. He gained decisions over Emil Paluso, Billy Shaw, Al Feldman and Ray Meyers last year. In 1930 he knocked out Babe Ruth of Louisville, held Bushy Graham to a draw, and beat Henry Falegano, who was knocked out by Eddie Shea on Bandy's last card, and also scored a victory over Cecil Payne, won from Johnny Farr and then lost a return bout.

Brady Boxes Purvis.

A bout that stacks up as promising as the Ghnouly-Miller bout, is the 10-round semiwindup between Jack Brady of Syracuse, N. Y., and Jack Purvis of Indianapolis. Brady held King Tut to a draw here on a Bandy card. Purvis has shown here several times, his best bout being with Eddie Ran, the Polish welterweight, who defeated Purvis. The Indianapolis boxer, however, put up a great fight, and stayed the limit, after being floored by Ran's right in an early round.

The third 10-rounder on the card will bring together Dave Barry of Springfield, Ill., and Leroy Dougan of Blytheville, Ark. Dougan holds a decision over the Springfield featherweight, who now is under the management of Bob Riley. Barry has fought his best bouts in St. Louis rings, winning his last four, two this year.



FREDDIE MILLER.

Dougan originally had been signed to meet Vale Falegano, brother of Henry Falegano of Des Moines. With the rearrangement of the bouts, a new opponent is to be found for Falegano, who will appear in the six-round curtain raiser. Bandy will match him against Clifford Doetzel, Frank Doxey or Real Villa. Doetzel and Doxey are local boys and Villa is from Oklahoma.

All of the boxers of the card will work out this afternoon at the National Gymnasium.

Bandy said the demand for tickets warranted the opening of the ticket office in the Coliseum today. The prices range from $1.10 to $3.30.

Too Bad.

Many major league owners have forbidden their players to play basketball during the off season. They don't believe in putting all their eggs in one basket.

It has been figured that last year Col. Ruppert paid Babe Ruth at the rate of $1739.13 per home run. As Lou Gehrig turned out the same number of homers at a much cheaper rate, the Colonel seems to have a strong talking point when he goes to the mat with the Bambino in the final clinch.

Of course, Lou hasn't the color that the Babe has; but when it comes to talking in terms of long green, the Colonel is inclined to be a little bit color blind.

In view of Babe's record as a puller of ossified strategy we can't imagine just where he fits in unless they use him as the horrible example.

But if the Babe can impart any of his skill in pickling the pill to the undergraduates, we can see where his services would be invaluable.

Cardinal Contracts.

THREE Cardinal outfielders are signed for 1932, so the world champions will be able to man the outer line of defense even if there is no more pen scratching before the season opens, Branch Rickey disclosed yesterday.

Pepper Martin signed on a recent trip to St. Louis, and George Watkins and Ernie Orsatti have hold-over contracts covering next season.

"Does that mean that Hafey is a holdout again, or that you are having a controversy with Joel Hunt?" Rickey was asked.

"I refuse to answer that question," Rickey replied, so your guess is as good as the next fan's as to whether the National League's champion batter is going to be balky. Last year, as will be remembered, Chick held out until it hurt, and when the books were balanced it was found that his tactics had cost him approximately $2000 in forfeited salary.

Hafey is the only member of the outfield squad who really could be classed as doubtful. Hunt undoubtedly will be glad to have another chance to make the big league grade; Parham would grab at a similar opportunity, and Ray Blades never argues over salary. At least he never has. He takes the contract offered and signs and it is said that he never has suffered because of his attitude.

As suggested in Extra Innings recently, Hunt may be the dark horse of the fly-chasing brigade, and Rickey agrees with that suggestion.

"Hunt is one of the best base runners in the game," Rickey declared. "He is especially clever at getting away from second base and if he gets a chance as a regular, I believe he will steal more bases than either Pepper Martin or Frank Frisch."

Hunt first joined the Cardinals as an infielder, but he was too erratic and because he had natural hitting ability he was converted into an outfielder. If he has overcome a weakness against right-handed curve-ball pitching, he may put up a strong fight for a regular job.

Rickey said he thought Hunt would be good enough to win a job as alternate right fielder, and if he does make the grade in that capacity he probably will be used against left-handed pitchers, with Watkins or Orsatti playing against the right-handers.

Mueller Strikes Back.

"IMAGINE Joe Schultz of all people telling a story about ME!" said Heine Mueller, who was a visitor at the Cardinal office. "I wouldn't mind if anybody else told one, but Joe Schultz, that rock! Sal, listen to this one:

"Ask Schultz who it was what was on second base already one time in Pittsburg, with the bases filled and two out and Vernon Clemons at bat. Ask him if he remembers that Clemons threw his bat—I mean it slipped out of his hand and sailed out past the pitcher. And ask Joe Schultz who it was what walked off second base to pick up the bat for Clemons and got touched out. And if he don't tell you who it was, I will. It was Joe Schultz, that rock, and him telling a story about Clarence Mueller!"

Chief Scout Outlines Work of Cardinal Organization Which Will Pass on 670 Ballplayers at Six Training Camps This Spring.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Charley Barrett, the great Cardinal scout, who has said the last word about thousands of ball players, held a shiny new pencil at arm's length and his Irish eyes were smiling—Irish eyes in spite of the fact that Heine Mueller is his nephew.

"Look at that eraser," said Charley proudly. "Look at 20 pencils, no more or no less or a whole lot more than 20 pencils. You'll see an eraser on almost every one. And what does that mean? Why, it means that the world is always making mistakes. Look at the box scores. Don't they all have error columns? Sure they do. In other words, as my nephew, Heine Mueller, often tells me, 'A little error now and then is made by e'en the greatest men.' And that's why I'm smiling and real proud of the Cardinal training camp organization.

CHARLEY BARRETT.

670 Players to Be in Uniforms At Cards' Six Training Camps

"We've looked at thousands of ball players, young, green ball players and others not so young and not so green, and we've never yet made a mistake in our training camps. I mean that no young player, who has been discarded by us at a training camp, has ever developed into a star and made us feel foolish."

Nobody ever questions Charley's judgment or his veracity. But it sounded like it might be an interesting story and the King of the Scouts was urged to go on with the tale, to elaborate and elucidate, and it did seem to be an interesting yarn.

Thousands Inspected.

Charley said that thousands of ball players had been inspected and that did not sound like an exaggeration after the plans for the 1932 season had been explained.

The Cardinal organization will have training camps in the spring at Springfield, Mo.; Houston, Tex.; Greensboro, N. C.; Scottdale, Pa., and Danville, Ill., in addition to the big league camp of the mother team at Bradenton, Fla.

"We will have about 250 young men at Springfield, our main juvenile cantonment," Barrett explained. "Then there will be a total of about 180, counting the donkeys, at Houston where the Houston, Rochester and Columbus teams will have a three-ring joint training camp. There will be at least 100 young men at Greensboro, perhaps 50 at Scottdale and 50 more at Danville. Get out your pencil and paper and you'll find those make a total of about 630. Add 40 who will be at Bradenton and there's an idea of how much work the Cardinal organization will be doing this spring to keep the old machinery going, so that each team will be supplied with talent and so that there always will be a supply of replacements for the major league unit.

"The Springfield camp will be the largest one. The clubhouse there is being enlarged with extra dressing rooms and shower baths to accommodate 250 men. We'll receive the letter ball players first. You know what letter ball players are—those who write to us for tryouts, young men who have never been seen by any of our scouts and about 150 of them will report at Springfield, with the understanding that they are to pay their own expenses. Then if they make good we'll reimburse them for their traveling and living expenses.

"We handle the recruits there like an army camp handles an incoming squad. They report first for a record and we list their name, home, weight, height, classification as to position, etc. Then we send them to the quartermaster or uniform department and each gets a uniform—socks, shirt, pants, cap and a number. The number is pinned on the back of the uniform and it is a very important feature. Naturally we couldn't keep track of them by names. But the numbers make it easy for the scouts and managers, each being equipped with a list. Then if they take a fancy to No. 36, they jot down a memorandum and compare notes with the other inspectors there.

Arm Is Important.

"About the first thing we look at is the player's arm. After a good warm-up period we have them throw from the outfield and we soon can tell if the arms are good.

"In Thousands of Cases, We Have Never 'Passed Up' a Rookie Who Became Star,' Veteran Declares.

If they fail in that test they quickly are eliminated. It takes about four or five days to weed out the hopeless prospects. Of course, we divide them into squads. The first works om 9 to 10:30, the second from 10:30 to 12, the next from 1:30 to 3, and the fourth from 3 to 4:30 o'clock.

"They get plenty of inspection. I look 'em over and the others assigned to the camp are Charley Kelchner, Frank Rickey and Jack Ryan, my assistant scouts; Mr. Branch Rickey, Eddie Dyer, manager of Springfield; Bob Rice, manager of Keokuk, and Joe Sugden, the scout-at-large.

"As the work continues the players are divided into three groups—the good prospects, the fair ones and those who can't do anything right. Of course there are occasional re-shifts, but the No. 3 squad seldom sends any men back to No. 1. After a fair test the No. 3 group is called together and the men are given their releases and we try to make it as easy for them as possible, though you can't always be as polite as a Roxy usher.

"After the hopeless misfits have been sent home we work for a couple of weeks and then the remaining players are assigned to various clubs in the organization. And after they depart about 100 players who have been sent to camp on recommendation of scouts, are inspected."

Charley was asked what the annual yield was from the crop of 150 "letter ball players" and his answer was interesting, though it might tend to discourage young men who yearn to pen such epistles.

"If we get two crackerjack prospects out of the 150," Charley admitted, "we figure we're lucky. And while we've placed many such men in small minor leagues, we've never had a single one who developed into a big league star. And no player we turned down at one of the camps has ever made his way to the big leagues, or been a star in the minors.

Nine Minor League Clubs To Get Replacements From Cards' "Schools"

"We have booted a couple of times in our tryouts at Sportsman's Park, but in those cases the men were not inspected thoroughly, by the scouts and minor league managers. Yes, three men who have made the big league grade were given the bum's rush at Sportsman's Park. They were Ed Baecht and Andy Bednar, pitchers and Andy Reese, infielder who was later bought by the Yankees for a fancy price.

"Rogers Hornsby got the rap for turning down Baecht, but that was all wrong. Rog didn't see Baecht at all. Baecht had a morning tryout, but somebody else on the ball club staff told Baecht and Bednar that they were no good and gave them the bum's rush. The man who turned down Reese is no longer with the Cardinal organization."

Nine minor league clubs get their replacements from the training camps of the great organization. The clubs are Rochester of the International League; Houston, Texas League; Columbus, American Association; Danville, Three-I League; Springfield, Western Association; Scottdale, Mid-Atlantic; Elmira, New York-Pennsylvania; Greensboro, Piedmont League, and Keokuk of the Mississippi Valley League. Then there is a working agreement with Denver of the Western League.

"If you want to see something good," Barrett suggested in conclusion, "you must come and visit us when we're at Springfield. You've seen a lot of ball games and world series, but you ain't seen nothing yet. Wait till you see a game between teams picked from Group Three, the hopeless and helpless. Say, that's a scream. Batters who can't hit bat against pitchers who can't pitch, and runners who can't run are trying to outdo fielders who can't field or throw. And to make it funnier, they don't know what they're doing or why. Say, that's a ball game. Save a few laughs and make that trip to Springfield."

SOUTH SIDE HANDICAP TOURNEY TO BE HELD AT GERMAN HOUSE

The sixth annual South Side handicap tournament will be held on the German House alleys beginning Saturday, Feb. 27. This event is open to all teams and individuals bowling in leagues south of Market street.

Entry fee is $5 for the team event, doubles $2 and singles $1. Gold medals will be awarded the winners in each event.

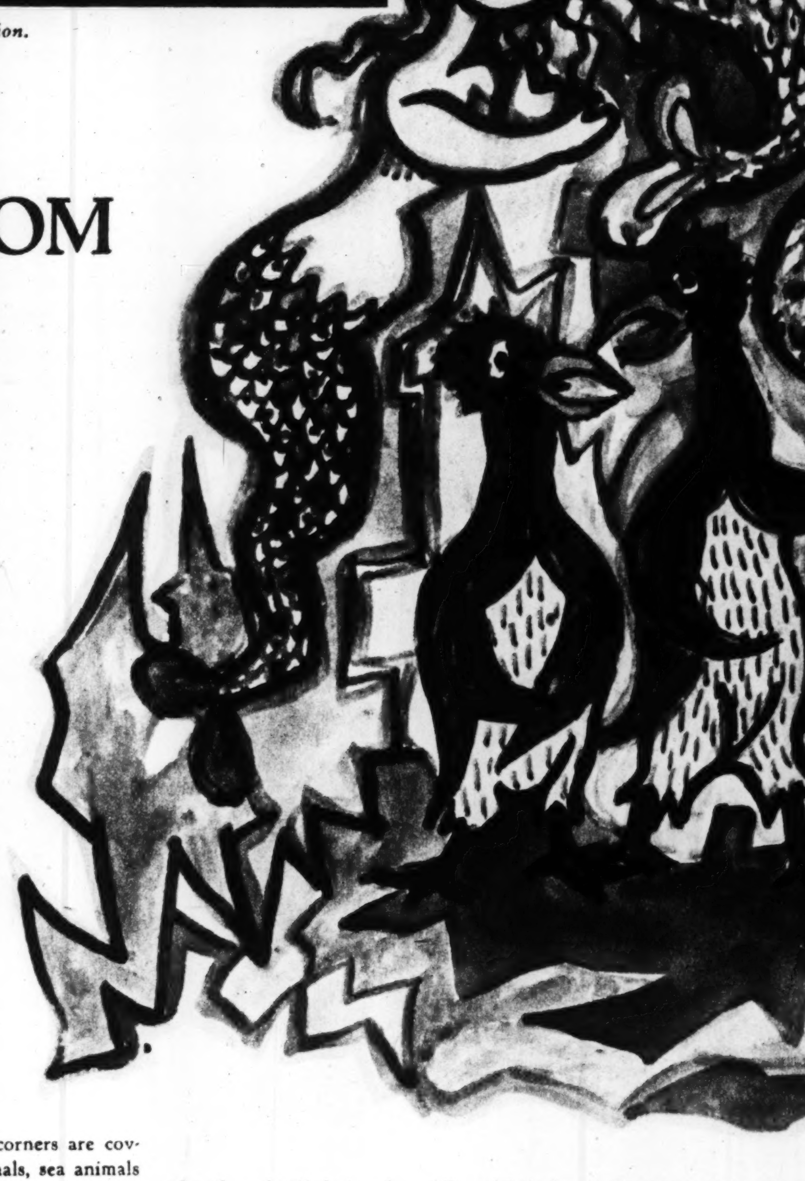
AN OPERATING ROOM WITH DECORATED WALLS

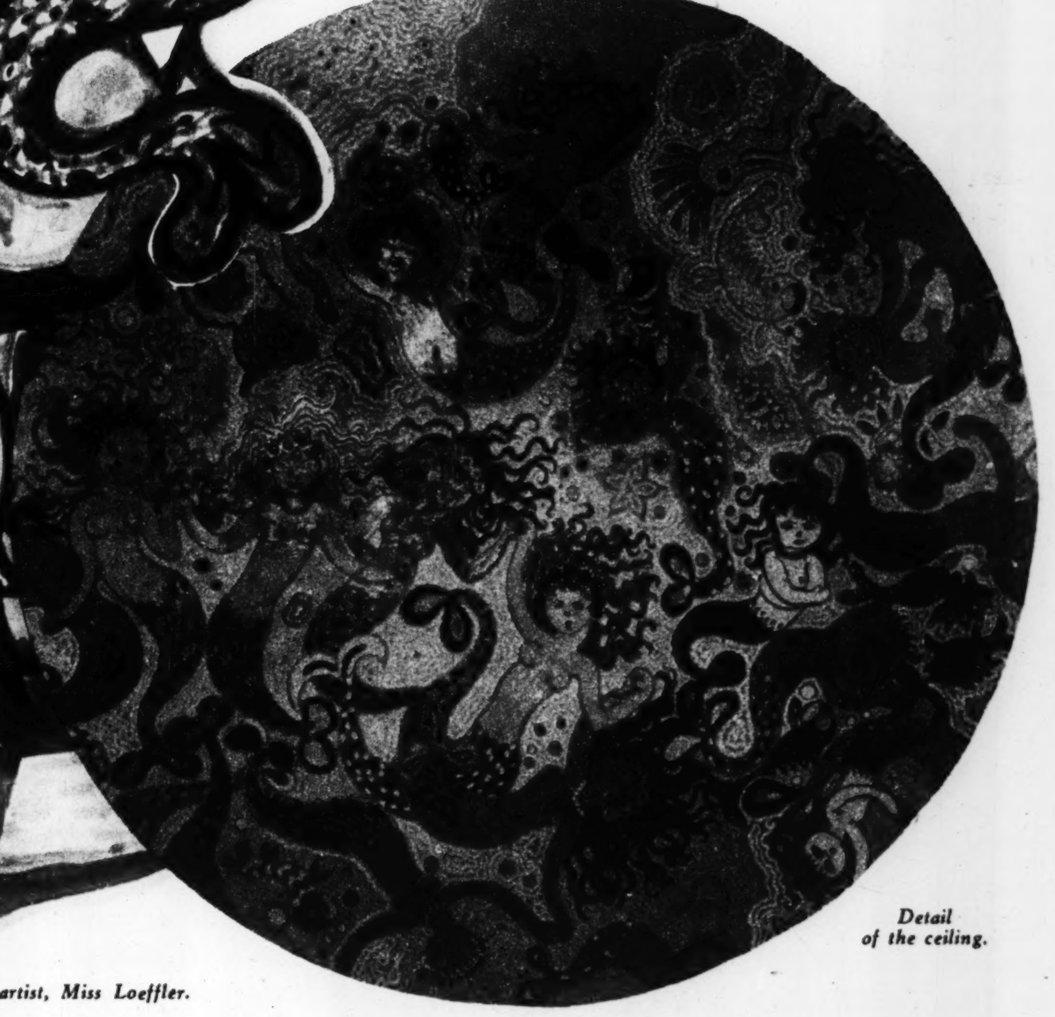
Barnes Hospital Provides a Fairy-Tale Atmosphere for Children Being Treated Under Local Anesthetics.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

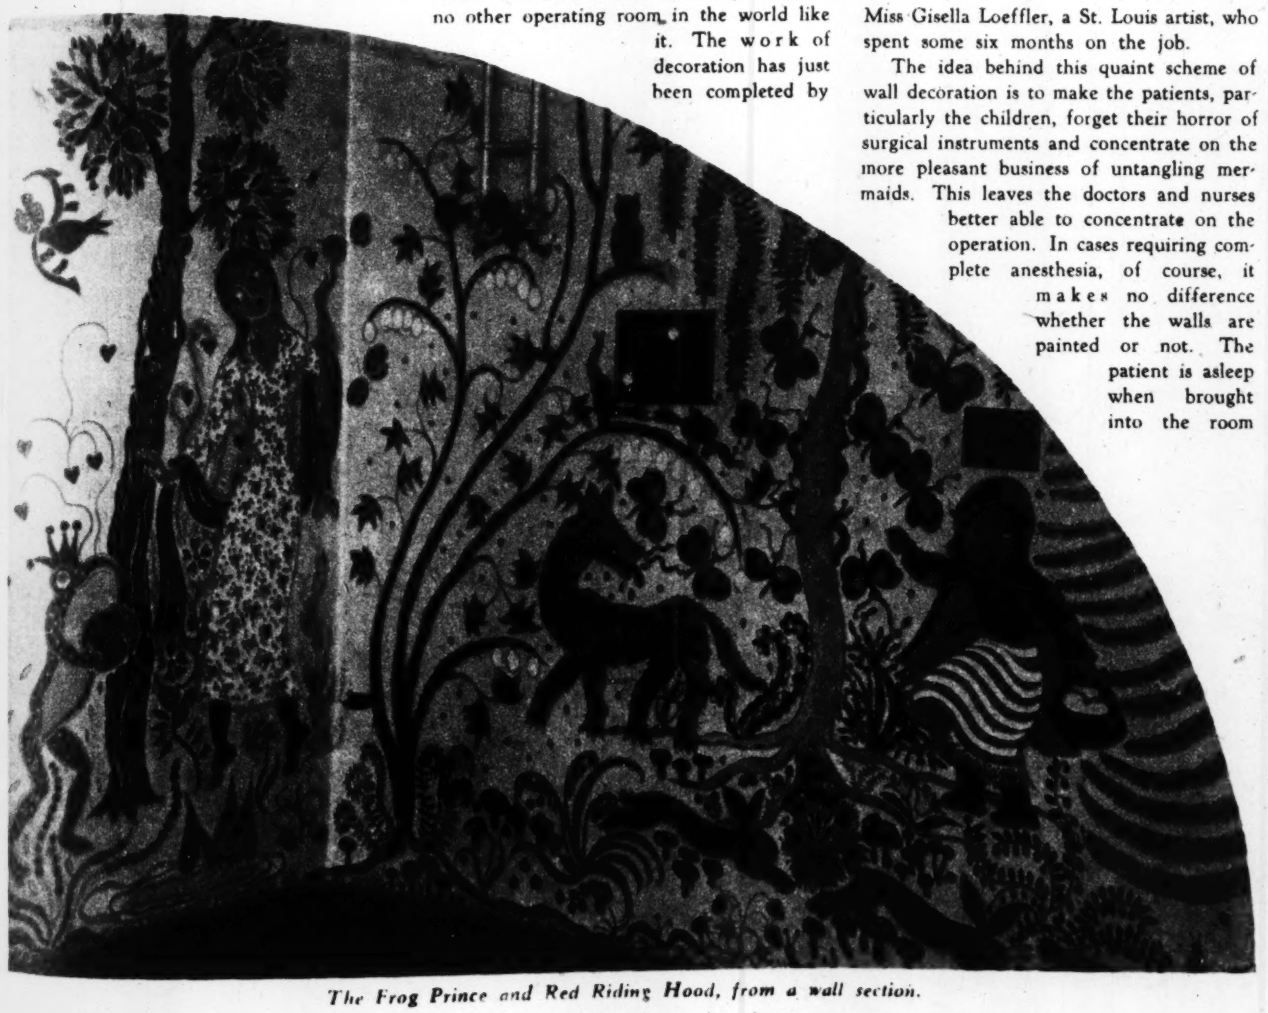


Another detail from the walls, with colors authenticated by the artist, Miss Loeffler.



Detail of the ceiling.

BARNES Hospital has just introduced to the medical world a brand new idea in operating rooms. It is an "art gallery" operating room, a sort of fairyland operating room in which the walls, the ceiling, the waterpipes and all visible nooks and corners are covered with brilliantly colored dwarfs, gnomes, mermaids, rabbits, forest animals, sea animals and a score or so of the familiar characters from the story books of childhood. So far as local medical authorities can say, there is no other operating room in the world like it. The work of decoration has just been completed by Miss Gisella Loeffler, a St. Louis artist, who spent some six months on the job.



The Frog Prince and Red Riding Hood, from a wall section.

The idea behind this quaint scheme of wall decoration is to make the patients, particularly the children, forget their horror of surgical instruments and concentrate on the more pleasant business of untangling mermaids. This leaves the doctors and nurses better able to concentrate on the operation. In cases requiring complete anesthesia, of course, it makes no difference whether the walls are painted or not. The patient is asleep when brought into the room and asleep when taken out of it. But this particular operating room is used chiefly for minor operations in which only a local anesthetic is administered. In the majority of cases, therefore, the patient has to lie on the table wide awake and look for entertainment where he can find it. With the ceiling swarming with 40 mermaids and 24 different deep sea animals, he doesn't have to look far.

IF it is more convenient to look somewhere other than at the ceiling the view is quite as good. There are five major groups of paintings around the walls with innumerable small figures thrown in for good measure. One of the most interesting features of the wall decorations is the selection of subjects. The visitor meets and recognizes a good many friends of childhood—Red Riding Hood and the Wolf, Goldilocks, Little Miss Muffet with a spider beside her, and the Frog Prince.

On a panel between two windows Jack is seen climbing a tall beanstalk, and on another panel George Washington swings a lusty hatchet at the cherry tree. Over in a corner (where the Mother Goose rhyme has him sitting) is Little Jack Horner. In still another quarter, the Pied Piper pipes, and a very colorful cow jumps over a very colorful moon. Here is William Tell of Animal Land shooting at the apple and over there Hansel and Gretel and the Ginger Bread House. One very brilliant group comprises Santa Claus and a big Christmas basket surrounded by fanciful denizens of the forest. Back of the students' gallery is a wide expanse of wall depicting the expulsion of Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden, and across the front of the gallery is a 24-foot horizontal panel depicting a German interpretation of the Christ Child story. Altogether, there are more than 300 separate figures in the decorative scheme and all are capering and scampering in a state of furious activity. The effect is quite remarkable. All traces of hospital atmosphere are completely dispelled.

Decoration of the operating room, which was financed by private subscription, was undertaken as an experiment. A prominent physician working principally with children chanced to see some of Miss Loeffler's portrayals of fairy book subjects and divined that such pictures, besides brightening up an operating room generally might go far toward winning the attention of small patients and keeping their minds off their impending operations. After some discussion, the hospital authorities determined to try it and Miss Loeffler went to work on the decorations last July.

The first unit attempted was the Adam and Eve panel back of the students' gallery. There the artist might do a bit of experimenting and try to swing into a style that would be adaptable for the entire room, for she entered upon the task without working out designs in advance. As it turned out, her plan of operation was eminently successful. The decorations, although representing a wide variety of subjects, hang together in one harmonious whole. To guard further against the danger of a break in the spirit and movement, she did the entire job with the same brush. When she had finished, the brush was worn to a stub.

Already the hospital authorities have declared the experiment a success. The decorated operating room is a permanent fixture now and is attracting considerable attention from physicians and hospital authorities in other cities. Many have visited Barnes Hospital to see it and to observe the reaction of child patients to the innovation. Dr. Louis Burlingham, superintendent of the hispital, is enthusiastic over results obtained.

"The practical advantages of a decorated operating room are demonstrated every day," he pointed out. "Children come in frightened and crying. Then they see the pictures and start looking around. In a little while their fears are forgotten.

"IT is not alone due to the fact that they get interested in the individual pictures. The decorative scheme as a whole with the drawings of frolicsome story book characters creates a jolly, friendly atmosphere that could never exist in a room with bare white walls. In these surroundings even the operating table and apparatus look less formidable."

For the last month or so visitors have been flocking to the hospital to see the room, which is in the new Johnson-Rand pavilion. Among them have been many artists who commended the decorations for their artistic merit. Miss Loeffler, the creator, has lived in St. Louis since she was 5 years old. She attended Yeatman High School and the Washington University School of Fine Arts. In private life she is Mrs. Edgar Lacher. She and her husband and two children live at 400 South Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood.

An Artist - Photographer's View of the Soviet Experiment

Margaret Bourke - White's Remarkable Record in Pictures of Her Trip Through Russia.

By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

SHE had been hearing so much about Soviet Russia and its five-year plan that Margaret Bourke-White finally decided something so interesting must be going on there that she simply couldn't afford to miss it. Industry is fascinating and a machine a thing of beauty to this young woman; the effort of Russia to transform itself from an agricultural to an industrial country attracted her.

So Miss Bourke-White sidetracked for a time her work for Fortune, that luxurious magazine for American capitalists of which she was an associate editor, and betook herself to the land where the proletariat rules. With a camera, which she uses with an artistry that has won her high rank among American photographers, she visited the principal Soviet industrial centers and there photographed what she found—machinery, materials, people. This photographic record she believes will have historic value. Its artistic interest may be judged from the pictures on this page. They are taken from her book, "Eyes on Russia," in which Miss Bourke-White tells of her experiences in the Soviet Union. The book was recently published by Simon & Schuster, New York.

It was in the summer of 1930 that the young American photographer made her Russian tour. She had been sent to Germany by Fortune to make photographs in some of the big industrial plants there, a mission resulting from the success which had attended her camera work in the American industrial field. The assignment gave her the opportunity she had been wanting, and when her work in Germany was done she went to Moscow.

When Miss Bourke-White showed pictures she had made in America to Serebriakoff, Vice Commissar of Railways, and HOLLYWOOD, California.

A WHOLE night through, Morris Sender, merchant of Altadena, California, and Mrs. Sender, sat in a motor car at the mouth of Eaton Canyon, a jagged gash between mountains back of their little city. Away up on the side of a cliff, alone, in inky darkness, clinging to a narrow ledge shivering with cold, was their 10-year-old boy, Harold. Through their minds ran the constant thought: "Can he stand the strain under stiffening muscles until daylight comes? Or can men pick their way up the side of that treacherous wall, daring death, to effect his rescue?"

They wondered, numbed with apprehension and fear.

A few miles away the lights of Pasadena blinked sporadically as the city went to sleep. From the mouth of the black gulch before them poured a flood of murky water, growling defiantly to the watchers as it escaped and headed toward the sea. Prowling soft-footed through the mesquite and chapparal above and about their son, they knew, were mountain lions and other predatory beasts for which Eaton Canyon is noted. A short distance away was the muffled roar of a waterfall, heard indistinctly because of the intervening cliffs.

Mr. Sender looked at his watch.

"Eleven-thirty!" he remarked.

No word had come from a rescuing party within the canyon. Presumably, the boy still was clinging to his ledge 500 feet in the air—clinging, unless his strength had given out and his body had slumped, then rolled and bounced to a little heap over jagged rocks, then sunk in the waters of the stream. The place where he had his precarious foothold could not be seen.

No more dramatic situation has been recorded in the mountain section of Southern California in years than this effort, made a few nights ago, to rescue an imperiled lad from the brink of death. Certain residents of the exclusive Altadena residential district, a suburb of Pasadena, will long remember it.

Harold Sender and his playmate, Johnny Swafford, also 10, left school in the afternoon ready for play.

"Let's hike into the canyon, Johnny," Harold said. "Let's go way up to the second falls. We got a lotta time. C'm on!"

The two youngsters, ruddy with the glow of health, swung away from the school grounds and hit for the most picturesque, as well as one of the wildest, canyons in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, a bit more than a mile away. Winter rains had washed away the soil from beneath a fence built to block entrance to the canyon, and the lads went in without hindrance. Once upon a time there was a trail there, used by Indians to ascend the cliffs, but non-use and erosion virtually had wiped it out, and only in spots is it visible. But the boys followed it, past one waterfall, by clinging to jutting rock and an occasional mesquite bush until they reached a level landing, where they rested. Then they took up the trail again—up, up, carefully picking their way until they reached the base of the second waterfall, where a ladder, creaky from disuse, ascends nearly a hundred feet to another landing. Undaunted and apparently unafraid, the youngsters tackled it and gained the top. Just ahead were beds of shale and a precipitous wall, and beyond them the peak from which a firebreak cut back to the valley. And home.

Twilight, unnoticed, was beginning to gather as the boys began that final climbing. From ledge to ledge they slowly and carefully crept—a perilous task few men would have attempted. Johnny Swafford, a swarthy lad, led the way. Up, up and still up they went, to where they appeared as mere pygmies from the floor of the canyon. Like miniature human flies, they found hand-holds and footings which, viewed now, seemed unsurmountable. But they kept on. It was too late to retrace their steps. They had to get over the top to the firebreak before dark.

"Comin'?" called Johnny.

"Sure!" Harold replied.

THEY clawed away on the wall and over the shale. Four hundred and seventy-five feet, approximately, they had gone, zig-zagging their circuitous way from one hand-hold or foot-hold to another. And then——

Johnny Swafford stepped on a loosened stone, the only one which had enabled him to climb to another niche, and—it gave way, crashing to the floor of the canyon and causing miniature rock slides, which rubbed out handholds which had been used on the way up.

There Harold Sender stood, marooned on a ledge not more than nine inches wide, unable to go forward, unable to turn back, the top of the precipice 125 feet away. The boy saw Johnny Swafford climb until he disappeared from sight over a higher ledge. And then there was silence as night came on, with its cold and terrifying blackness. The trapped lad realized, suddenly, his predicament. Near his hand a little mesquite bush had sent the tentacles of its roots into crevices and had managed to live. Holding on to this, Harold managed to turn around and put his back to the wall. There he braced himself on the ledge to wait.

Johnny Swafford kept going. He knew his playmate was helpless. With his strength waning, he tugged desperately ahead, foot by foot, niche to niche. He had to make it. The sun was just sinking away off in the Pacific Ocean when he pulled himself over the top and raced for the firebreak. He kept on running until he got to town.

"Harold's trapped on the Eaton Canyon cliff!" he exclaimed breathlessly. "He can't get out."

Thus the stage was set for one of the most dangerous child hunts the coast ever has known. Who was there who could climb Eaton Canyon's walls in the dark? Who was there who could find the spot where the little boy clung? Johnny Swafford knew it was somewhere along the miles beneath the canyon rim, but he couldn't point out exactly where. He hadn't marked the place where he scrambled out. All anyone knew was that Harold was marooned somewhere on the side of a rocky wall, with no possible means of escape. And it was growing dark and cold!

Word of the lad's predicament was told to his father, who frantically called the Sheriff's substation, just a few blocks away.

". . . It must be done tonight—must be done now!" he pleaded. "There's a chance. Someone must try."

Deputy Sheriff Sherman looked at his co-worker, Deputy Lindamood. Both were big men. It would seem utter folly in inky darkness to try and crawl where the boys had crawled and climbed during daylight. The lads had gone up the side of the canyon like cats and secured footings which sustained their weight, but which could scarcely be depended upon to hold men who weighed 200 pounds and more.

Sherman turned to Lindamood.

"I'll go!" he said.

"So will I," replied his running mate.

JOHNNY SWAFFORD was given some food, the deputies tested their flashlights, procured a coil of rope, and at 7 o'clock in the evening went into the black canyon, guided by the 10-year-old lad.

Word of the boy hunt had gotten around, and a small crowd gathered. To stand helpless! There is something in a child's peril which appeals more to men than a danger besetting someone who has grown to maturity. Hands are more eager to help, assistance more readily proffered. But in this instance, what more was there to be done? Sherman and Lindamood were two of the most fearless men on the Sheriff's force, and two of the strongest. Leading them, was the only person on earth who knew where Harold Sender stood. This was little Johnny Swafford. There was no alternative for the rest of the crowd other than to wait.

That night was one of terror to Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sender. In that rugged black canyon, they knew, the Sheriff's deputies were trying, but that was all. There were no rays visible from the officers' flashlights. There was no means of communicating with them to learn how they were getting along. Eleven-thirty came, then midnight. One o'clock, 2 o'clock, the hours dragging as though centuries. Motorcycle Officers Greffoz and Boyd drove their machines up the mountainside, following the firebreak. They might catch the sound of a shout from somewhere down in the canyon. They might hear the call of the trapped boy. It would be natural for him to cry.

The drama being enacted in the canyon never will be told in pictures. From 7 o'clock in the evening in pitch darkness save for beams from their flashlights, the two men and the boy fought. The lad went ahead carrying one end of the rope, occasionally tying it about a boulder or a root to help the officers following. At 12:30 in the morning, away up on the cliff, they heard a child's voice cry. They redoubled their efforts. A bit further on, they heard the call again. And answered!

"We're coming, lad!" Sherman replied. "Hold on!"

But a solid, perpendicular wall of rock projected between them. Up they still must go, until they were above the periled youth.

"Are you coming?" the voice again quavered.

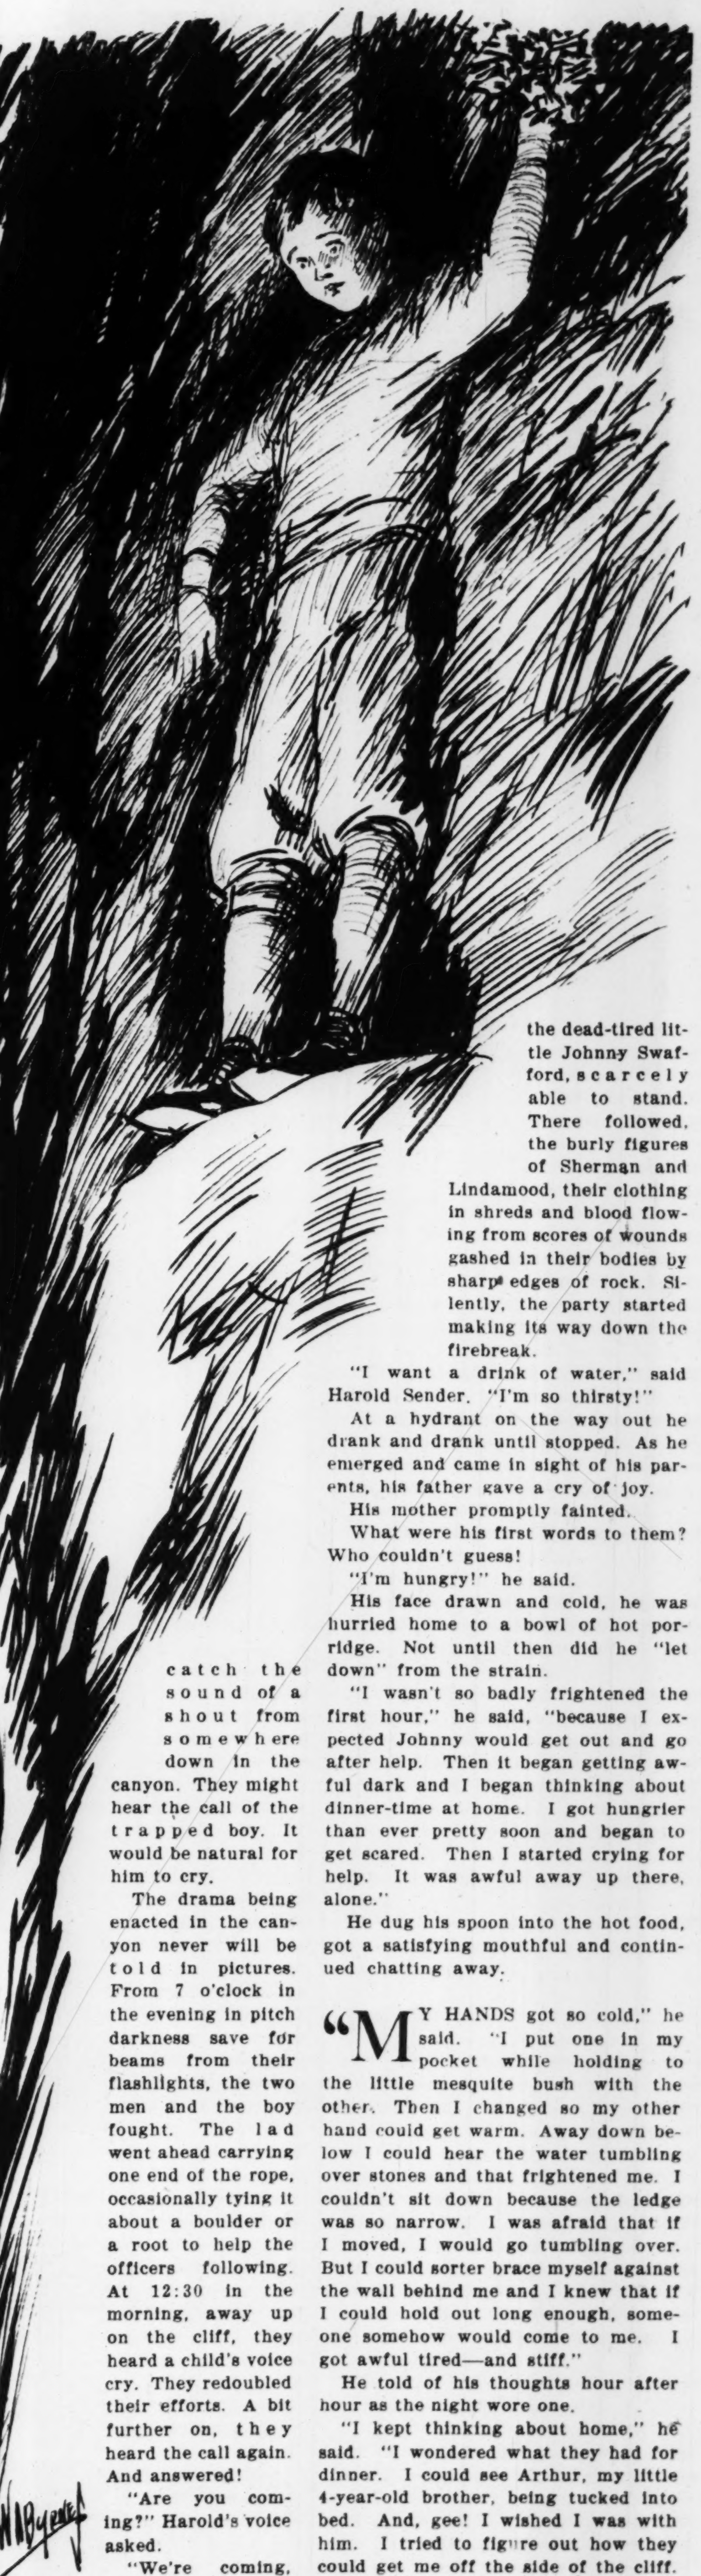
"Yes, we're coming," yelled the tired-out Johnny Swafford. "Shut up!" He'd had a day of it.

"Hot dog!" replied his marooned playmate.

Now it was time for the sheriff's deputies to begin shouting and waving their flashlights. And Motorcycle Officer Greffoz and Boyd, overhead, heard the calls echoing and re-echoing through the canyon.

"Get some rope," they were told. "You've got to let one of us down a ways. The kid's all right—so far."

At 4 o'clock in the morning, the shivering form of Harold Sender was hauled up to the brow of the cliff and grasped in an officer's arms. Next came the dead-tired little Johnny Swafford, scarcely able to stand. There followed, the burly figures of Sherman and Lindamood, their clothing in shreds and blood flowing from scores of wounds gashed in their bodies by sharp edges of rock. Silently, the party started making its way down the firebreak.



W. Byers

"I want a drink of water," said Harold Sender. "I'm so thirsty!"

At a hydrant on the way out he drank and drank until stopped. As he emerged and came in sight of his parents, his father gave a cry of joy.

His mother promptly fainted.

What were his first words to them? Who couldn't guess!

"I'm hungry!" he said.

His face drawn and cold, he was hurried home to a bowl of hot porridge. Not until then did he "let down" from the strain.

"I wasn't so badly frightened the first hour," he said, "because I expected Johnny would get out and go after help. Then it began getting awful dark and I began thinking about dinner-time at home. I got hungrier than ever pretty soon and began to get scared. Then I started crying for help. It was awful away up there, alone."

He dug his spoon into the hot food, got a satisfying mouthful and continued chatting away.

"MY HANDS got so cold," he said. "I put one in my pocket while holding to the little mesquite bush with the other. Then I changed so my other hand could get warm. Away down below I could hear the water tumbling over stones and that frightened me. I couldn't sit down because the ledge was so narrow. I was afraid that if I moved, I would go tumbling over. But I could sorter brace myself against the wall behind me and I knew that if I could hold out long enough, someone somehow would come to me. I got awful tired—and stiff."

He told of his thoughts hour after hour as the night wore one.

"I kept thinking about home," he said. "I wondered what they had for dinner. I could see Arthur, my little 4-year-old brother, being tucked into bed. And, gee! I wished I was with him. I tried to figure out how they could get me off the side of the cliff. Somehow, I just knew they would do it."

Another dig into the bowl and another contented smile.

"After a while it kept getting colder and colder and I felt myself getting numb. Every now and then I hollered for help to keep myself awake. Finally, I got so tired and so stiff I almost didn't care what happened. But I knew if I slipped it was all over. And I didn't intend to slip. I just stood stock still.

"Then, 'way after midnight, down the canyon, I saw a flashlight. You should have heard me holler that time! I knew help was on the way. But, O! how long it seemed in coming. After a while I heard the officer's voice away down below. 'Are you coming?' I called once more, and I heard Johnny answer, 'Yes, we're coming. Shut up!'

" 'Hot dog!' I replied, when I heard his voice, and right then my worries stopped.

"But they had to go away up to get a place directly over me, so that an officer could come down on a rope and tie it around me. That took nearly two hours more, because they had to

A Prison De Luxe for Alimony Defaulters

Westchester County's Newly Completed Jail Is Modern in Architectural Design, Has Blue and Pink Tinted Walls, and Full-Sized Beds.

THE problem of what to do with husbands who won't or can't pay their alimony still calls for a satisfactory solution in New York State, but wealthy, progressive Westchester County has improved conditions by recently erecting an expensive and comfortable jail, where the alimony defaulter may languish in a state bordering on luxury until his matrimonial finances have been stabilized.

There is no law that sentences a man to jail if he fails to pay his alimony. But an irate wife, or ex-wife, can have him hauled into court, where the Judge may order him to pay or post a bond guaranteeing payment. And should the husband be unwilling or unable to comply, the Judge may sentence him to jail for contempt of court.

In these times of depression the ranks of the defaulters are increasing steadily, and to prepare for the anticipated increase in business, Westchester County has just completed its $800,000 detention jail at East View, where the victims of Cupid's misguided darts may retire at the public expense and spend their days not in drab prison cells such as befall the usual rebel against the laws, but in spacious, airy and light rooms, with walls of pink and green tinted terra cotta.

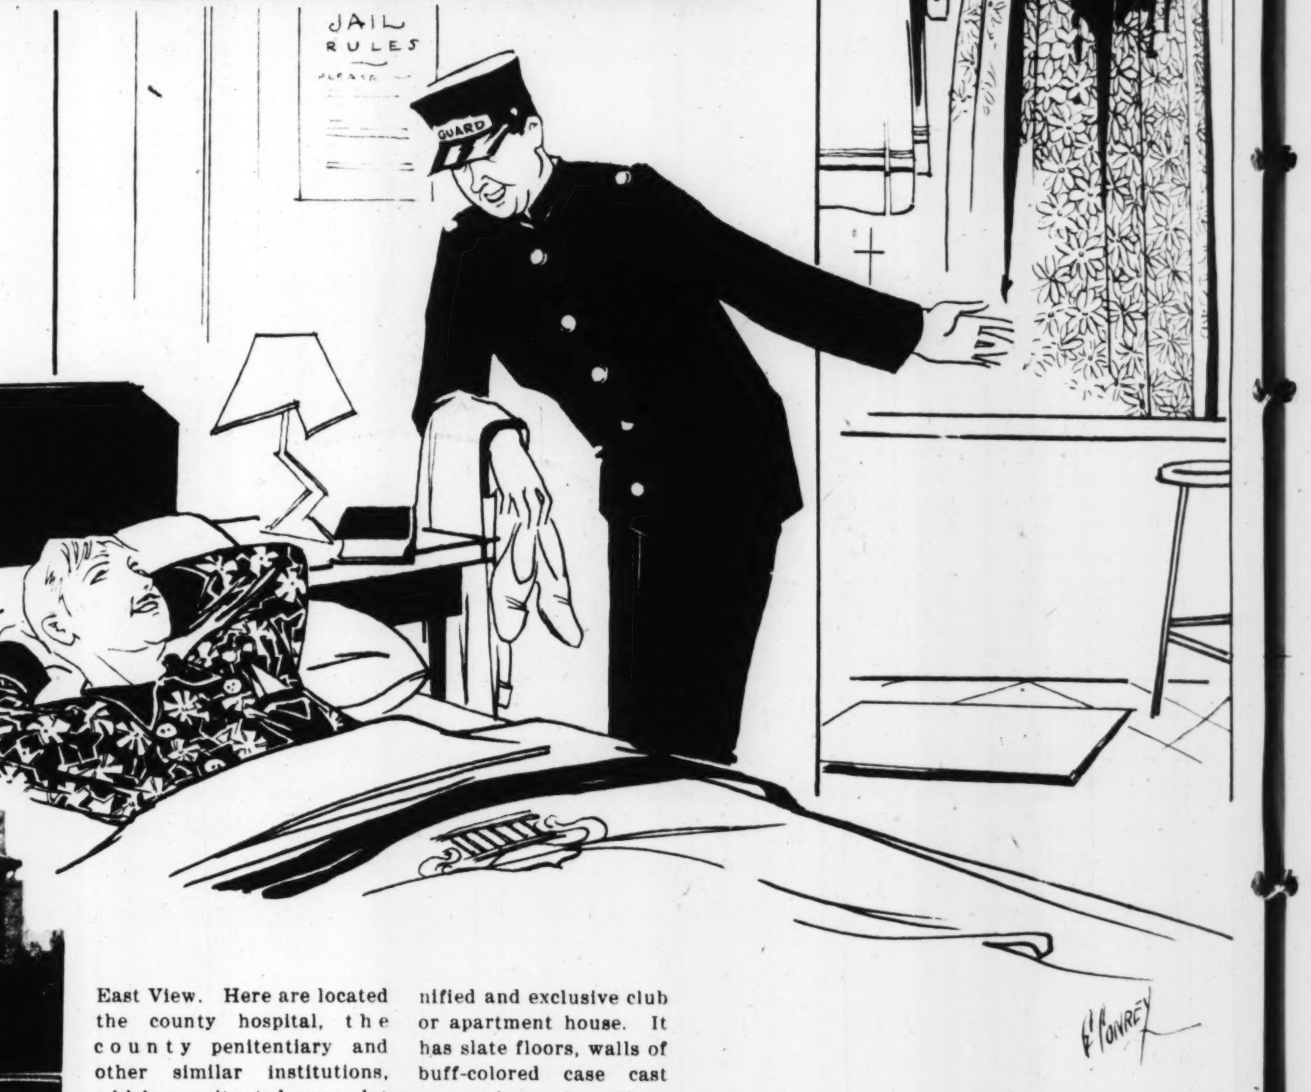
NOR must he repose at night on hard jail cots, to toss about in fitful unrest, a prey to plaguing memories. Instead, he may luxuriate in a full-sized bed, with a soft, and perhaps even downy, mattress, where he may stretch to his heart's content, with no nagging voice to protest against a misplaced elbow, or to interrupt the blissful drumming of a snore.

When he wakes up in the morning he may have his breakfast served in bed, steaming hot from the serving pantry near by, or he may visit the chamber of another matrimonial unfortunate and over the hot coffee and rolls exchange views on the occasional rustiness of the wedlock. But in any case, the indignity of marching into a barracks-like mess hall to dine amidst the din and clatter of a multitude is spared him. And if he wishes he may leave his spoon in his coffee cup, without being reminded by an icily solicitous feminine voice of the dangers of putting out his eye.

Furthermore, he has at his disposal a beautifully tiled hot and cold shower, where he may sing with all the lustiness of a bird in a gilded cage. He is also provided with a comfortable writing table, where he may occupy part of his abundant leisure in setting down his thoughts for posterity, or perhaps in the more practical occupation of writing notes to the law makers in Albany, begging them to expedite the measures pending before the Legislature and designed to reduce the wholesale incarceration of alimony defaulters, regardless of how club-like the quarters of the defaulters may be.

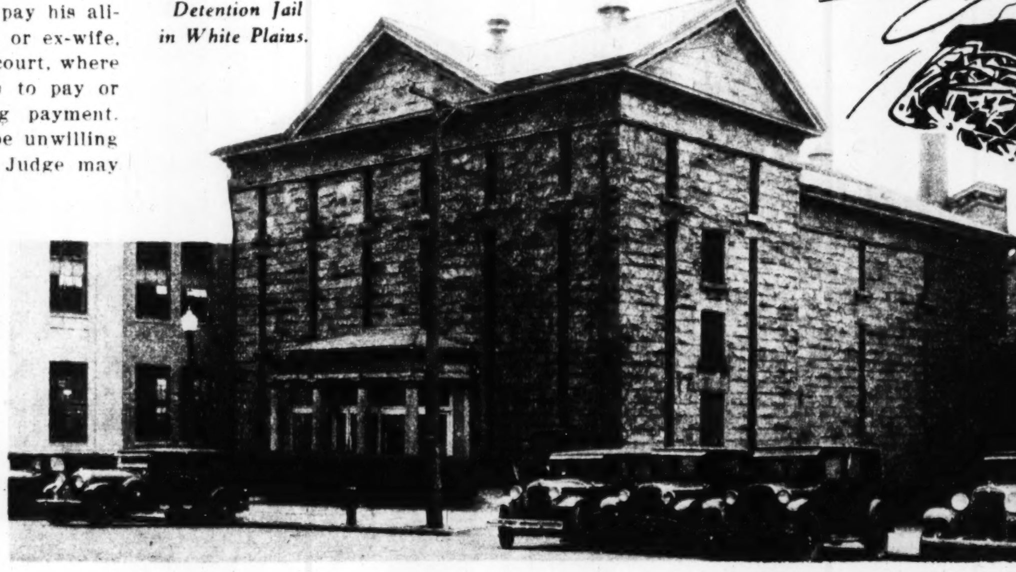
That does not exhaust the list of comforts of which he may avail himself. Should he become ill he will have hospital rooms at his disposal which are, in roominess, ventilation and general attractiveness, superior to many private rooms offered by many of New York's leading hospitals. And these, too, are equipped with private tiled baths, where, presumably, it is a pleasure to be sick.

Should the prisoner feel the need of much fresh air, or want to stretch his legs in brisk exercise, all he has to do is walk out on the tiled roof, where the usual patch of blue has been enlarged enough to include a considerable portion of the heavens. And if this begins to bore him he can do a little gardening outdoors on the spacious prison grounds, lending a hand to the landscaping of his front yard, so to speak, or helping, if he wishes, to produce vegetables or dairy products which are raised on the prison farm.



For the new detention jail, in which the alimony debtor is housed, is only one of a number of public institutions grouped by Westchester County at East View. Here are located the county hospital, the county penitentiary and other similar institutions, which are situated on a plot of some 600 verdant and rolling acres, surrounded on all sides by the fine estates of Westchester millionaires, who have made this section one of the loveliest in the country. Thus the alimony prisoner, whether looking out of the window of his cell, strolling about the roof promenade or wielding a voluntary rake or pruner, enjoys the same expensive view that was provided for the King and Queen of Siam during their recent sojourn in Westchester.

The old Westchester County Detention Jail in White Plains.

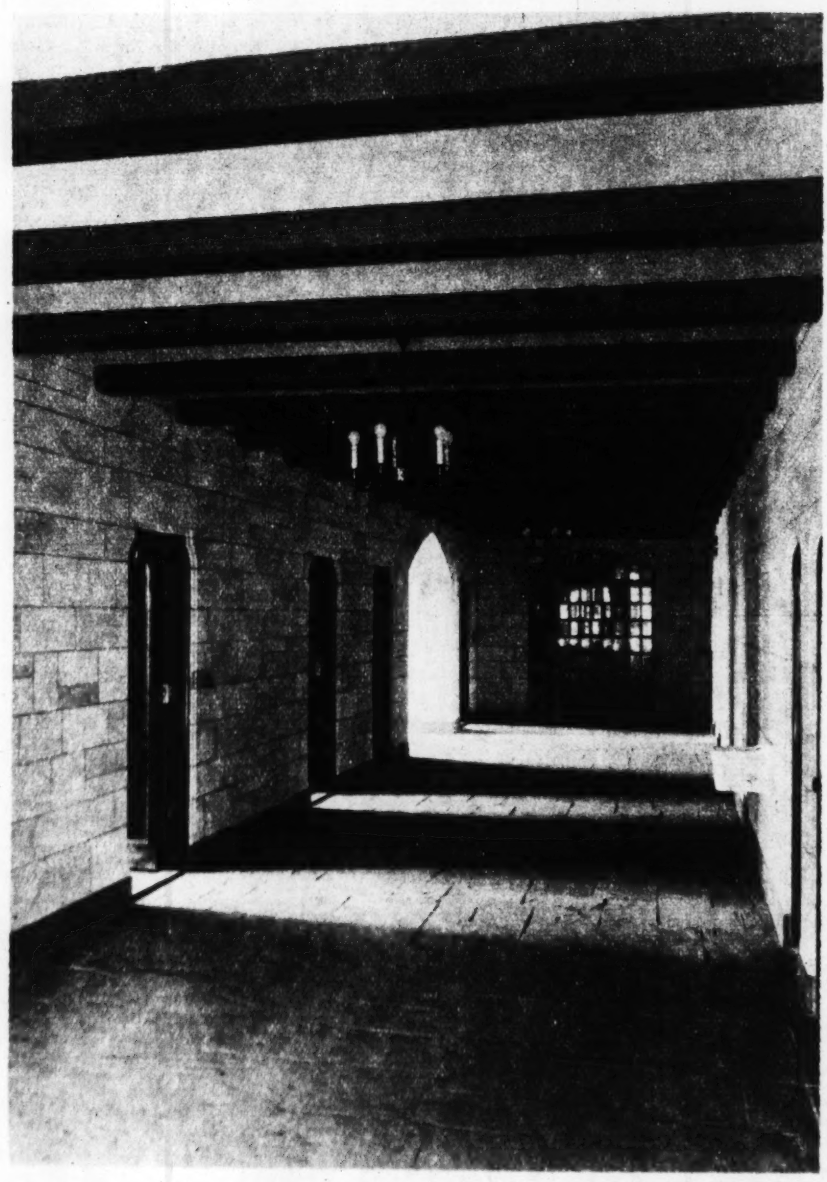


TO BE sure, some of these gentlemen would undoubtedly prefer a more restricted view, with a less restricted freedom of motion. But the fact remains that within the limits prescribed, many of these unfortunate husbands are enjoying a state of comfort to which they were not accustomed before becoming guests of a considerate county administration.

The alimony prisoners aren't the only ones who will enjoy this new de luxe prison atmosphere. For as a detention jail the new structure will also temporarily house assorted prisoners who are awaiting trial on various charges, as well as material witnesses. But these are transient guests, and their quarters, accordingly, have not been planned with such loving care as has been manifested for the quarters of the more permanent guests who are in contempt of court.

The new $800,000 detention jail adjoins the present Westchester County Penitentiary and is a four-story building of a modified Tudor type, built in that fashion to conform, in general aspect, to the architecture of its neighbor. It is probably the only prison in the country done throughout in a rose and green color scheme. Floors are of a rose-like composition tile, and the wall are of a soft green terra cotta.

A prisoner entering the reception hall could not be blamed if he mistook the place for the main hall of a dignified and exclusive club or apartment house. It has slate floors, walls of buff-colored case cast stone, beamed ceilings and wrought-iron candelabra. The building may be described as a sort of angular "U" shape, with all rooms having air, sunlight and an outside view. It is fireproof, and not one piece of wood has been used, with the exception of the massive oak doors.



A view of the main hall in the new jail.

The new jail is, to be sure, far superior to the dungeon-like structure in White Plains, which was built in 1856 and which it now replaces. And it has very little in common with the dilapidated old jail on Thirty-seventh street that houses Manhattan's unrepentant or insolvent husbands.

Lawyers and alimony collecting wives, jealous of any aid or comfort extended to the male they are prodding for non-payment, are inclined to regard this cozy new jail as offering so much comfort that husbands will prefer to remain there rather than to pay up.

The truth is that jailers have always been inclined to treat with special leniency men who have been imprisoned for non-payment of alimony. For one thing, they are not criminals, but civil prisoners, and there is a growing body of opinion to the effect that imprisonment for alimony debts, although disguised as contempt of court, still remains imprisonment for debt and as such is a relic of ancient methods of administering justice.

One group argues that some legal weapon is needed to make stubborn and spiteful husbands obey the court's command to provide for the abused ex-wife. The other group argues that the payment of alimony in too many instances has become a sort of racket. They say that by giving a Judge the power to jail a man for non-payment literally amounts to jailing him for debt, and without a jury trial at that, thus violating one of the most sacred principles of the Bill of Rights.

In view of the difficulty of making a just decision in all such disputes, jailers all seem to be agreed that their alimony prisoners are legally a class apart, and as such are deserving of special consideration. Thus it is that while the alimony jail in Manhattan is hardly to be compared with the new Westchester County edifice in appointments, the prisoners are granted every possible privilege and freedom—except that of walking out the front door.

When the men want a change from the prison fare they are permitted to cook their own food if they wish to, or even to have it sent ready-cooked from a neighboring restaurant. They play handball, checkers, chess and cards, are provided with radio and reading matter and are, in short, permitted to amuse themselves in any way they please, short of setting fire to the building or murdering the keepers.

INDEED, so fraternal and club-like is the atmosphere of the alimony jail that its inmates organized the Alimony Club, which in turn was responsible for the organization of the Divorce Reform League. It is supported by ex-alimony prisoners, and its purpose is "to supply counsel to those enmeshed in matrimonial difficulties but unable to afford or obtain counsel."

It is this league which for the past five years has been sponsoring, in vain, it is true, but with admirable persistence, bills at Albany to do away with imprisonment for non-payment of alimony.

As yet there is no chapter of the Alimony Club in the new Westchester Jail for the simple reason that it has not yet been officially opened to receive prisoners. That will happen some time this month, and it is surmised that even the exceptional loveliness of the new jail won't be enough to keep the ex-husbands from resenting their lot. Still, if the famous poet who declared that walls do not a prison make was correct, the new Westchester County Detention Jail will have to be regarded as nothing worse than a sort of country club for the alimony guests.

WITH hard times, the financial racketeers have been having some hard times of their own. But, it is reported, the financial racketeering gentry feel hard times won't last forever. So they are said to be girding their loins and preparing to revive the great American game of separating the American sucker and his money.

When the suckers emerge from the sub-cellar of the depression, the financial underworld figures, they will be looking about for a chance to retrieve their losses, which means that they are about due for more losses, and the financiers of the underworld know that this is so, for suckers are like that. THE CITY BUSINESS DIRECTORY COMPANY, which collected approximately $10,000.00 from St. Louis advertisers last year, has returned.

This company, which is operated by Fred L. Burlingame, alias E. L. Rogers, purports to publish a small pocket directory of names, addresses and telephone numbers of business and professional men, besides other general information of public interest relative to the city.

In securing the listings, the company employs a crew of telephone girls in rooms 107-109 of 5173 Delmar Blvd., who call up business and professional men, saying: "This is the City Business Directory. Do you want the same listing you had last year?" Advertisers have reported to the Better Business Bureau that when called in this manner they have been under the impression that the call came from the company publishing the large established directory.

When this company operated in St. Louis about a year ago it published a directory three inches wide and seven and three-quarters inches long. This directory contained 166 pages, 83 pages of which were devoted to general information and the remaining 83 pages comprised the classified directory.

Using the City Business Directory as a page unit, the regular directory would contain 1323 pages. There were 608 different classifications. The regular directory contained 4300 classifications. There was a total of 2627 names listed. The regular directory contained 52,188 names.

After this booklet was published the Better Business Bureau, an organization supported by reputable business institutions to promote fair dealing and integrity in the written and spoken word, endeavored to ascertain the true facts in connection with the solicitation of listings for this directory, and sent questionnaires to 1250 of the listings appearing in the booklet. From the answers returned it was found that 92 per cent of those answering thought they were authorizing a listing in the regular city directory; 22 per cent did not authorize the listing at all; 25 per cent refused payment after discovering the situation.

Fred L. Burlingame, according to reports received by the local Bureau, has been arrested in Vancouver and Sacramento for vagrancy, in San Francisco for bunco game, in Portland and Fort Wayne for bad checks and in Seattle for concealing mortgaged property. While in St. Louis last year he passed bad checks to the amount of about $170.00. His complete police record is on file in the office of the Better Business Bureau.

Better Business Bureau representatives who called at the St. Louis office saw the solicitors at their desks with telephone directories open to the classified sections. The parties listed were called as previously explained.

IF YOU ARE SOLICITED BY THIS ORGANIZATION DON'T CONFUSE IT WITH THE REGULAR ESTABLISHED CITY DIRECTORY OR THE CLASSIFIED TELEPHONE DIRECTORY. PHONE THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU IF YOU WANT ANY ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.

Just how they can end it, and save money at the same time, is told in a recent book, "Financial Racketeering and How To Stop It," (Harpers).

William Leavitt Stoddard, who wrote the book, as an officer of a trust company has enjoyed the confidence of suckers, if one may be said to enjoy such things, who have told him about losing their money in financial rackets, and how. The suckers, obviously, need all the help they can get, for they are up against a game that is directed by men who know their stuff so well that they can make their customers pay big prices for nothing, and like it, and come back for more.

The thing is done something like this.

AN AVERAGE citizen who has an income and, maybe, has saved a little money, opens his mail some morning and finds out that he is more than an average citizen, a prominent citizen in fact, for he has been picked out as one of the favored few to be let in on a sure-shot proposition that will make him a lot of money. What it means is that the average citizen's name has somehow got on a sucker list. That is nothing to his discredit. Names of intelligent and discreet persons get on sucker lists, just as names of dry citizens get on bootleggers' lists. The explanation in the case of the sucker list is that a large proportion of the electorate are potential suckers and you never can tell what they will swallow until they are baited.

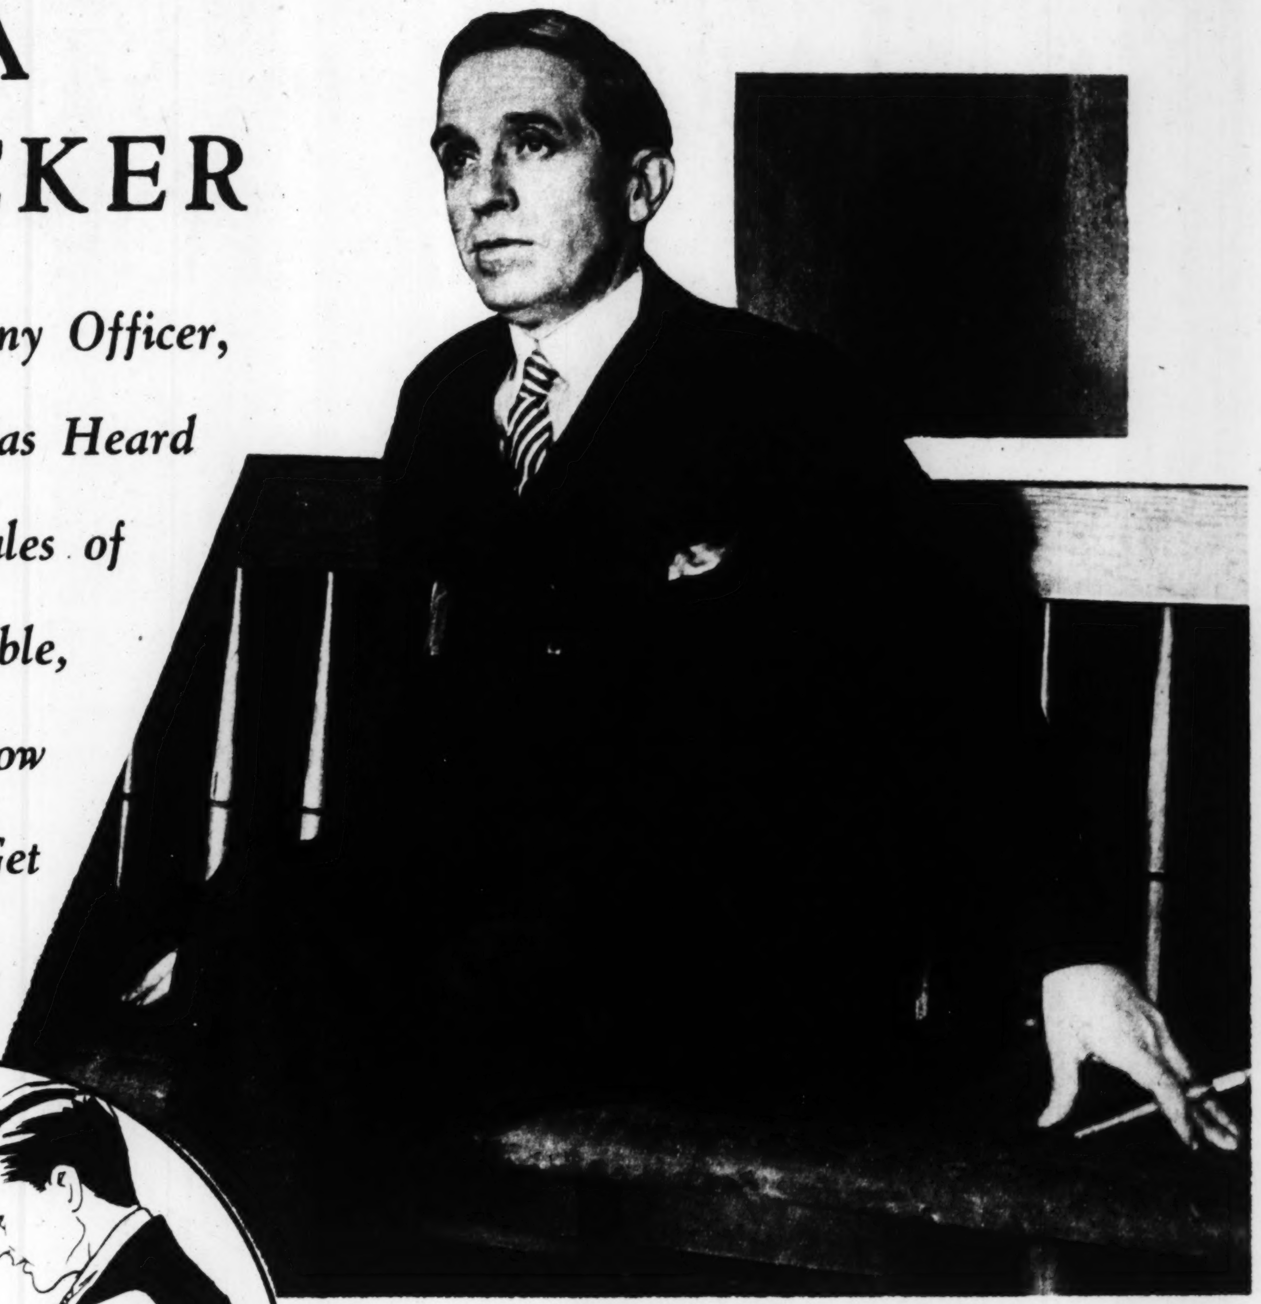
The potential sucker, in this instance, bites. So do many others. Dr. Frederick A. Cook had a million names on his sucker list. Enough of the million bit to pay the doctor $3,500,000 for oil stock that was practically worthless. Cook and some of his crowd went to prison but they kept the $3,500,000, including the portion that had been donated by the average citizen that we are talking about.

Having been hooked once, it is presumed that he will bite again and he is rated accordingly on the sucker list. The racketeers have him in mind when they try to break into the newspapers with something that will catch his eye, but in late years this has been increasingly difficult, because editors are suspicious and advertising censors are alert. So the underworld has a press of its own. Tipster sheets are issued from the financial centers. They purport to be disinterested publications for the guidance of inexperienced investors. Some of them don the garb of righteousness and crusade against speculation evils and when they have gained the confidence of their subscribers they are lured into investing in the particular stock or stocks for the boosting of which the sheet exists.

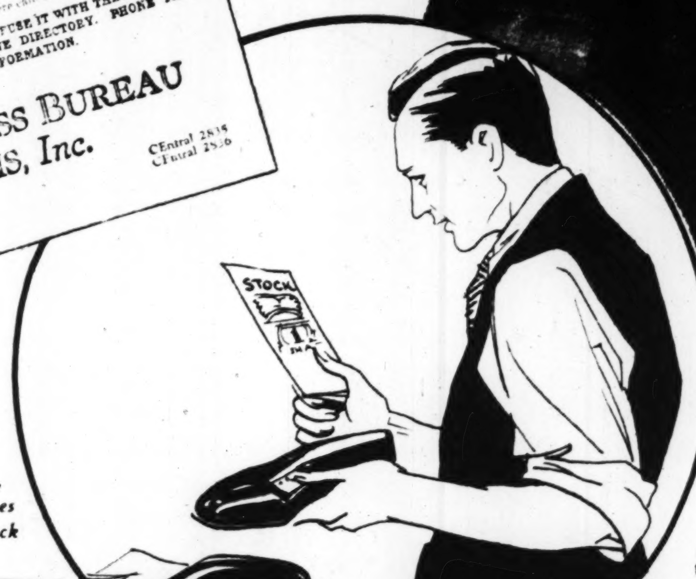
Predictions are printed that a named stock will advance and subscribers are advised that now is the time to buy. Concerted buying resulting from this advice, coupled with artificial or "washed" sales, sends the price up sure enough. The average citizen bites again and is hooked again, for the stock has been boosted far beyond its value and the decline that soon sets in is sufficiently precipitous to enable the slickers to make more by selling short than they gained on the upward swing, getting the suckers going and coming.

Comes a Ponzi. He is a wizard. He has a scheme for the purchase of International Postal Reply Coupons in a country where the exchange is low, trading them for postage stamps in a country where the rate is high and then selling the stamps at a profit. He works the sucker list and in the sixth month 20,000 men and women pour nearly $10,000,000 into his pockets. Ponzi, however, fails to buy any coupons and a judge pronounces sentence upon Ponzi as a "common, notorious thief."

When, after five years in prison, he comes out just in time to get in on the Florida land boom, he evolves a scheme for selling lots that cost him $2.11 each to investors who will make 200 per cent in 30 days by buying "units of indebtedness" at $10 per unit. The old sucker list is dug up and average citizen is told that here is a chance to get back the money that he lost on the reply coupons. Average citizen comes in. The bubble bursts.



Charles Ponzi.



A pair of shoes, patented shoe laces and a share of stock —for $6.50.

The next one looked like a sure winner. It was the Bullion Warrant scheme, which cut quite a caper in its day. The idea was to buy gold in the ground at $4.50 an ounce and then dig it out and sell it to the government at $20.67 an ounce, a nice little profit. It was well known that there was gold "in them thar mountings." Digging it out was a comparatively simple matter. Average citizen was willing to borrow money to get in on it if he could be assured that he could repay the loan from the returns. Average citizen, a small town preacher in this case, wrote to C. H. Unverzagt, manager of the enterprise, asking him if he thought it would be all right to borrow $300 or $500. Mr. Unverzagt wrote back, in a finely conservative manner, that the preacher could safely borrow any amount and be assured of paying off the loan within one year out of earnings.

Unfortunately, however, the property has been in the hands of a receiver for four years and the shafts were filled with water. Neither water nor gold was extracted and the government had to look elsewhere for the gold that it needed.

If average citizen had by this time made up his mind that get-rich-quick schemes were crooked nobody could have blamed him, but he didn't. He still was convinced that there was a way to get something for nothing. He was confirmed in this when he received an invitation to buy a pair of shoes for $6.50, with a pair of the truly remarkable patented lock tip shoe laces of the Universal Lock Tip Co. thrown in. And that wasn't all. With each pair of shoes would be given a share of the company's stock. Here it was at last, something for nothing, shoe laces and stock free with a pair of shoes, and average citizen by that time needed a pair of shoes. Of course, later on, "our company" needed some money to protect the holders of the free stock and it offered, as a favor, the privilege of buying additional stock at a stiff price. It turned out in the end that the stock was worth just about what the first share cost the investor.

IT WAS a good racket and it spread. Before long salesmen were selling blankets, candy, citrate of magnesia, cocoa, coffee, fountain pens, ginger ale, Gladstone bags, hosiery, overnight cases, raincoats, rifles, shotguns, tea, toothpaste and tire tubes.

There is nothing more certain than that a sucker, having been hooked on one proposition, will bite at another in the hope of getting his money back. Promoters of oil mergers work on this weakness with great success—for themselves. It is called the merger game. Suckers are told that fresh capital is needed to make the merger a go. They are offered the opportunity of trading their old, worn-out common stock for preferred in the merger. More than that, they are offered the additional privilege of buying, say, 25 per cent additional stock at par for cash. Average citizens looking for a chance to throw good money after bad do not have to look any further. It is an interesting fact discovered by the Postoffice Department that officers and promoters of "merged" companies never do what they advise the suckers to do.

Among "come-ons" employed by oil crooks, the dividends check is in a class by itself. It costs money, but it is other people's money, so who cares; the more it costs the more it brings back. A good stiff dividend check is good for a lot of subscriptions from the man who gets the check and the neighbors to whom he shows it. "Lookahere," says the man with the check, "this is a dividend of 200 per cent, twice as much as I put in. And it's only the first." Then he sends the check back for more stock and the neighbors clutter up the postoffice with their appeals to the oil company to be permitted to buy some of that stock. The dividend, of course, is paid out of stockholders' money.

Land hunger is such a common ailment that promoters of syndicates have no difficulty in selling town lots that are under water. Land that is at present arid, but which is to bloom like the rose through the magic of irrigation is a pleasing variant—pleasing to the promoters. The country around Las Vegas, Nevada, was going to bloom that way when Boulder Dam was finished. Suckers fell over themselves buying acreage. Irrigation never came. A little thing like topography prevented it, Las Vegas being about 900 feet higher than the top of the dam. For the only place that water runs up hill is in the prospectus of the promoter.

"Heir castles are sure to catch the average citizen, especially if his name happens to be Smith or Jones, or Drake or Hopkins." This is because, as Mr. Stoddard points out, many thousands of average American citizens are descended from Englishmen, Dutchmen or Frenchmen who may have been property owners from one to three centuries ago, and who died, leaving estates, which were, of course, administered and distributed, or otherwise wound up, in the usual way. From time to time, however, somebody discovers that an estate was not wound up in the usual way, or pretends to find it, which serves his purpose just as well. It has grown in value to fabulous millions while waiting for some one to claim it. The discoverer hustles around and finds all the people he can, now living, bearing the name of the long-deceased owner of the estate. All that they have to do before moving into the heir castle is to pay the discoverer liberally to look after their interests and keep on paying him as long as he can keep stringing them along.

THERE may be a citizen named Drake living in your neighborhood who will tell you proudly and firmly that he is a descendant of Sir Francis Drake, English sea hero, and joint heir with all the other Drakes to the great estate and gold from the Spanish treasure ships that Sir Francis accumulated. He knows this because a slicker has told him so. For years he has been paying good money to have his claim pressed. Nothing has come of it yet, but bye and bye—

Sometimes the estates are in this country. The Hopkinses have one—to get. It was left by one Mark Hopkins, a California settler. It amounts now to between $90,000,00 and $300,000,000, which is wickedly sequestered in San Francisco banks. The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the "heirs" have no case, but what of that!

There is property in the heart of New York City, including the Trinity Church holdings, with a value between $16,000,000 and $8,000,000,000,000, according to who does the valuing. This property belongs to the Edwardses of the land, descendants of Robert Edwards, a pre-Revolutionary sea captain. So, at least, they have been told. They must believe it, the way they have paid crooks to get it for them. Two of these crooks have been sent to prison, but others have taken their places. Edwardses still make pilgrimages to New York to pick out the skyscrapers that they will take for their share when the big distribution

IT'S HARDER to START FROM the TOP

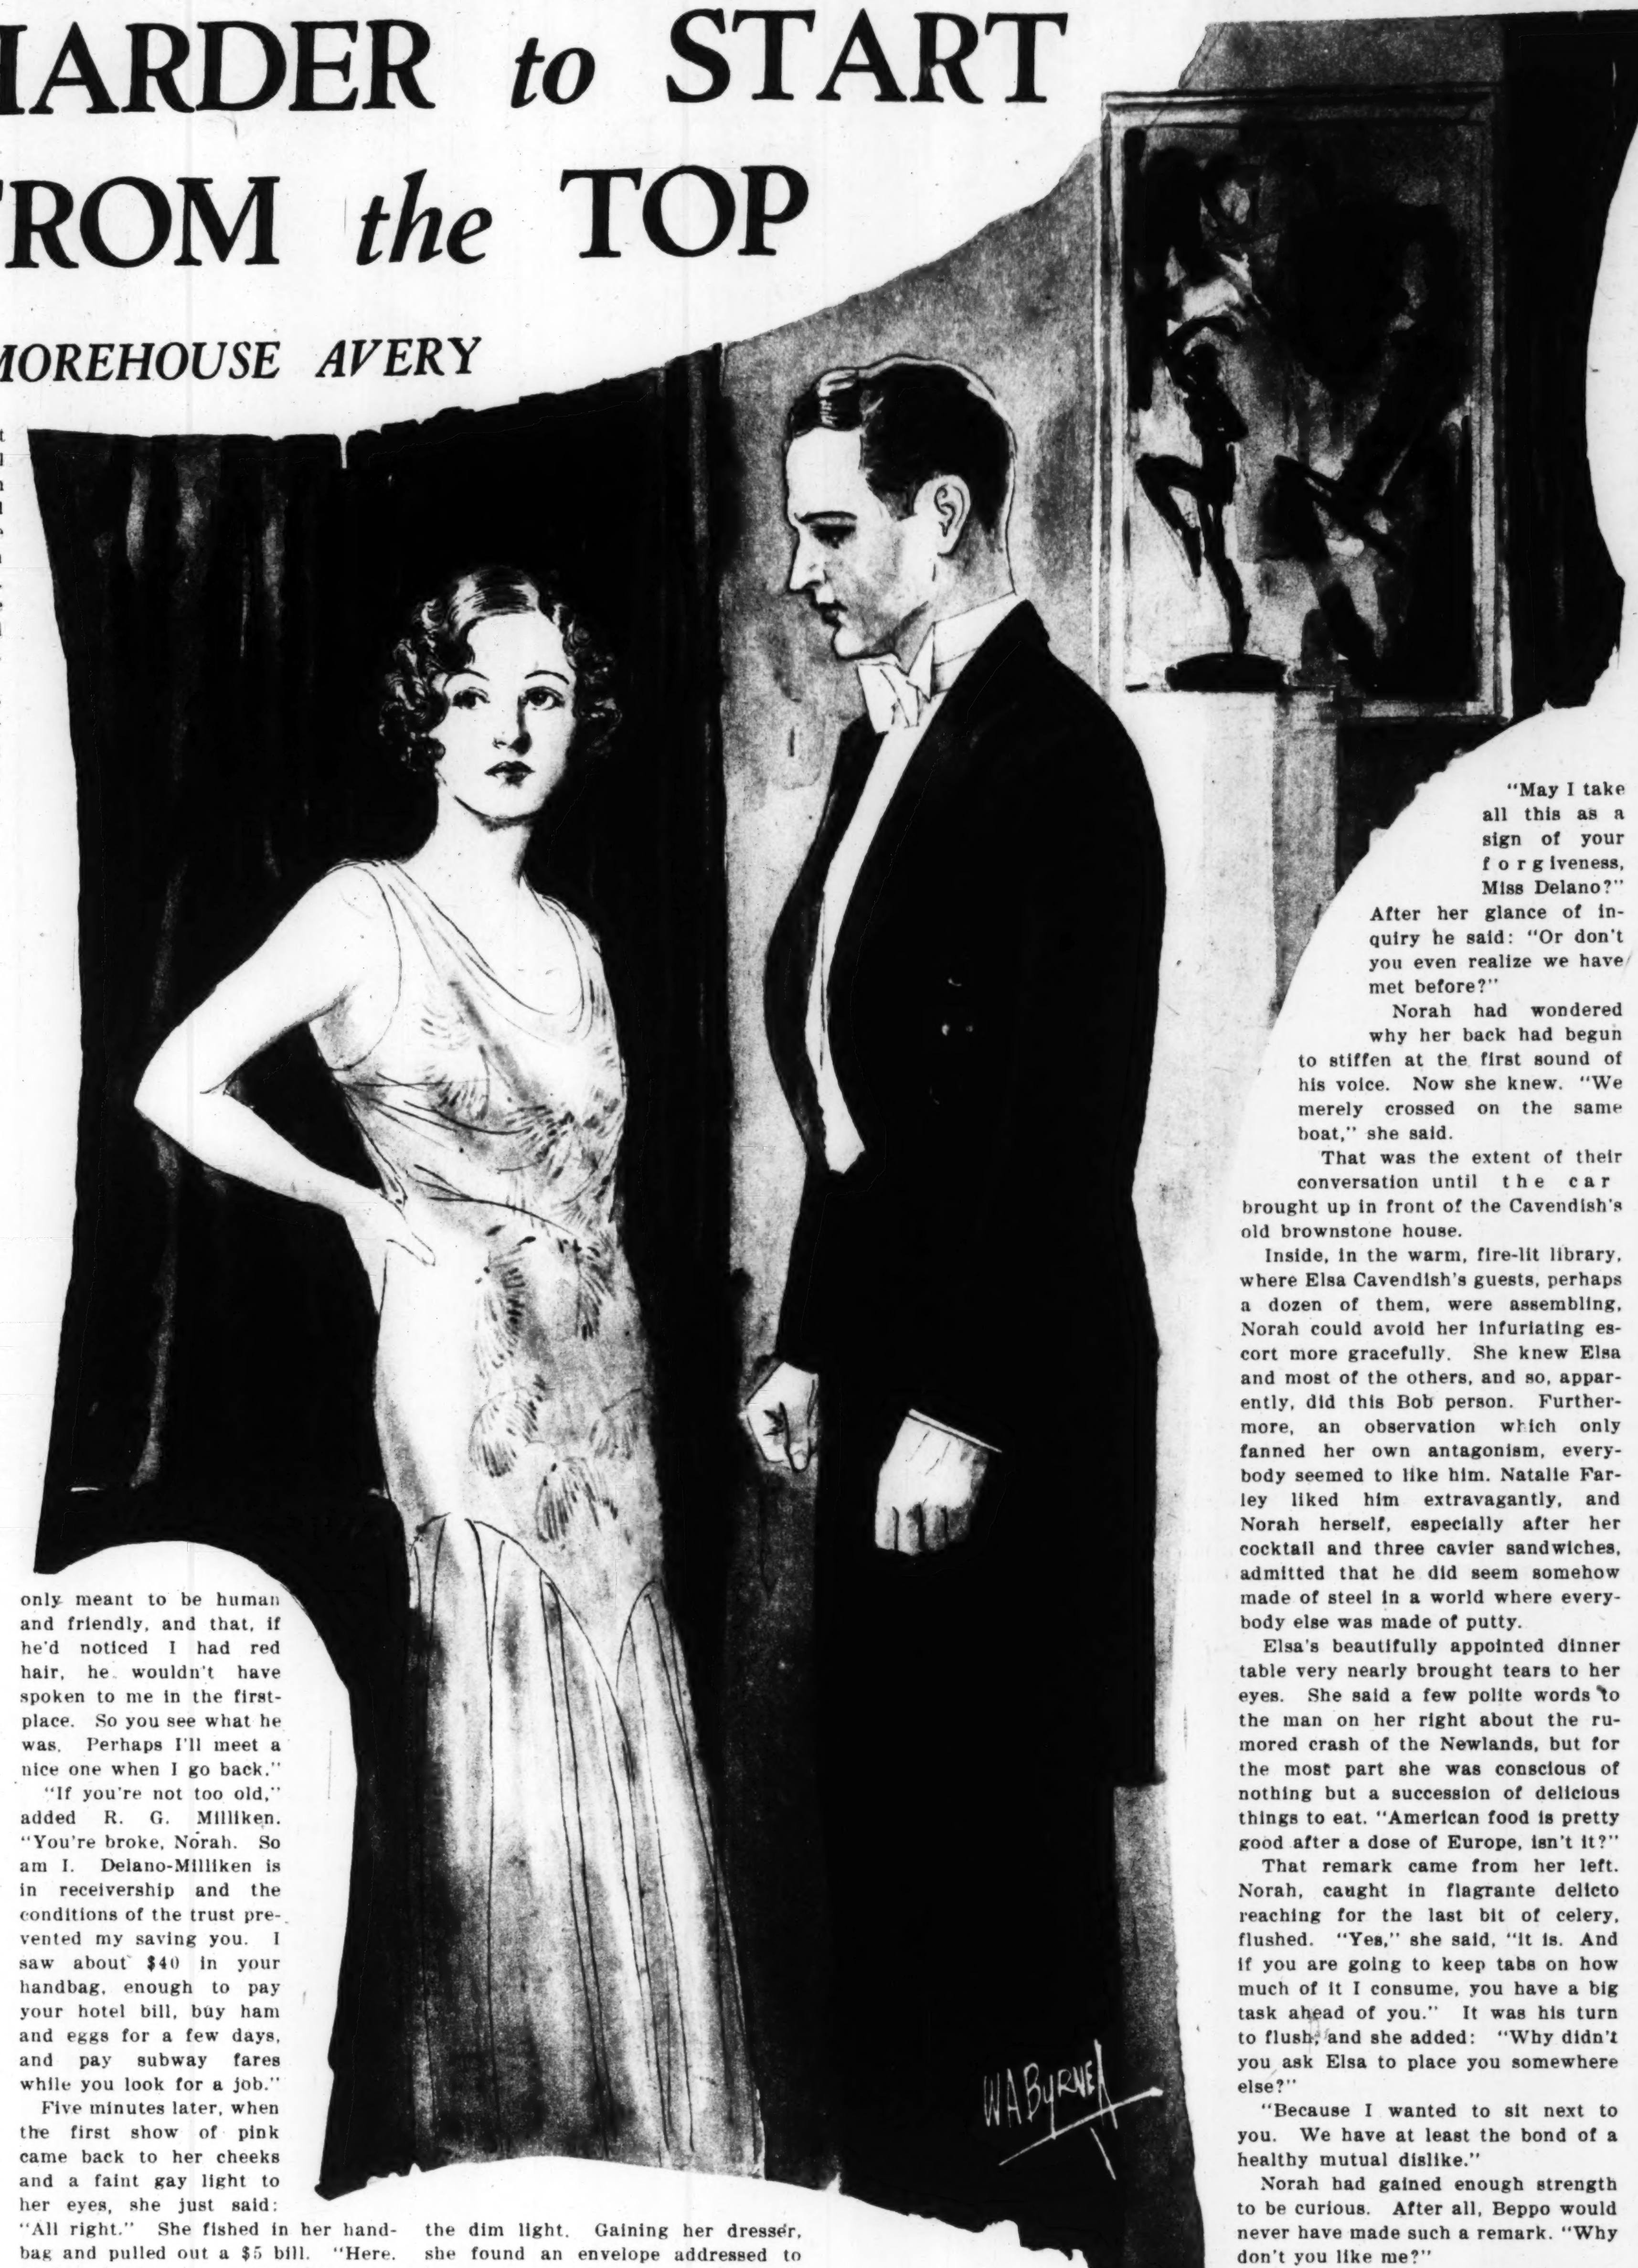
By STEPHEN MOREHOUSE AVERY



"Didn't it strike you as strange to find me living in one forlorn room?" she asked.

THE pigeon-strut pomp of the Hotel Renton's little room clerk had collapsed by this time. "I've shown you seven suites, Miss Delano. There's only one left, higher up and facing the east. You might like that."

Norah's shrug indicated that the possibility was remote. After five gay and carefree years among the bright places of Europe she was in no mood to like anything New York had to offer, not even if it was good. "We can look," she said. "If it faces the east, that's something."

The higher-up suite facing the east would do, and Norah sank into its deepest chair. The room clerk said: "Shall I have your trunks sent up, Miss Delano?"

She nodded. "My trunk, you mean. The other 17 of them are sitting down on the pier, and they can sit there until Mr. Milliken goes down and pays the duty. Will you ask downstairs if Mr. Milliken has telephoned for me yet?"

Norah had radioed Mr. Milliken from the boat that she would put up at the Renton. She supposed his spite was satisfied, now that he had dragged her back to all this bang, bad taste, beefsteak and Broadway. But for R. G. Milliken she might still be in Paris enjoying her favorite hock cup and partridge in a particular corner of the old Meurice. Her darling Dodo, none other than the young, landed and pleasantly renegade Lord Chiswich himself, would be beaming adoration and coronets across the table at her. Or she might soon be having tea in a chalet on the white-clad side of a Swiss Alp, with the prospect before her of a thrilling homeward ski run beside her darling but dignified Baron von Thunfeld, whom she chose to call "Tooner."

And she might soon after be dangerously swooning through a Viennese waltz and a Mediterranean midnight in the arms of Commandante Principe Aureliano di Tuliaferno, better known to Norah, at least, as Beppo.

BUT Mr. Milliken's depressing cablegrams, trailing her from Scotland to Biarritz, had spoiled it all. "Business outlook continues bad—Advise earliest possible return to New York—Milliken." They had been mild enough at first and could be ignored, but they became angrier as time went on and ended with a vicious ultimatium: "Marry somebody—Starve—Or come home—Blast you—Will not forward another cent." And that was the sort of grim and stingy old Scrooge to whom a girl's well-meaning father had intrusted entire supervision of her income and control of all her Delano-Milliken Fire Clay Products shares.

Norah watched Marya, her Czecho-Slovakian maid, begin to unpack her bags, removing first of all her three large pictures of Dodo, Tooner and Beppo. "Put the darlings on my dressing table, Marya. I ought to have married one of them, don't you think?"

"Um," said Marya. She gave Norah the clamoring telephone. "Um!"

"Yes, I know," replied Norah. "That is R. G. Milliken."

Before the entrance of a big, ugly lower Broadway building she paid off her taxi and went inside to wait for the old man and her disagreeable fate. She did not have to wait for it. Milliken crossed the lobby immediately, and shook hands with her. "So you finally got here, Norah. Glad of it. Load off my mind."

They got into an elevator to go up to the Bankers Club for luncheon. That was Norah's suggestion. R. G. Milliken's suggestion had been Tony's. In the elevator he seemed preoccupied and ill at ease. "You're looking well, Norah. D'you have an exciting time on the boat? Or weren't there any loose men?"

"The only one who tried to be loose I put in his place soon enough," she said. "Just because I was alone on deck one night he thought he had an invitation to come and talk to me. That's the way with these forcing young American business men. No subtlety, or finesse, or tact. When I told this one I didn't like him, he followed me all the way around the deck berating me . . . 'damned little expatriate wastrel' . . . I don't see anything funny about it, Mr. Milliken."

"Maybe not," said the old man. "But if you see me grinning these days, for any reason, you'd better let me make the best of it. What did the feller say?"

"He said plenty else. He said he'd only meant to be human and friendly, and that, if he'd noticed I had red hair, he wouldn't have spoken to me in the first place. So you see what he was. Perhaps I'll meet a nice one when I go back."

"If you're not too old," added R. G. Milliken. "You're broke, Norah. So am I. Delano-Milliken is in receivership and the conditions of the trust prevented my saving you. I saw about $40 in your handbag, enough to pay your hotel bill, buy ham and eggs for a few days, and pay subway fares while you look for a job."

Five minutes later, when the first show of pink came back to her cheeks and a faint gay light to her eyes, she just said: "All right." She fished in her handbag and pulled out a $5 bill. "Here. We'll go 50-50 on this luncheon check."

Old man Milliken tossed the money back to her. "Your hair is red, all right, Norah. For the first time in your life I am willing to admit that you are a Delano."

Climbing the dark stairway to her hall room above a Lexington avenue florist shop after eight days of being thrown out of what seemed to her half the offices in New York, Norah didn't care whether she was a Delano or a chimpanzee. Norah had exactly nine American pennies and two French 50-centime pieces left in the world, and she hadn't eaten, really eaten, but once in the last three days.

The once was when she happened into Betty Newlands in front of an upper Fifth avenue shop, where Betty was buying evening slippers and where Norah had been asking for a job in the hosiery department. Betty suggested, "as long as one had to be bored with eating," that they pop into a grill-room for a quick bite.

"And, Norah, darling, do tell me about this heavenly Englishman who's been dangling castles and titles before your blase eyes and" . . .

Norah had got in her order for soup, two lamb chops, peas, salad and pie and was willing to consider this glamorous description of her dear old Dodo. She smiled, remembering his cablegram. He threatened, unless she took the next boat back to Europe, to come over and "fetch" her.

Of course, there had been characteristic cables from Tooner and Beppo, too, Tooner's restrained and formal, Beppo's extravagantly offering to "sweem the ocean. I carry you off to Milano."

Well, she would have welcomed being fetched, or even carried off to Milano, now. She unlocked her hall room door hopelessly and turned on the dim light. Gaining her dresser, she found an envelope addressed to her in old man Milliken's hand. It contained $10.

She shook her head and wrote a brief note: "Thanks, but I don't need this." She would have very nearly stolen $10 just then from anybody else.

But she had to go it alone as far as any help from the world of New York she had once known was concerned. Something had happened to it. It wasn't there. Those who remained, when she mentioned getting a job, were either discouraging or painfully humorous. And after all, a girl couldn't ask them out and out for money or food.

SHE lived for almost 10 days after her luncheon with Betty on a diet of crackers, cheese and milk, and during that time she sold, for a few dollars, all told, her clock, her perfume bottles, her hand mirror, anything she had that the man over on the corner of Third avenue would buy. She paid her room rent by the sale of her fitted bag and on assurance that she'd been promised a job next day. She'd promised it to herself. She felt sure that if she just kept on going into enough business buildings and trying all the promising offices, something eventually was sure to happen. If the people listened to her at all, they stopped listening when she admitted she couldn't even type.

That next afternoon she found herself in the Importers' Exchange Building on Madison avenue, and she had pretty well exhausted its possibilities as well as her own.

The name, Harvester-Brooks, Importers, and a list of foreign offices in Hamburg, Milan, Paris, London, on each of several doors, caught her eye. She stood trying to decide which was the entrance and finally put out her hand for a doorknob and one last try. Then all the doors, the whole corridor, in fact, began spinning wildly around her head. She slipped into an almost welcome darkness.

Norah found herself sitting rather ludicrously on the floor, with an Irish elevator boy bending over her solicitously. "What a nose dive you took, little one! Did you trip?"

"I suppose so," said Norah. She got to her feet and went down with the boy in the elevator. Somehow, she walked across to Lexington and up to the florist shop.

In the hallway, before she gained her room, she heard the telephone ringing violently. Her landlady bustled half way up the stairs. "You'd better answer that, young lady. Somebody has been calling you all afternoon."

It was Betty Newlands. Betty wanted her to take her place at a dinner party that night, Elsa Cavendish's, in the East Seventy-third street house. "I've phoned Elsa and the man I was going with. They'll both be delighted. He'll stop by for you at 8." Norah didn't catch the name. The only thing she caught without possibility of error was the word dinner. "Oh, it's so good of you, Norah. Dad has ordered all the Newlands to remain at home tonight for a family conference. I don't know what it means, but it sounds ominous."

Norah was ready at 8. She waited down at the foot of the stairs, and almost at once a shiny town car drew up. A man, perhaps seeming taller in his opera hat than he actually was, got out and came to greet her. He smiled and murmured something as he helped her into his car, but Norah scarcely heard or noticed. Her mind was occupied with other thoughts.

"May I take all this as a sign of your forgiveness, Miss Delano?" After her glance of inquiry he said: "Or don't you even realize we have met before?"

Norah had wondered why her back had begun to stiffen at the first sound of his voice. Now she knew. "We merely crossed on the same boat," she said.

That was the extent of their conversation until the car brought up in front of the Cavendish's old brownstone house.

Inside, in the warm, fire-lit library, where Elsa Cavendish's guests, perhaps a dozen of them, were assembling, Norah could avoid her infuriating escort more gracefully. She knew Elsa and most of the others, and so, apparently, did this Bob person. Furthermore, an observation which only fanned her own antagonism, everybody seemed to like him. Natalie Farley liked him extravagantly, and Norah herself, especially after her cocktail and three cavier sandwiches, admitted that he did seem somehow made of steel in a world where everybody else was made of putty.

Elsa's beautifully appointed dinner table very nearly brought tears to her eyes. She said a few polite words to the man on her right about the rumored crash of the Newlands, but for the most part she was conscious of nothing but a succession of delicious things to eat. "American food is pretty good after a dose of Europe, isn't it?"

That remark came from her left. Norah, caught in flagrante delicto reaching for the last bit of celery, flushed. "Yes," she said, "it is. And if you are going to keep tabs on how much of it I consume, you have a big task ahead of you." It was his turn to flush, and she added: "Why didn't you ask Elsa to place you somewhere else?"

"Because I wanted to sit next to you. We have at least the bond of a healthy mutual dislike."

Norah had gained enough strength to be curious. After all, Beppo would never have made such a remark. "Why don't you like me?"

"I told you why . . . on the boat. You're a bad type. You have too much pride and nothing to back it up with. I doubt if you have any mind above Paris gowns or any ability above arranging a social calendar and overdrawing your bank account" . . .

"Thanks," said Norah.

When they rose to return to the library she couldn't avoid being left with him for a moment in a warm inglenook.

"But didn't it strike you as strange, Mr. Whatever-your-name-is, to find such a person as you consider me living in one forlorn room over a florist shop?"

"To tell the truth, it did," he admitted. "What are you doing in New York?"

"Looking desperately for a job," said Norah, "to keep from starving."

"Really?"

"Really."

HE TOOK out his wallet and found a business card. "Take this card to Miss Boyle tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and tell her I said to put you to work learning the files."

Norah took the card and read it. "Robert H. Harvester, Harvester-Brooks, Importers."

"I wouldn't work in the same building with you," she said, "if this were the only job in New York."

But the next morning she called on Miss Boyle, who ruled the gloomy outer office of Harvester-Brooks.

"Well," said Miss Boyle, after a scornful examination of Norah, "I think the young man must be out of his mind."

Two months later, Mr. Robert H. Harvester called Norah into his office and put her to translating correspondence from his foreign suppliers. "It was really your linguistic ability that made me engage you, Miss Delano Otherwise" . . .

"I didn't suppose," said Norah, "you wanted me just to look at . . . sir." That "sir" was so reluctant that he burst out laughing.

She didn't mean to antagonize him, but she couldn't help it. There was just something about him, even when she saw him coming into the office every day more drawn and haggard about the eyes and staying later and later after the others had gone. He said the wrong thing, and then she did, and then they both glared.

Mr. Harvester took Miss Boyle into his office with him as he passed through this morning. He settled heavily behind his desk and after a minute, almost as if he were afraid to ask, said: "Is there anything from Milan, Miss Boyle?"

"I don't think so, sir. I'll ask Miss Delano."

HE SHOOK his head. "Things are very bad, Miss Boyle. I am not sure we can pull through. If we don't get that silk from Milan at our figure, I know we won't. Tuliaferno wants a higher price, and I can't pay it. Yet I can't get the silk anywhere else. If he ever finds that out, we're done for. Bring me the correspondence, Miss Boyle."

"I'll get it from Miss Delano, sir."

"By the way, how is she getting along?"

Miss Boyle drew her shoulders together and walked out of the office without answering.

When Norah went in she found Bob Harvester with his fingers jammed distractedly into his hair. "Will you shut the door and come here and sit down, Norah? I mean, Miss Delano. I've got to talk to somebody about this Milan business, or I'll go mad. Here's the latest letter. He says . . . he's the director of the artificial silk manufacturers' syndicate there, you know . . . he says he will give his answer in person in New York almost as soon as this letter arrives. He says his answer will depend on certain conditions as he finds them here, and I take that to mean he is dealing with my main competitor, Mercati Brothers. If Mercati can pay more for the contract than we can, we're sunk . . . that's all. I'll be the only Harvester in three generations to let this business down."

"You won't let it down. Don't worry. I'm perfectly sure they will sign a delivery agreement with you for another three years."

"But you don't realize whom we have to deal with, Norah . . . one of the richest, shrewdest, hardest men in Italy."

"He never seemed so hard or shrewd to me," said Norah. "Just a little too violently romantic, that's all."

He stared at her. "You know Prince di Tuliaferno?"

"Of course. But I don't call him that. I call him Beppo. And I know he will sign the contract, because I wrote to him two weeks ago and asked him to."

BOB HARVESTER had one more flare left in him. "You what? You wrote . . . over the signature of this firm?"

"No. I wrote over my own signature, on my own blue note paper. I just said: 'Dear Beppo, I am personally interested in Harvester-Brooks.' That is all I said, except that I said: 'And if you don't do exactly what Mr. Harvester wants, I shall never tango with you again or teach you any more English.' And I told him there was no other place in the world you could get that much and that kind of silk, and that I didn't want him to be a pig about it." She waited a minute. Something terrible seemed to be enveloping them both. "Why, what on earth is the matter?"

"Nothing," he said finally. "Nothing is the matter. You made a valiant little effort to help me, that's all. It wasn't . . . precisely the sort of information I wanted di Tuliaferno to have, however. Would you send Miss Boyle to me as you go out, Norah?"

Miss Boyle was with him nearly two hours. She emerged pale and with her lips in a hard line and went straight to her typewriter. Presently she brought some carbon copies to Norah. "You'd better file these, Miss Delano. Also, you'd better read them."

Norah glanced through the copies. One was a call for an emergency board of directors' meeting. "I have inadvertently allowed Tuliaferno to learn our urgent need of the Milan silk contract and it is quite certain he will not renew except at his own ruinous figure. Our hope of pulling through the difficult period therefore" . . . The second sheet was the brief, formal resignation of Robert H. Harvester as president and general manager of Harvester-Brooks.

Norah went blindly into his office She found him with his head in hands, but he jumped up at once, as ashamed to be caught like that, and

Khalatoff, president of the All Russian Publishing House, she found, she says, that she had come "to a country where an industrial photographer is accorded the rank of artist and prophet." The Russians, she explains, "are an innately artistic people. They consider the artist an important factor in the five-year plan, and the photographer the artist of the Machine Age. It is for the artist to stir the imagination of the people with the grandeur of the industrial program." The Soviet officials examined her work appreciatively, and welcomed her cordially. They decreed that not only should she be permitted to take the pictures she wanted, but she should be the guest of the Government during her stay, with all her expenses paid. And they provided her with credentials and authorizations which were able to command for her just about everything obtainable in their country, from train accommodations to sacks of sugar.

With a woman interpreter, she set out on a 5000-mile tour, in which she visited Dnieper Dam, a state farm of 272,000 acres at Rostov, a cement factory at Novorossisk on the Black Sea and a steel plant and a tractor factory at Stalingrad. "I came in here to ask you not to send those letters."

"Why not? What's the use of waiting for the inevitable? Where are you going?" Her turning away had an air of finality, which he noted at once. "Are you leaving here? For good, I mean?"

"No," said Norah. "I'm not leaving . . . unless you fire me. I'm not the sort who quits . . . even if you are."

"Get out!" He almost shouted at her, but she didn't move. "Nobody can call me a quitter in my office. You're fired." Still she didn't move, and he crossed the room toward her, white with rage and with bitterness and despair. "Will you go when I tell you to, you confounded, red-headed little vixen . . . you" . . . comes off. The Smith swindle promised for a while to top them all because there are so many Smiths. It was started by a man who had been selling aprons to women. He discovered a Smith estate of $1,740.43 cents. Not very big as fake estates go, but getting bigger all the time. All that he asked was $2 for investigating and fixing up the papers. The Smiths came in 100,000 strong, or some such number. There was a chance that the Smythes might be let in as step-children, and some of them were getting their $2 bills ready when the Government put a stop to it. The Government is always doing that, ruining perfectly good heir castles, but new ones are alway springing up. The average citizen who feels that he must have an heir castle can always find what he is looking for.

The average citizen who is particular and wants something tangible for his money can get it in the form of a "participating certificate," which entitles him to participate in the profits of an undertaking, if and when. The tangible thing in it is the gilt-edged certainty that he will share in the losses.

The Spanish prisoner trick is venerable and should be senile by now, but it is still verile enough to occasionally catch a grandchild of one of the original suckers.

About all that Mr. Stoddard can do is to tell the unwary world where the traps are set and what they look like, and he does that very well. He warns suckers everywhere that there are slickers in the land. They will continue in the land a long time. Courts can't do much. The law is too slow. The fast-stepping slickers get the money before the law gets them. They get something like $2,000,000,000 a year. Nobody can stop it except the people who pay the $2,000,000,000 a year. They can stop it by heeding the Better Business Bureau admonition, repeated and emphasized by Mr. Stoddard, to "investigate before you invest."

Khalatoff, president of the All Russian Publishing House, she found, she says, that she had come "to a country where an industrial photographer is accorded the rank of artist and prophet." The Russians, she explains, "are an innately artistic people. They consider the artist an important factor in the five-year plan, and the photographer the artist of the Machine Age. It is for the artist to stir the imagination of the people with the grandeur of the industrial program." The Soviet officials examined her work appreciatively, and welcomed her cordially. They decreed that not only should she be permitted to take the pictures she wanted, but she should be the guest of the Government during her stay, with all her expenses paid. And they provided her with credentials and authorizations which were able to command for her just about everything obtainable in their country, from train accommodations to sacks of sugar.

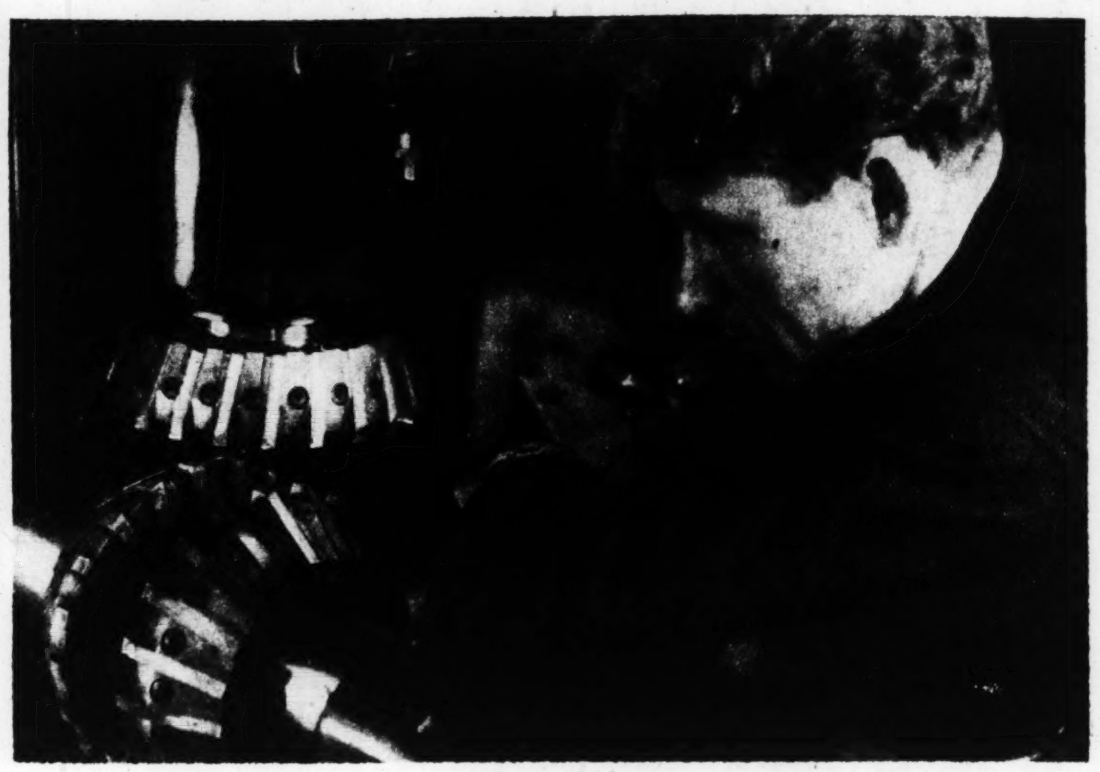
With a woman interpreter, she set out on a 5000-mile tour, in which she visited Dnieper Dam, a state farm of 272,000 acres at Rostov, a cement factory at Novorossisk on the Black Sea and a steel plant and a tractor factory at Stalingrad. Before leaving Moscow she had taken photographs in a lace factory, where a plain, middle-aged woman worker had wept with joy at being chosen for one of the subjects.

It was a trip full of hardships, hard work and exaltation. The American girl, who not long before had been walking sedately in the commencement procession at Cornell University, perched precariously on a plank above the Dnieper River, focusing her camera on a detail of the mighty dam; tramped all day after a herd of horses, trying to snap them in artistic attitudes; climbed into the cab of a crane to photograph a white-hot stream of metal in a steel plant.

THERE were long, tedious struggles with lights, so that dramatic values of iron and stone and earth, human bodies and attitudes should be made visible. When Miss Bourke-White takes a photograph, she composes a picture.

The people themselves were delightful photographic subjects; they assumed naturally, the photographer says, dramatic and expressive attitudes.

There was often a scarcity of palatable food, and Miss Bourke-White became so tired of the emergency rations of canned beans she had brought from Germany that on the train leaving Russia she ate eight eggs for breakfast.



A Russian worker.

The baggage had to be constantly guarded at railway stations. When the photographer was at Dnieperstroi, the house where she was an overnight guest was robbed. Her room was not entered, but the two American engineers who were her hosts lost all their clothes and could only stick their heads out of the door of their room to bid her good-by.

Despite her armament of official papers, there were some things the honored visitor couldn't get in Russia. A square yard of black cloth to cover her camera while she focused it, for example. Her focusing cloth was blown into the river at Dnieper Dam, and she was never able to find another one during the rest of her tour; she had to take the rest of her pictures under coats and blouses.

In Moscow Miss Bourke-White was a guest one evening at an informal party in a one-room apartment. She danced with many young Russians to the music of a phonograph, and as they talked to her she nodded and smiled, although she had no idea what they were saying. Weeks later she discovered that five of them had proposed to her—and had taken her nods and smiles as acceptance. One of them had hurried to the Marriage and Divorce Bureau the next morning and divorced his wife on the strength of their "engagement."

Among the notables whom she met was Semionova, the adored ballerina. Perhaps the greatest dancer of the day, a figure of magic behind the footlights, Semionova was hardly recognizable when she appeared at a motion picture studio in street clothes to be photographed by the American visitor; a dowdy raincoat and clumsy shoes almost made one forget her amazing grace.

Another contact was with Pudovkin, director of the famous moving picture, "Storm Over Asia." He called on Miss Bourke-White at midnight and they talked photography until dawn. Incidentally, she discovered any hour is a proper calling time in the new Russia.

When Miss Bourke-White returned to Moscow at the end of her 5000-mile tour, she had 800 films, which had to be developed and inspected by the censor before they could leave the country. She was afraid to ask for official help in the developing work because she had an idea that the red tape involved would delay the business for months. So, with the help of her interpreter, she managed to get permission to use the dark room in a small movie studio. Fearful that if the studio staff saw how many films she had, there would be annoying delay, even with this arrangement, she worked all one night, assisted by a studio technician, and developed those 800 films.

SHORTLY after daybreak she and her pictures were out of the studio and on the way to her hotel. There she worked all day without stopping for sleep or meals, rinsing and drying the films; she rinsed them in her bath tub and dried them on cords strung across the room. They were then turned over to the Soviet authorities for inspection.

While Miss Bourke-White visited Russia strictly in the capacity of industrial photographer, and makes no pretense of having engaged in sociological, political or economic surveys, she inevitably formed certain general impressions of the Soviet experiment. She sums them up in 10 words: "Little food, no shoes, terrible inefficiency, steady progress, great hope."

stood scowling at her. "Well? What do you want?"

"I came in here to ask you not to send those letters."

"Why not? What's the use of waiting for the inevitable? Where are you going?" Her turning away had an air of finality, which he noted at once. "Are you leaving here? For good, I mean?"

"No," said Norah. "I'm not leaving . . . unless you fire me. I'm not the sort who quits . . . even if you are."

"Get out!" He almost shouted at her, but she didn't move. "Nobody can call me a quitter in my office. You're fired." Still she didn't move, and he crossed the room toward her, white with rage and with bitterness and despair. "Will you go when I tell you to, you confounded, red-headed little vixen . . . you" . . . He stared down at her with bewilderment driving all the anger from his eyes. Then he picked her up and folded her in his arms. "Good lord, my dearest child, what are we doing? What is this?"

Norah was not giving answers to anything. There was no answer to anything. She had just put up her arms, closed her eyes, drawn a deep breath, and that was that. There would never be anything or anyone else. She waited until he kissed her. Then she slipped from his arms and ran out of the room, out of the office, ran all the way home, so that she could do what she must do quickly and without counting the cost.

AS SHE dashed up the stairs she heard the telephone ringing in the corridor. She thought she knew who it was, for her search of the morning paper had been rewarded with the item she sought: "Prince di Tuliaferno has arrived from Milan and will stop at the St. Clair."

But it wasn't Beppo who answered her weak hello. It was R. G. Milliken and he wanted her to say when she would lunch with him, at the Bankers Club, the Plaza, the Ritz, or any place she cared to name. Delano-Milliken Fire Clay Products had been that day dismissed by the receivers as sound, solvent and back on the road to prosperity. "Your shares are worth something . . . and so are you, Norah."

Norah was glad, glad for the sake of her father's name and for the sake of old man Milliken. For herself it didn't matter much. As soon as the excited old fellow rang off, she took a slip of paper from her bag and called the number of the St. Clair Hotel.

"Noramina! Carissima! Bella! Bella!" The receiver burred in her ear with the fervor of Beppo's Italian. "I come for you, Noramina. I am sick on the sea . . . mio Dio . . . eight day. All for you. I do not find you. Speak with me. It is Beppo."

With his ebony stick and his rimless monocle and his dashing opera cape, Beppo was no small sensation on Lexington avenue.

"We shall have dinner at Luigi's, Beppo, and then we shall find some place to dance." They arrived at the glassed-in roof garden.

She wished Beppo was ~~not so~~ proud of his English. "Listen just to me, Noramina. I take you away from this city, which is only for slaves. You work . . . bah! . . . that is horrible! I take you away with me to Milano."

"But I could not leave my poor friends unhappy, Beppo. They are unhappy because they cannot get your Milan silk. You are unhappy, you say, because you cannot have me. You have silk and I have me. Let's trade."

She followed the direction of Beppo's gaze and saw a short, dark but imposing little man talking to the head waiter. It struck her that he was not unlike Beppo, in some subtle way.

"Ah! That is Signor Mercati, Noramina, who is why I have come to New York. With him I have a big business, maybe."

"But I thought you came just to see me, Beppo." She was trying to remember where she had heard the name Mercati recently. Was it Bob Harvester's competitor? Beppo excused himself for a moment and joined the other. Then someone came rushing to her.

"Norah! Where have you been all these weeks?" It was Betty Newlands. "Dad's not going broke after all and a crowd of us are celebrating. Come on over to the apartment with us after this. With whom? Prince who? Well, bring him along!"

Beppo returned to her, seeming preoccupied and pensive, like one whose plans must be remade all of a sudden. Presently he said: "Now what is it you wish from your Beppo, Noramina? That he give again the contract to your Mr. Harvester-Brooks? Well . . . for you I do that. For my little Noramina, and she go with me back to Milano and be Princess."

At the Newlands' apartment they made a lion of Beppo and his reacting good spirits quickly let out that he was taking a Princess back to Milan. "Norah!" They gathered around her.

A maid came for Betty. She went into the entrance foyer. "I just ran in for a minute, Betty. I'm not dressed or anything, but"——

"Bob! Good lord, come in and have a drink. You're as pale as a"——

"Is Norah here, Betty?"

"Of course she's here. Both of them. Isn't it grand? Norah the Princess of Tuliaferno? She's sailing tomorrow for Milan."

Bob Harvester said nothing for a long time, and then finally: "I thought that was the idea. Only she's not." He followed Betty into the living room. "But do you know Prince di Tuliaferno?"

"We have not met before," said Beppo, "but we meet soon again." The two of them had a moment aside. "I come to your business in the morning, Mister Harvester-Brooks, and we fix up our little matter quick . . . just like so."

"Well, hardly as quick as that, Tuliaferno. Harvester-Brooks may go on the rocks for it, but our original offer to you was final . . . and it didn't include any extras in the way of Princesses. Norah is going to stay in New York, contract or no contract."

"AH," sighed Beppo at last, "you Americans, you are hard . . . but you are better than Mercati, who is a swindle and a liar. I come to your business in the morning just the same, Mr. Harvester-Brooks. You know, that Noramina, she make a fine Princess. But I think she have a little too much in the what you call noodle to make me a good Italian wife."

Norah threw back the windows of Betty's bedroom and stepped out upon a balcony.

She reached back to steady herself against the wall. Her fingers touched the fabric of his coat.

"Bob," she said, "it's so bright up here. Does it ever get really dark in New York?"

"Sometimes," he said. "Sometimes, just before the dawn."

At his home on North Lake avenue, Deputy Sheriff Sherman has been nursing body and limbs streaked with cuts and abrasions.

"The boys, without noticing how late in the afternoon it was, got so far up they couldn't turn back," he explained. "They had made an almost unbelievable climb. That ladder by the side of the second falls must be at least 100 feet high—possibly 125 feet high. Near the top it swings out like the upper part of the letter S, and they negotiated it without difficulty. But when we men got to it in the darkness it seemed each moment like it was ready to give way. It nearly balked us.

"The climb we made up the cliff was just a chance. Little Johnny Swafford said it could be done. Game to the core, he took the lead. Just what a task it was may be gained from the fact that we climbed from 7 o'clock in the evening until 12:30 in the morning before we even got within sight of the trapped boy. It was 4 a. m. before we got to a point from which a rope could be let down to his side. He didn't seem to be so badly frightened, but he was very thirsty and ready to eat."

And Johnny Swafford?

"Aw," he said, "it wasn't so tur'ble. We just had to go in an' get him."

Then he added as an afterthought:

"I never was up so late in all my life!"

He didn't want any applause, any commendation, nor did he want his "pitcher tuk." Kids are expected to do brave things at times!

Incidentally, Deputies Sherman and Lindamood aren't through with their troubles yet. They're all broken out with poison ivy, acquired in their climb.

Eaton Canyon, it might be added, now is closed.

The Nineteenth of a Series of Art Objects Being Given a Special Showing at the St. Louis Art Museum.

THIS portrait by Jean Clouet is the nineteenth in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the portrait follows:

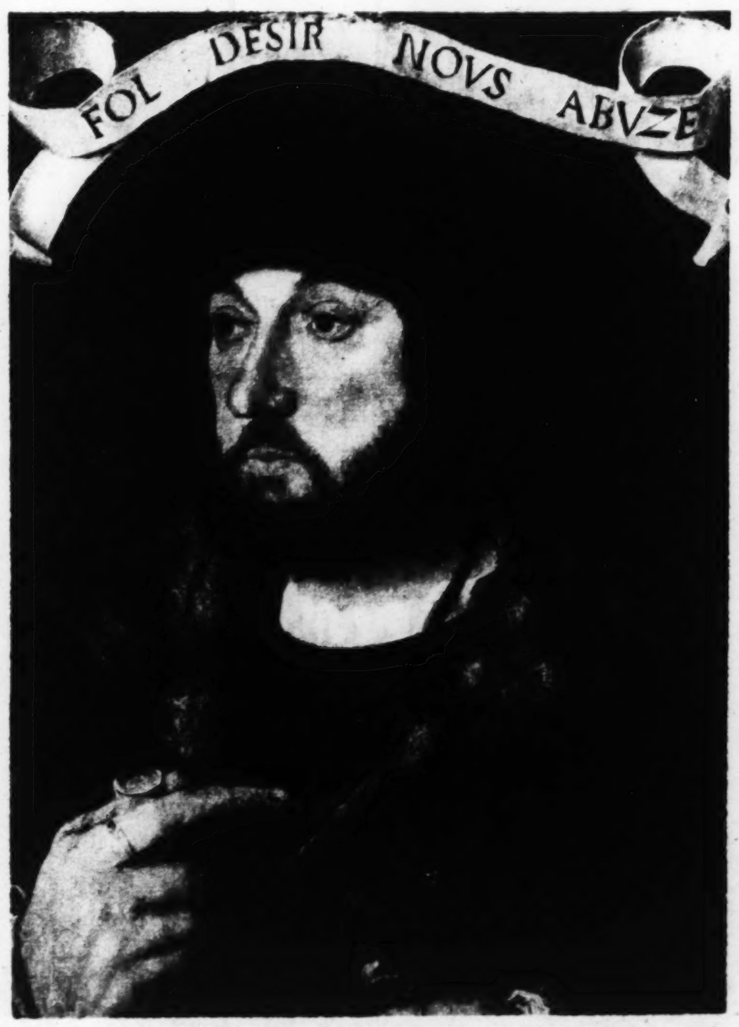
Guillaume Gouffier, Admiral of France and Sire of Bonnivet, was one of the most colorful figures at the picturesque court of Francis I. His portrait by the court painter, Jean Clouet, is a vivid and informative portion of the pictorial record of this important period left by the artist in a series of paintings and exquisite drawings of the royalty and nobility of Francis' reign.

Jean, or Jehannet, Clouet was born probably about 1475, in Flanders. He is found in 1516 among the official painters at the court of Francis I, where he became, a few years later, the principal court painter, with the title of Groom of the Chamber, a position which he retained, by careful and conscientious work, until his death, in about 1541.

Clouet's keen power of observation and his insight into character are admirably

Clouet's keen power of Guillaume Gouffier. In every line of the rather large nose, the small blue eyes and the tightly closed mouth we feel the meticulous, painstaking care of the artist to give an accurate likeness of the sitter. The contours of the face have been modeled at great labor, but with such delicacy that the surface takes on an almost enamel-like quality which is wholly free from realistic light and shade. The same minute and conscientious effort has been expended upon the details of the beard and costume and even the bouquet of pansies naively held in the clenched hand.

But all of this tightly painted detail is secondary to the broadly conceived pattern of the underpainting, which gives a fine decorative solidity to the portrait as a whole. This satisfying solidity of Jean Clouet's work in combination with sufficient elaboration of detail—not always flattering — to appease the most uncompromising realist, probably explains the long continued popularity of the painter and his son and successor, Francois, at the French court, in the face of the growing vogue for Italian art under the sponsorship of the King.



It was Clouet's custom to make a drawing embodying all the salient characteristics of the subject's physiognomy, to which was generally added a suggestion of the costume and perhaps manuscript memoranda, such as are seen in Holbein's drawings, as to the color. From this drawing the artist worked up the finished portrait in his studio, without further sittings. The painting completed, the drawing would be carefully preserved for repeat orders, much as a photographer nowadays files his negatives. Jean Clouet has left a remarkable series of these drawings, among which is one of Guillaume Gouffier, preserved in the museum at Chantilly, which bears a strong resemblance to the museum's portrait.

GUILLAUME GOUFFIER played an important part in the affairs of France during the early years of the reign of Francis I. Younger brother of the Seigneur de Boisy, tutor of Francis I, he grew up on intimate terms with the young Prince, and after his accession became one of the most powerful of the royal favorites, a position which his personal charm and brilliant wit enabled him to hold throughout his life, despite his failures as soldier and diplomat. In 1515 he was made Admiral of France and in 1519 he superintended Francis' unsuccessful candidature for the imperial crown of the Holy Roman Empire. He was killed in the disastrous defeat of the French at Pavia in Italy in 1525, when Francis I was made prisoner.

TOY TALKIES

Walter Quermann

WHY JOHN BEAR WENT BACK TO SLEEP.

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

MR. JOHN BEAR—Who is very fond of honey.
FREDDIE FOX—A schemer.
BILL BUMBLEBEE—He stores honey.
TED HOPPER—Who overhears a plan.

THE PLAY BEGINS

(Mr. John Bear and Freddie Fox enter, talking.)

MR. JOHN BEAR—Yes, it was so warm I thought it was spring. So I got up. Usually I sleep a couple of months longer.

FREDDIE FOX—I'll bet you are hungry. I know I am. I would like to have a nice rabbit stew for dinner. (Just then Ted Hopper peeps from behind the book to the right of the stage.)

MR. JOHN BEAR—I would like to eat some honey.

FREDDIE FOX—I have a plan. You find out where Ted Hopper lives and I will find out where Bill Bumblebee has his honey stored. And then we can tell one another.

MR. JOHN BEAR—That is a good plan. Ted Hopper isn't afraid of me and Bi Bumbleebee knows you don't eat honey. (They leave and Ted Hopper enters.)

TED HOPPER—I must find Bill Bumblebee. We will teach them to let folks alone. (He leaves and presently he and Bill Bumblebee enter.)

BILL BUMBLEBEE—That is a very good idea. I will tell Freddie Fox that I live in the hollow oak; that is where Clawer, the wildcat, and his family live.

TED HOPPER—Yes, and I will tell John Bear I live in a cave near Pebble Bottoms. That is where Henry Porcupine lives. (Ted Hopper leaves and Freddie Fox enters.)

FREDDIE FOX—Wait a minute, Bill Bumblebee. I want to talk with you.

BILL BUMBLEBEE—I can't, I'm in a hurry to get home.

FREDDIE FOX—Where do you folks live now?

BILL BUMBLEBEE—In the hollow oak. (Leaves stage as Mr. John Bear enters.)

MR. JOHN BEAR—Well, I found out that Ted Hopper lives in a cave near Pebble Bottoms.

FREDDIE FOX—Bill Bumblebee lives in the hollow oak. (They leave stage and Bill Bumblebee and Ted Hopper enter.)

TED HOPPER—Let's follow them and see the fun. (They leave and a moment later Mr. John Bear and Freddie Fox enter hastily. Mr. John Bear's clothes are all torn and Freddie Fox is stuck full of porcupine quills.)

MR. JOHN BEAR—(Disgustedly.) That was a fine idea of yours. That tree was full of wild cats. I'm going back to sleep. (Yawns.) I guess I'm not so hungry, after all.

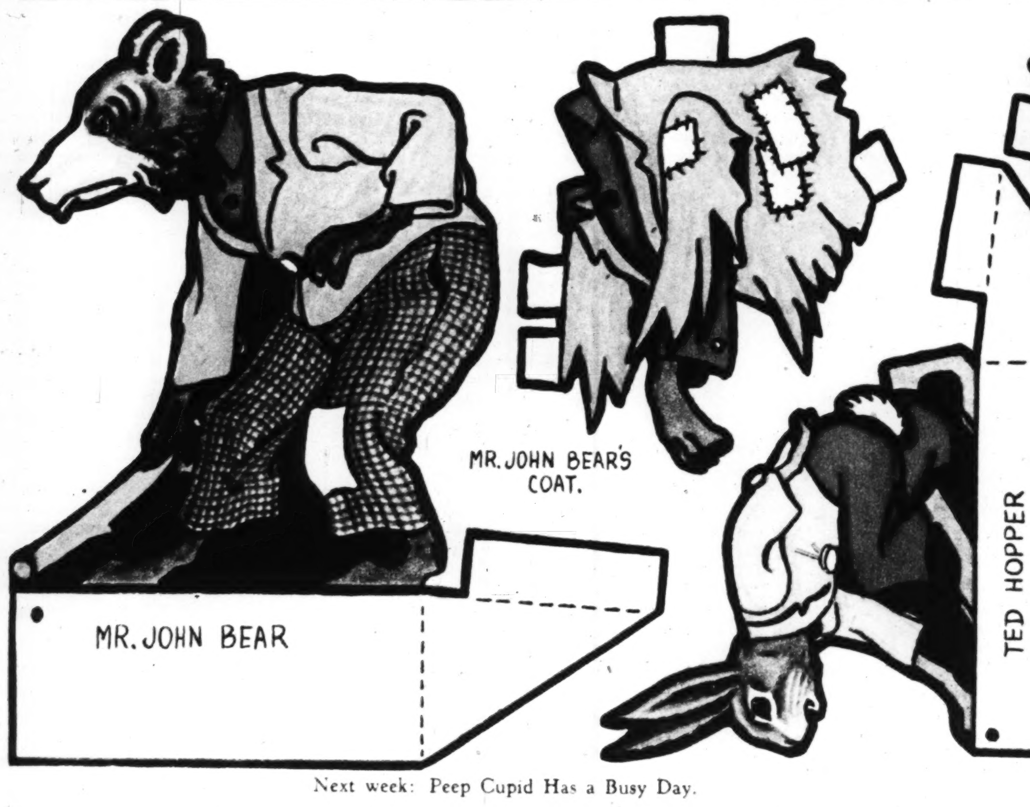
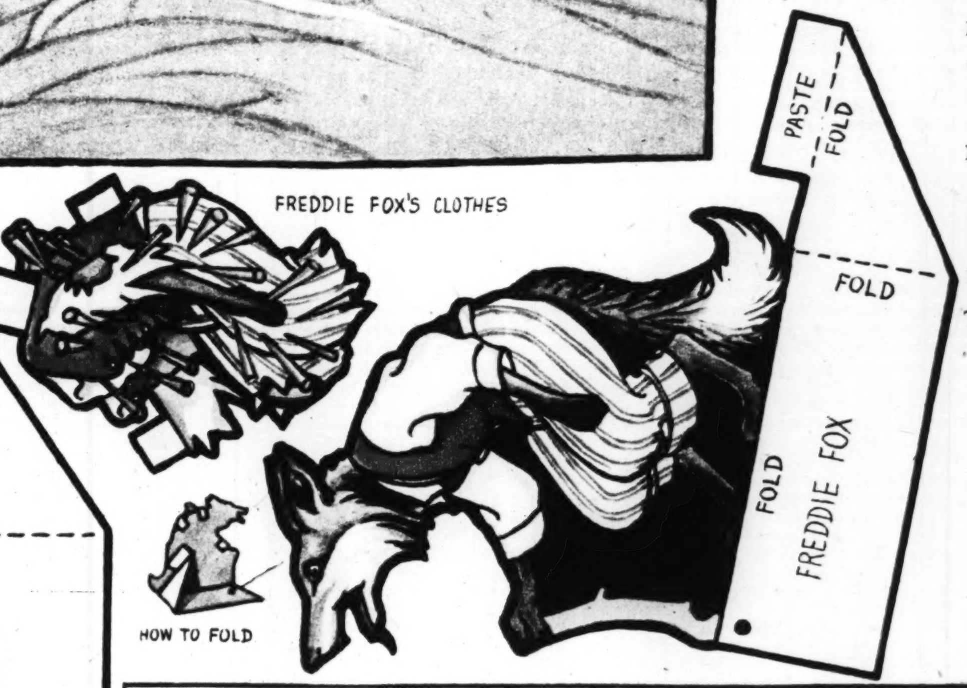
FREDDIE FOX—Something went wrong with our plans. That cave was the home of Henry Porcupine. (They leave and Ted Hopper and Bill Bumblebee enter.)

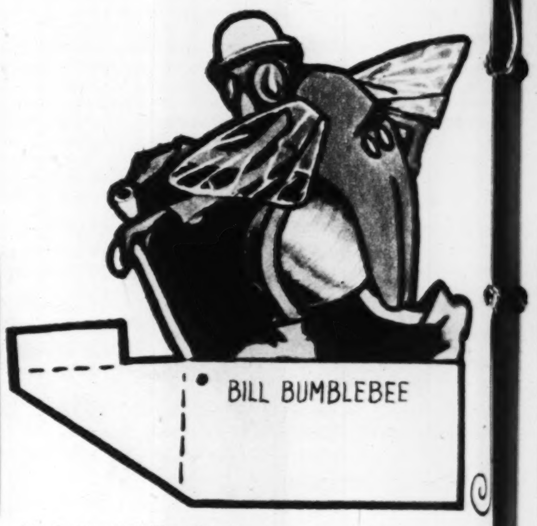
BILL BUMBLEBEE—It was a good thing you overheard their plans.

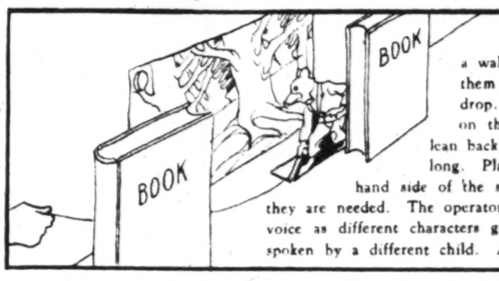
TED HOPPER—I hope we taught them to let folks alone.

CURTAIN.









DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

Next week: Peep Cupid Has a Busy Day.

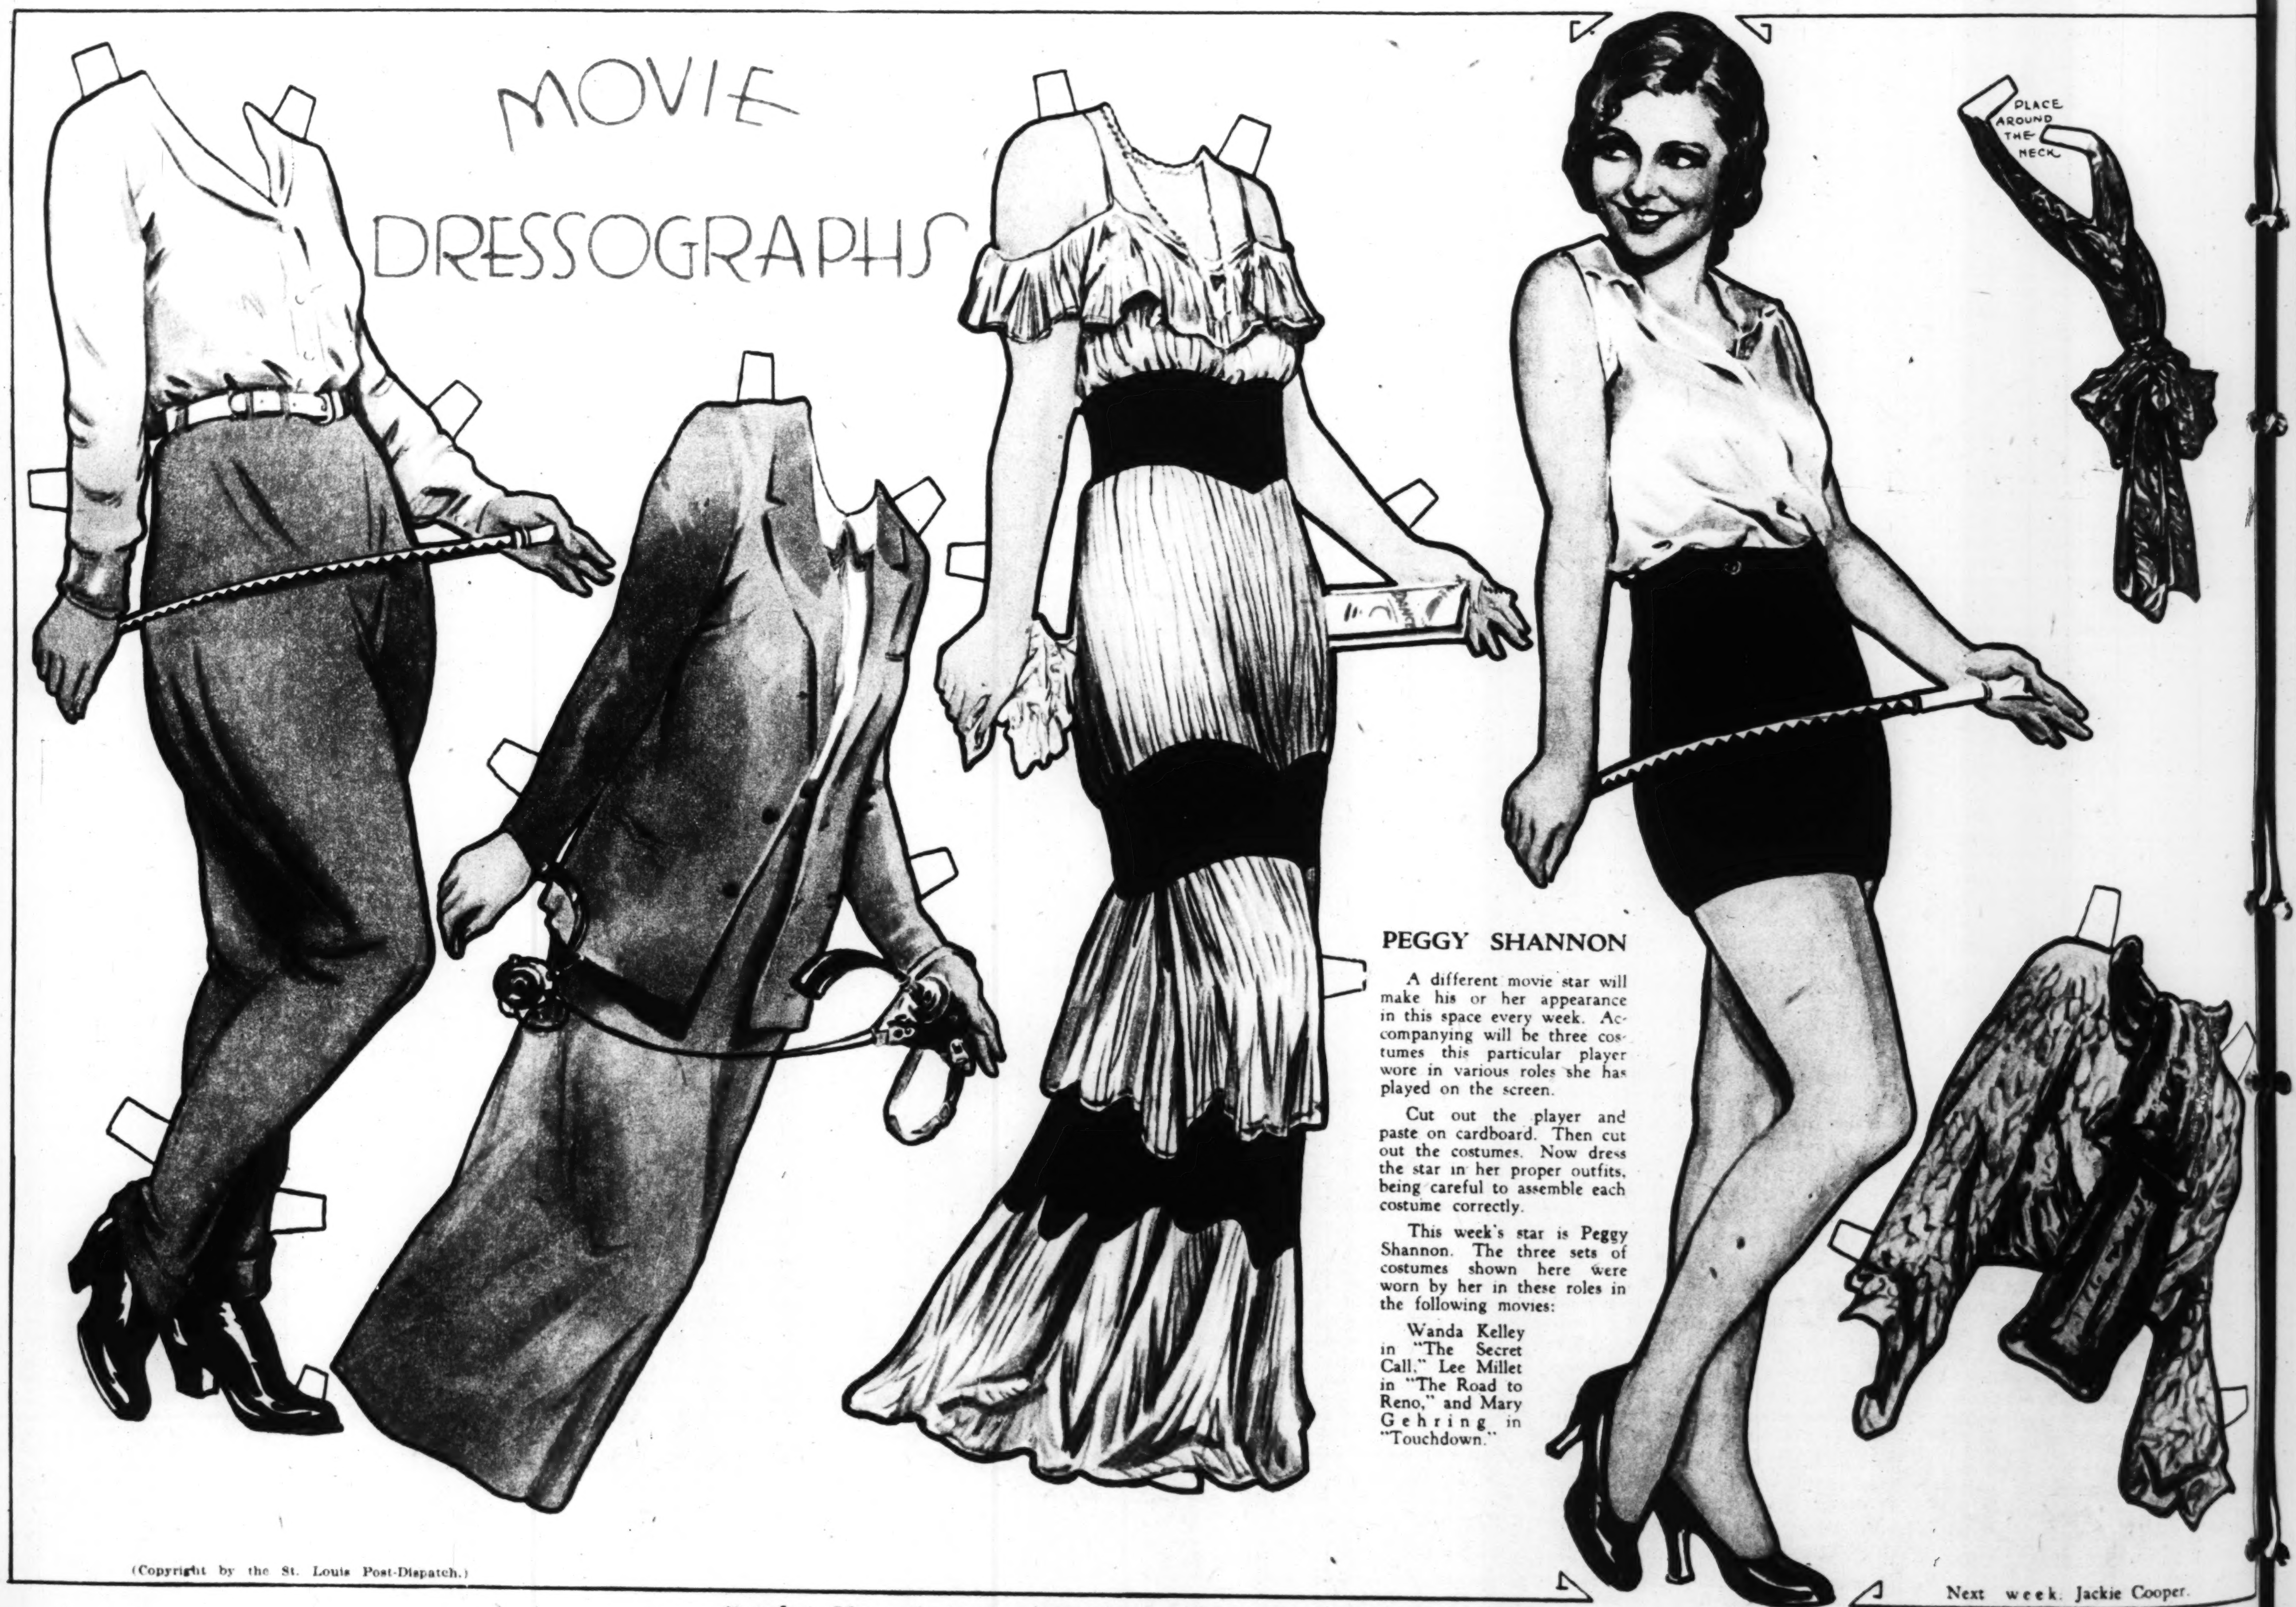
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



PEGGY SHANNON

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles she has played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in her proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Peggy Shannon. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies:

Wanda Kelley in "The Secret Call," Lee Millet in "The Road to Reno," and Mary Gehring in "Touchdown."

Next week, Jackie Cooper.

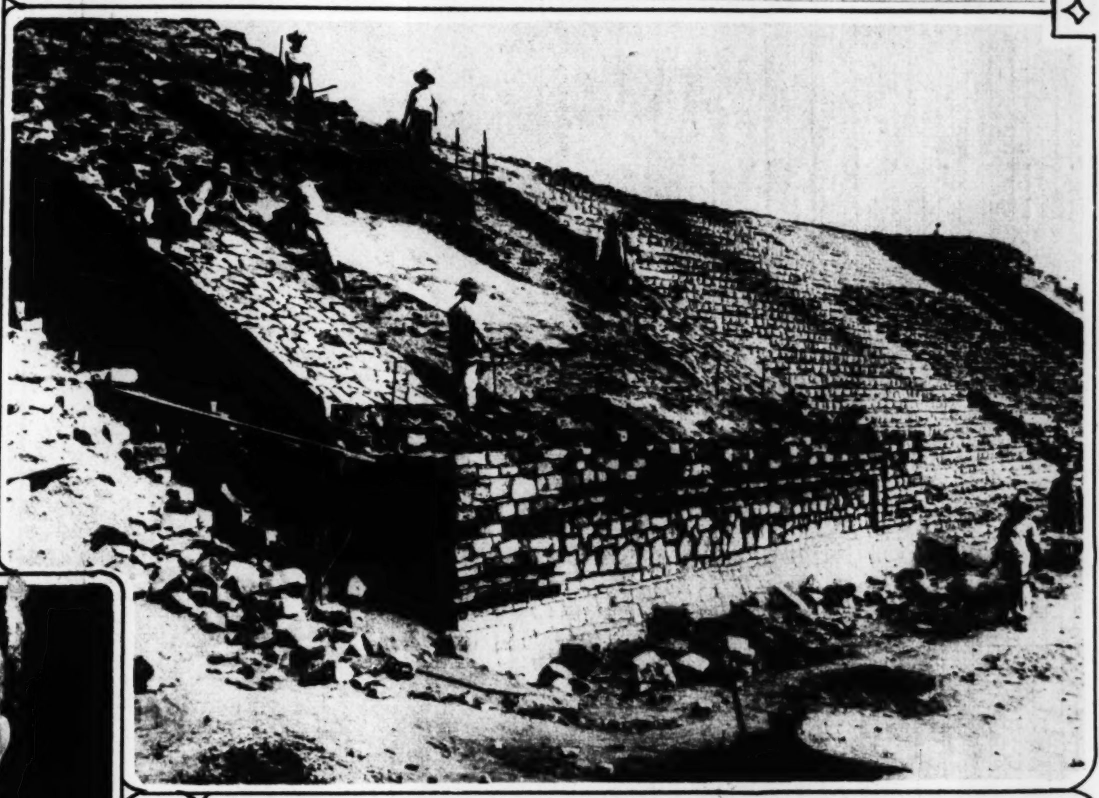
ENTRANCE TO ANCIENT MEXICAN TOMB—Here, on Monte Alban, near Oaxaca, Prof. Caso and his workers have discovered the greatest New World archeological treasures in years—relics of the natives who lived in Mexico several hundred years before the Spaniards came to conquer and despoil the temples of their riches.



Here are the steps and masonry of what was probably the acropolis of very old Mexican city. It is atop Monte Alban, overlooking the earthquake-scarred City of Oaxaca. Not two percent of the ruins and tombs have yet been explored.

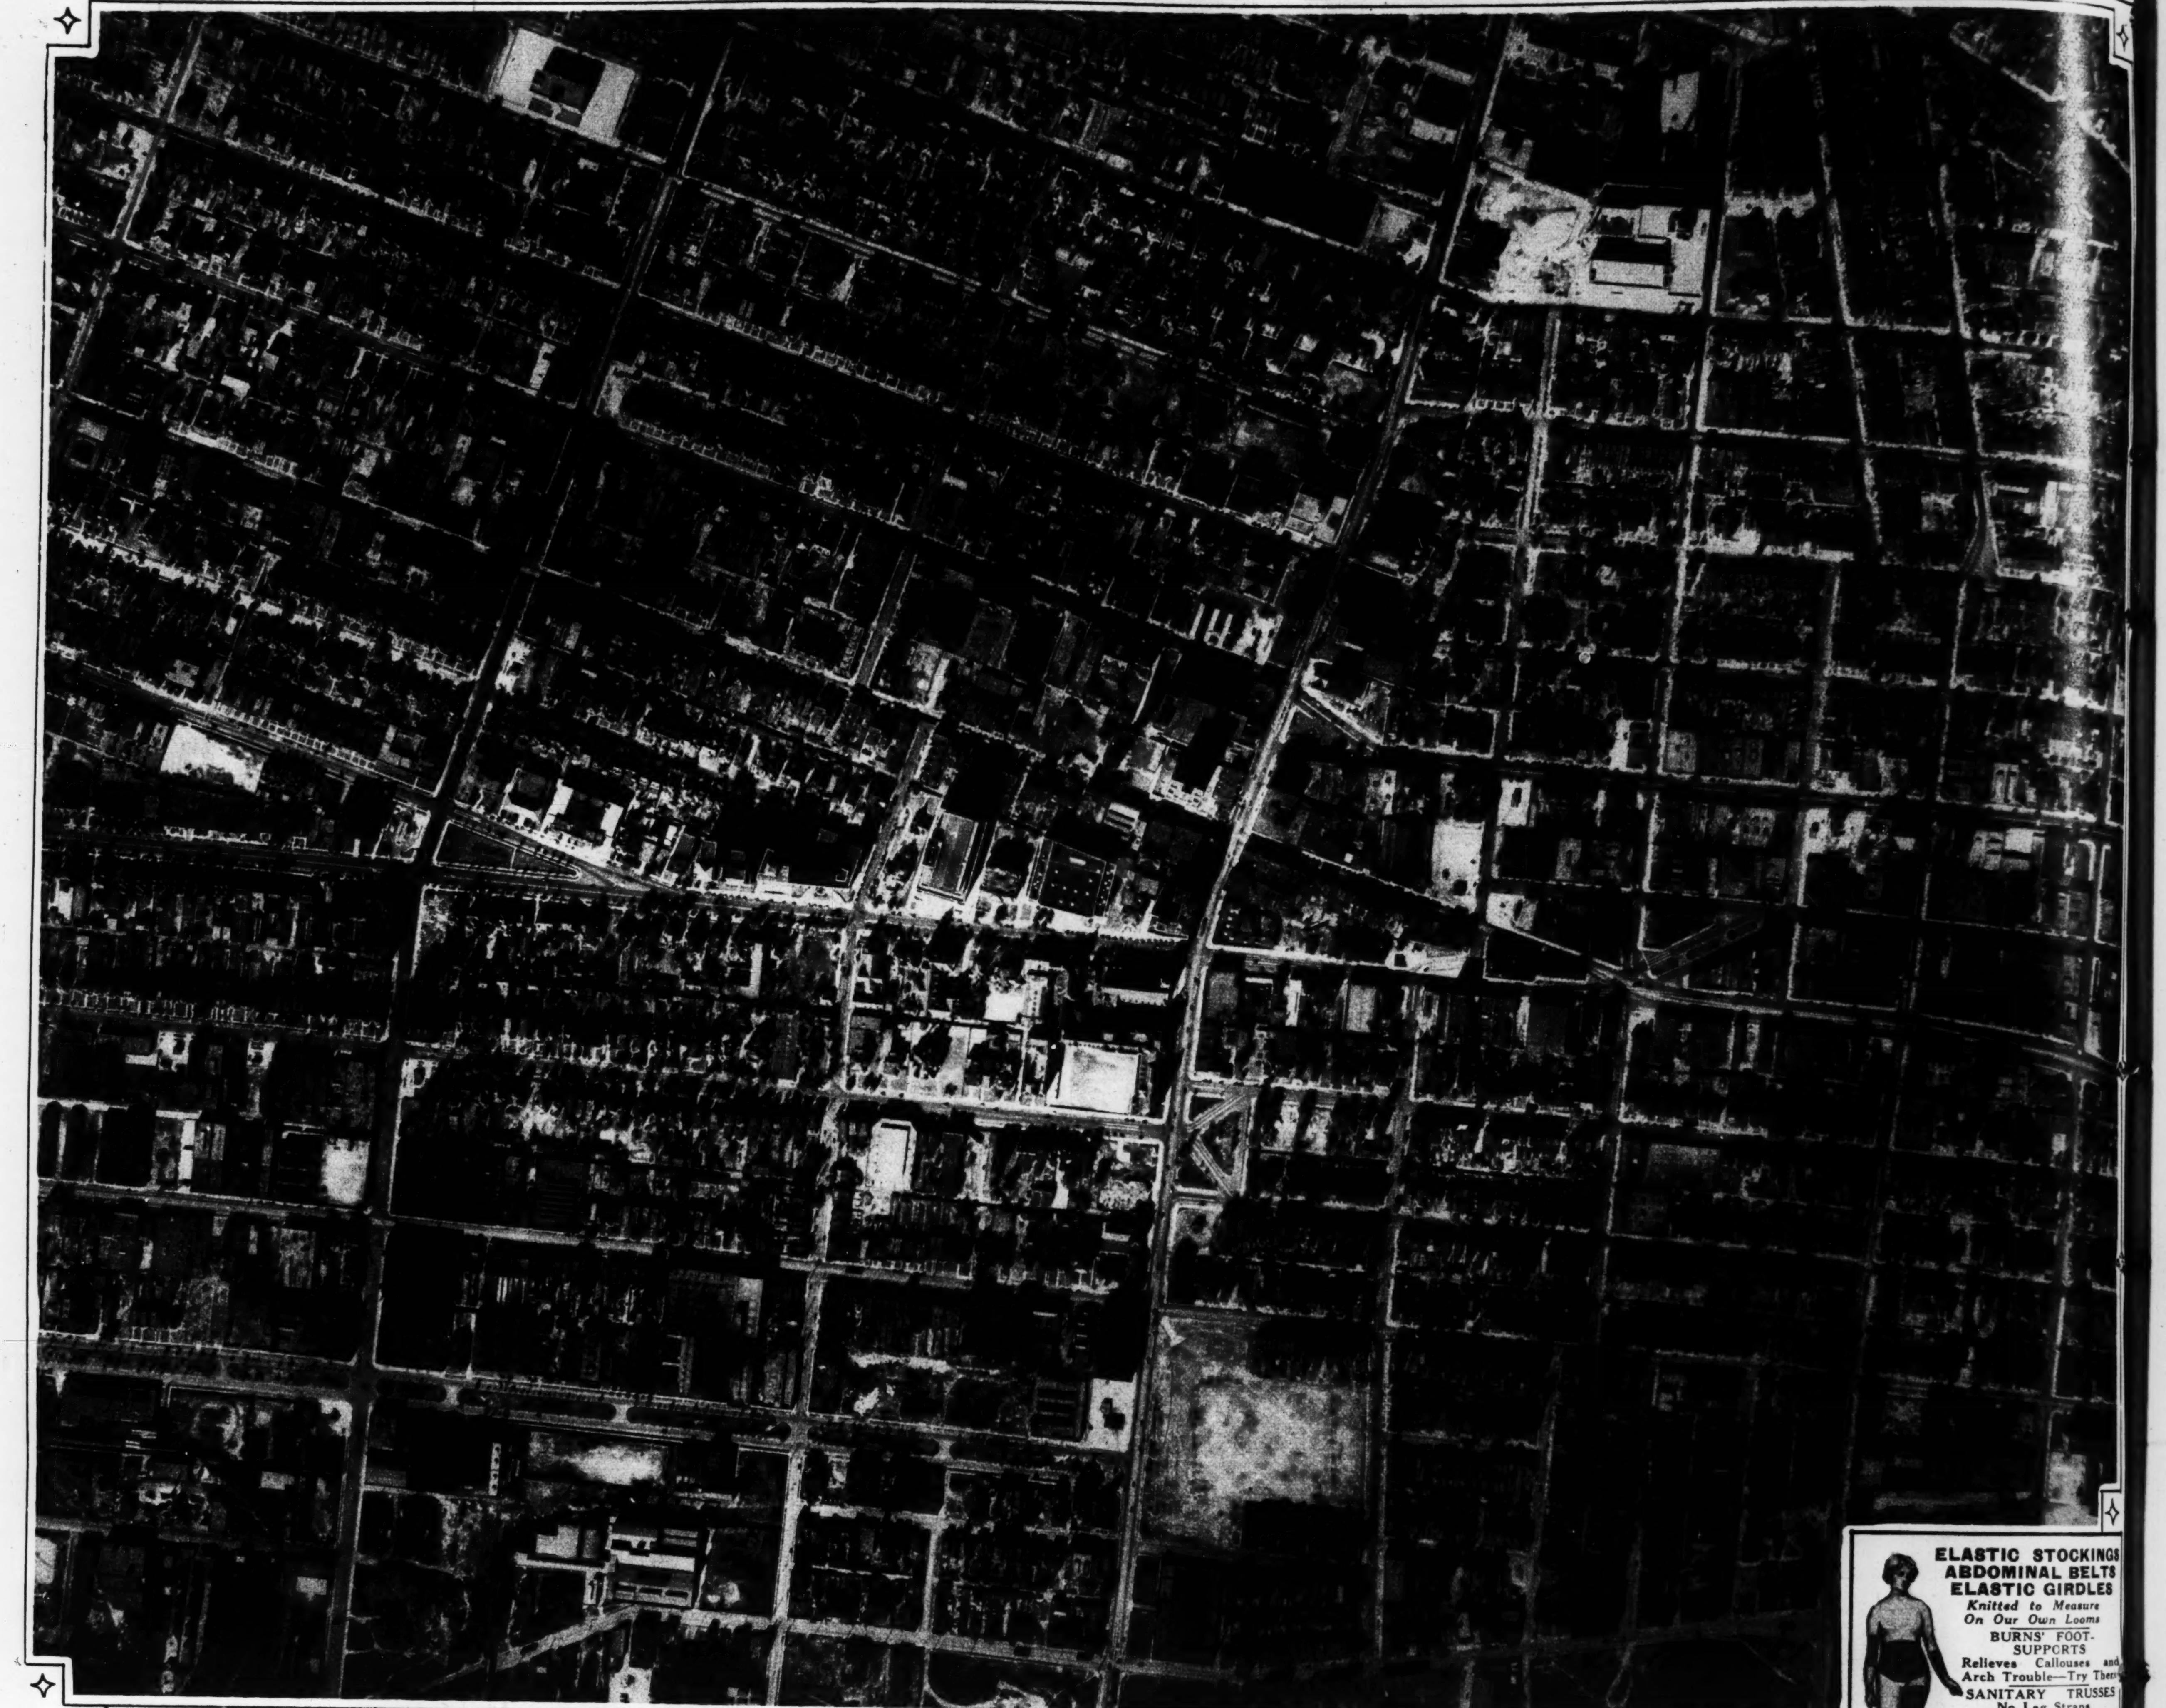
SUNDAY MORNING THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FEBRUARY 7, 1932



HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW YOUR MIDTOWN ST. LOUIS?—A few weeks ago the Post-Dispatch printed in its rotogravure section an aerial view of St. Louis from about Fourteenth street to the river front, made with the camera lens pointed downward in an absolute vertical line. A similar picture is now printed, showing the region east and west of Grand boulevard and north and south of Olive street. How many buildings and locations can you identify? The top of the page is north.
